Revenge Is Urged By Arabs

By U.P. INTERNATIONAL

Arabs mourning the death of 106 persons killed when Israeli Phantom jets shot down a Libyan airliner last week called on Libya's rulers today for revenge against Israel. The Lebanese newspaper al Moharrer asked Arab oil-producing nations to use their oil as a reprisal weapon against the United States.

Despite the crisis brought by the Libyan plane incident Israeli Prime Minister Golda Meir left Tel Aviv today for talks with President Nixon and said she believed Middle East peace efforts would not be affected by the incident since peace would prevent such tragedies.

Joseph J. Sisco, the State Department's ranking Middle East expert, said Sunday Nixon had laid a foundation for progress toward a Mideast peace settlement in recent meetings with Jordan's King Hussein and Egyptian envoy Mohammed Hafez Ismail.

"I think, frankly, that both sides would like to find a way to coexist and that is why I feel the doors of diplomacy remain open," he said on the CBS "Face The Nation" program.

With Arab nations outraged by the plane incident, Lt. Gen. Ahmed Ismail, the Egyptian War Minister, flew today to Moscow for what Egyptian political sources in Cairo said was probably another attempt to get weapons from the Soviet Union.

Ismail headed a high-level military delegation on a visit that signalled a return to military cooperation following the visit of a Soviet military delegation to Cairo two weeks ago.

Ismail is commander-in-chief of Egyptian armed forces and of those of the Federation of Arab Republics, comprising Egypt, Syria and Libya.

The Egyptian sources said it was possible Ismail's talks with Soviet Defense Minister Marshal Andrei Grechko might be more fruitul in view of the worldwide outcry against Israel's downing of a Libyan airliner last Wednesday.

Most of the Middle East was still awaiting some announcement from Libyan leader Col. Moammar Khadafy following the shooting down of the Libyan airliner.

In the Libyan port city of Benghaz today 54 victims of the Israeli attack on the airliner were buried amid calls for vengeance by mourners. As the coffins passed through the streets on military vehicles, mourners shouted "Revenge, Revenge, Khadafy" and "Wipe out this disgrace Khadafy."

A commentary in the Beirut newspaper Al Moharrer said Khadafy should call for an urgent conference of all Arab oil-producing states to tell them:

$5.9 Million Found For Park Purchases

Administration Approves Golden Gate Area Funds

By PAUL E. PETERZELL

A $5.9 million start on buying private land for the Golden Gate National Recreation Area has been approved by the Nixon administration, Rep. William S. Mailliard, R-Sixth District, reported today.

A delay of at least one year in starting the purchases had been threatened early this month when the administration's proposed budget allocated no money for park land acquisition anywhere in the nation.

The $5.9 million was found in surplus appropriations from previous budgets for Point Reyes National Seashore and a national park in Minnesota, Mailliard's office reported. He had been sharply critical of the threatened delay in land purchases for the recreation area, and promised to "press pretty hard" for funds.

According to the National Park Service's shopping list of 100 private properties totaling 16,211 acres in the recreation area, the $5.9 million will be to start at acquiring five holdings totaling 5,712 acres. This acreage, representing more than one third of the total private lands, ranges from Tenessee Valley to the Bolinas Ridge.

If these five holdings can be bought with the appropriation,

"For you have the poor always with you."

Some, like the 1,200 elderly poor who receive welfare checks each month in Marin, have virtually no hope of ever being any better off. For others, the situation is a more temporary one with the affluent life of their neighbors still a vision that may be attainable.

For a few, poverty even seems to be a matter of choice, although the flower children of yesteryear pretty much have faded away.

"I don't know anybody who wants to be on welfare," said Betty Presley, longtime head of the county's huge Department of Public Social Services.

Miss Presley, like others in the charity business, knows that the pendulum swings back and forth in the way man views his less fortunate bróther, as it does in other human philosophies.

Lost Tot's 24-Hour Ordeal

A tiny 2-year-old boy, who hiked through such rugged country he eluded an army of searchers, finally was found yesterday, muddy and exhausted but safe on a ridge in West Marin.

Sitting patiently by the side of toddler Devon Mark Bridler of San Francisco was Moon, a black mixed breed dog who is the community pet of Forest Knolls residents.

The child, lying face down in a hilltop clearing about three miles from Forest Knolls, was spotted from an Army helicopter at about 3:45 p.m. He had been missing about 24 hours since he disappeared while visiting in Forest Knolls with his parents, Richard and Nancy Bridler.

Hundreds of volunteers searched the rough country for little Devon, but the boy had outdistanced the searchers, according to Capt. Harvey Teague of the Marin Sheriff's Department, which coordinated the search.

"In order to get up there (the ridge where he was found), he had to go through brush we couldn't even go through," Teague said.

Devon, who is three feet tall and weighs 35 pounds, probably followed a rabbit trail, Teague said. "It is really rough country and I don't know how he got up there," he added.

Devon's near-tragic adventure, began Saturday about 4 p.m., Teague said, when he and 3-year-old Joshua Benson wandered away from Joshua's Forest Knolls home during a family visit.

The children walked down a fire trail, crossed a bridge and visited a neighbor, according to Teague. The neighbor gave the children orange halves and suggested they go home, the captain said.

Joshua returned but when Devon did not, the neighbor and the parents searched the fire trail unsuccessfully for the child.

At 6 p.m. they called the sheriff's department for help and about 45 deputies combed the area until heavy rain halted the search at about 3:30 a.m.

Early yesterday morning, deputies were joined by dozens of other volunteers, including 43 Synanon residents, 80 Coast Guard men, 80 airmen from Hamilton Air Force Base, eight Boy Scouts from Troop 49 of

Parents Charge English Test For Freshmen Is Pornographic

By NELS JOHNSON

A freshman English examination at Sir Francis Drake High School — which asks students to read a letter that describes a scene of adolescent sexual activity —has drawn the wrath of parents.

Two San Anselmo women whose daughters took the examination have called it immoral and are accusing the school of "pandering pornography and contributing to the delinquency of a minor."

But Thomas M. Lorch, leader for educational planning at Drake, and Katherine M. Blickhahn, cochairman of the facility's English Department, disagree.

The irate parents plan to take the matter to the Tamalpais High School District board on March 5, claiming the examination provides an immoral learning environment for students. Meanwhile, Supt. Robert D. Torrey and board chairman Robert W. Corlett have already reviewed the examination and found it distasteful.

At issue is an English final examination given to two classes of freshmen Jan. 29 by teacher Elaine Johnson. The first exercise on the six-part examination instructs students to read a letter that describes events at a party, then answer questions about the writer and recipient.

The first third of the letter reads:

"Dear John, You should have stayed last night instead of escaping to Herb and Joe's. You would have had a great time watching all our little friends make fools of themselves. They were at their best, we should have brought the Polaroid. The highpoint of the evening —fornication in the nine-year-old's room. I heard it all. North Vietnam Won't Answer Queries On Prisoner Release

SAIGON (UPI) — North Vietnam refused today to answer U.S. queries on whether another group of American prisoners of war would be released Tuesday as scheduled, U.S. sources said. Washington had expected about 100 more to be freed.

"Our delegation to the prisoner of war subcommittee asked pointedly three times whether they (the North Vietnamese) had the list (of prisoners) and they didn't answer at all," said the source close to the four-power Joint Military Commission (JMC).

A second group of U.S. prisoners tentatively was scheduled for release Tuesday under the timetable outlined in the cease-fire plan. But the North Vietnamese failure to turn over a list of prisoners for release indicated such a release might not come off until later.

A four-hour meeting of the JMC subcommission on prisoners today broke up in Saigon without progress, the U.S. source reported. He said the unit probably would meet again Tuesday.

The Communists did not say so but it appeared the hitch in the prisoner release may have stemmed from riots at Hue and Da Nang in which five North Vietnamese cease-fire supervisors were injured.

Rioting broke out Sunday at Hue after a crowd, mostly women, made a pilgrimage to a graveyard where thousands of victims of the Communists' 1968 Tet offensive are buried. About 100 of the women ransacked a barracks where Communist delegates were housed, set fire to

Federal Objections To Shopping Center Strong

Federal objections to the filling of Corte Madera marshlands for the proposed Ernest W. Hahn regional shopping center appear to be much stronger than had previously been thought, it was learned today.

The Department of the Interior won't withdraw objections to immediate development of the project unless the existing water areas are preserved, and the Environmental Protection Agency hasn't decided if the project is justified.

And the Army Corps of Engineers, citing Congressional requests and "widespread public interest" won't hold its public hearing on Hahn's application to dump one million cubic yards of fill until the EPA has made up its mind.

A Corps representative never got a chance to speak at the Feb. 13 Corte Madera Planning Commission's hearing on the Sedway Cooke report of the environmental impact of the town's redevelopment project, according to Col. J. L. Lammie, district engineer. Lammie today released a Department of Interior letter "clarifying the position" on Hahn's fill permit.

North Vietnam Won't Answer Queries On Prisoner Release

SAIGON (UPI) — North Vietnam refused today to answer U.S. queries on whether another group of American prisoners of war would be released Tuesday as scheduled, U.S. sources said. Washington had expected about 100 more to be freed.

"Our delegation to the prisoner of war subcommittee asked pointedly three times whether they (the North Vietnamese) had the list (of prisoners) and they didn't answer at all," said the source close to the four-power Joint Military Commission (JMC).

Red Missile Sites Claimed

SAIGON (UPI) — South Vietnam accused the North Vietnamese today of setting up three antiaircraft missile launching sites near Khe Sanh in "blatant violation" of the cease-fire agreement and said it could start the war all over again.

The Soviet-built missiles can fire as high as 12 miles and were responsible, officials said, for shooting down 16 U.S. B52s during the two-week bombing of Hanoi and Haiphong over Christmas and New Years.

Meanwhile, as the cease-fire went into a fifth week, Saigon reported 106 truce violations in the 24-hour period ending at dawn today. It was the lowest total since Feb. 5 when 89 violations were reported.

Nevertheless, intense fighting went on in the Central Highlands. Saigon said 42 Communists were killed in three provinces along with four South Vietnamese troops and a civilian hit by a Communist bombardment.

In its formal complaint about the reputed missile sites, Saigon said aerial photographs Feb. 18 showed three such missile sites plus improvements at Khe Sanh that were not there on Jan. 24, four days before the Vietnam cease-fire.

It said such sites could not have been built in four days and that therefore they were set up after the cease-fire despite the prohibition on bringing in war materials except as replacements for equipment already in place.

"This is a blatant violation" that "may well ignite the fuels of resurgent war," the com plaint said. It said Communists must bear full responsibility for "any future repercussions which may ensue."

Khe Sanh is 383 miles north of Saigon and 16 miles south of the border dividing North and South. It was defended by U.S. Marines during an 88-day siege in 1968 and later abandoned and has been in Communist hands since the spring offensive last year.

U.S. pilots reported sighting some missiles south of the border during the early days of the offensive. But none had been reported in the south in months.

South Vietnam's complaint was delivered to Michel Gauvin, acting chairman of the peace-keeping International Commission of Control and Supervision (ICCS).

Decline Reported In Laos Fighting As U.S. Refuses Helicopter Call

VIENTIANE (UPI) — Acting Defense Minister Sisouk Na Champassak reported a decline today in the amount of fighting between royalist troops and Pathet Lao Communist forces. There was a lull at Paksong, a Communist-held town and the scene of the heaviest fighting since a truce came into force five days ago.

But Sisouk said chances of recapturing Paksong, a key southern town in the Bolovens plateau, appeared slim because of United States refusal to commit helicopters in support of Laotian forces.

He said government troops could recapture Paksong if they met no resistance from Communist troops. Officials said there was no fighting at the town, the scene of U.S. bombing earlier.

Of American refusal to give Laotian troops helicopter support, Sisouk said: "Our hands are tied. The Americans want to play the game strictly."

A Western source said U.S. air power remains available if Laotian officials consider it vital in combating post-truce hostilities. B52 bombers carried out some raids earlier after the government called for help in fighting in the deep south of the country.

U.S. sources said advisers stationed near Paksong would continue defensive and supply duties, but would not undertake any offensive operations.

Military authorities reported a general drop in cease-fire violations.

They said Communists launched a daily average of 20 attacks over the weekend with a total of 88 reported since the cease-fire came into force at noon last Thursday (midnight Wednesday EST).

Spokesmen listed 20 ceasefire violations between Saturday and Sunday morning and another 20 from Sunday until dawn today.

Paksong fell to the Communist government failed to get under way as scheduled today. Government sources said Communist delegates apparently were away consulting Hanoi.

Pathet Lao special negotiator Phoumi Vongvichit and Gen. Phoun Sipaseuth departed Saturday for Hanoi, reportedly for consultations. There was no word when they would return.

But government sources said Pathet Lao delegation leaders did agree that once the ceasefire Joint Commission meetings finally get under way, members should hold three or four sessions a week.

Swastika Banned For Policeman

CLEVELAND (UPI) — Mayor Ralph J. Perk said he would issue an order today forbidding city policemen to wear swastikas on their uniforms.

Perk, responding to charges that some patrolmen had been seen wearing the swastika on T-shirts, belt buckles and tie clips, said "anyone who would wear the Nazi symbol doesn't belong on the taxpayers' payroll."

"We abhor it because it is a symbol of racism and Hitler's hate and destruction," Perk said.

Dominant Role Laid To Hanoi

NEW YORK (UPI) — Presidential adviser Henry Kissinger believes North Vietnam will never abandon its aim of taking over South Vietnam but says that is "not an American concern" so long as the takeover is peaceful and democratic.

In an interview televised on NBC Sunday night, Kissinger said "North Vietnam will never relinquish its desire to take over South Vietnam," but added "we are not opposed to theunification of Vietnam in principle, if Vietnam is unified by peaceful means. If the performance of one party or the other is so clearly superior to that of the other that it tends to achieve moral superiority over the other, that is not an American concern.

"If the North Vietnamese are willing to compete peacefully, if they are willing to develop their country, if they are willing to rely on a political process, then we don't object to their objective."

Kissinger flatly ruled out any further American military involvement despite continued fighting, and said he was not worried over repeated combat flare-ups.

"It has gone on a little longer than I thought, but ... how are the two sides going to establish their areas of control except by testing each other?"

He added that a "general lesson we have learned" from the war is that "domestic security and guerrilla warfare ought to be the task of the government concerned."

He said proposals to provide large-scale aid to North Vietnam "might be a very major contribution to the peace of Indochina" since it could help overcome "a difficult psychological problem" of the North Vietnamese leaders.

"They have spent most of their lives either in prison or fighting a war," said Kissinger. "Never in their lives have they known quiet; never have they dedicated themselves to primarily constructive tasks."

Kissinger said he would not personally testify before Congress on the aid plan, but asserted that he maintains "the closest relationship with the appropriate congressional committee and checks with them frequently at informal sessions.

He scoffed at the idea of a strain in relations between himself and President Nixon, especially when the Vietnam peace was delayed for 10 weeks until the end of January.

Sailboat Stolen In The Desert

Smith parked his yellow, 26-foot boat on a trailer in his driveway in this desert area community northeast of Los Angeles. He came home during the weekend to find that the lack of water had not prevented thieves from pirating his boat and supplies stored in it, at a loss to him of $11,200.

CAMBRIDGE, Mass. (UPI) — Harvard University's Hasty Pudding theatrical group Sunday named Jack Lemmon its man of the year.

Lemmon will be honored for his acting and directing on Wednesday. He once was one of the Hasty Pudding Players, the oldest theatrical group in the nation.

WORLD NEWS IN BRIEF

Killed By Bomb

BELFAST (UPI) — A bomb blast fatally wounded a 9-year-old Londonderry boy yesterday as he played cowboys and Indians. He bled to death as a mob stoned soldiers and police trying to reach the explosion site.

The death of the boy raised to 730 the number of persons killed in three and one-half years of political and religious strife in Northern Ireland among Roman Catholic and Protestant extremists, the Irish Rpublican Army and security forces.

The latest victim was Gordon Gallagher who officials said he may have been playing too near someone preparing a bomb.

Trial In Recess

LOS NGELES (UPI) — The Pentagon Papers trial was in recess today while U.S. District Court Judge Matt Byrne caught up with other items on his court calendar.

Byrne has indicated he might rule late today on a defense motion for a directed verdict of acquittal for Daniel Ellsberg and Anthony J. Russo on grounds the government had not provided sufficient evidence o prove its case.

The prosecution had one more witness scheduled to testify briefly tomorrow before the jury. Then the defense will begin a presentation expected to last about seven weeks.

Phone Tap Reported

NEW YORK (UPI) — The FBI, under orders from the Nixon administration, tapped the phones of newsmen and White House aides in an attempt to trace possible leaks to the press, Time magazine reported yesterday.

In its current edition, Time said "four different sources in the government" reported the wiretapping, which began three years ago over the objections of FBI Director J. Edgar Hoover. The taps were ordered because "the White House was concerned by a series of leaks," the magazine quoted one of its sources as saying.

Time said Hoover balked at the White House orders and demanded authorization from U.S. Attorney General John Mitchell. Mitchell did so and the operation began with only one tap, but was expanded to include surveillance of six or seven reporters plus an undisclosed number of White House aides, Time said.

Inquiry In Blast

HICKAM AFB, Hawaii (UPI) — A board of inquiry yesterday tried to learn the cause of explosions and fireballs in an electric complex that left one person dead, six injured and cut off power to the Pacific headquarters of the U.S. Air Force.

Electrical experts ruled out sabotage as a cause for the explosions that knocked out power to most of Hickam Air Force Base for several hours Saturday.

The dead man was identified as Gary Maemoto, 21, of Honolulu, a civilian employe who was replacing power cables and terminals on the base electrical transformer equipment.

Reds Pound Targets

PHNOM PENH (UPI) — Communist forces pounded government targets as close as 12 miles to Phnom Penh after launching their heaviest nationwide offensive of the Cambodian war, military spokesmen said yesterday.

American spokesmen in Honolulu said U.S. warplanes carried out strikes yesterday in Cambodia, the only country not included in the Vietnam cease-fire agreement.

The Cambodian high command said Khmer Rouge (Cambodian Communists) hit government strongholds along two major highways — Highway 3 from the capital to Kompong Som, the country's only deep-water seaport, and Highway 2 from the capital to the Mekong Delta.

Credit Squeeze

WASHINGTON (UPI) — In an effort to squeeze the supply of credit around the country and hold down inflation, the Federal Reserve Board today started charging its member banks ½ of 1 per cent more to borrow funds.

The FRB's discount rate goes from 5 to 5½ per cent It is the second upward adjustment in five weeks and pushes the rate to its highest level in 15 months.

The discount rate is the interest the 12 federal reserve banks charge on loans to commercial banks. The prime rate is what commercial banks charge on short term loans to their best customers.

Spaceship Moves

CAPE KENNEDY (UPI) — The rocket-spaceship combination that will ferry the first men to the Skylab space station in May was moved to the launch pad today for final flight preparations.

The three and one-half mile move, about a six hour-task, marked a significant step toward the start of the nation's next manned spaceflight project. The Apollo lunar exploration program ended in December.

The 224-foot space machine is scheduled to launch Skylab astronauts Charles (Pete) Conrad, Dr. Joseph P. Kerwin and Paul J. Weitz a day after the Skylab is launched unmanned by a larger Saturn 5 rocket. Skylab tentatively is set for launch May 14.

Press Censorship

ANKARA (UPI) — Military officials have imposed the first press censorship in 103 years by ordering newspapers and news agencies to withhold two paragraphs from a speech condemning censorship.

Newsmen in Ankara and Istanbul said it was impossible to gain approval of their articles in time for publication so they have in effect begun censoring themselves.

The decree, which came only 16 days before scheduled presidential elections, censored two paragraphs of a speech yesterday by Republican People's party leader Bulet Ecevit.

"While preparing my notes for this speech I was informed that... Ankara had imposed partial censorship of the press," Ecevit said in an uncensored portion of the speech. "There cannot be a censored democracy."

Midway Point In Withdrawing Troops Passed

SAIGON (UPI) — The U.S. command said today it has passed the midway point in American post-truce troop withdrawals from South Vietnam.

It left 11,724 American GIs in South Vietnam. When the cease-fire officially began at 8 a.m. on Jan. 28, there were 23,516 Americans in the war zone. The truce agreement calls for all Americans to be out within 60 days after the cease-fire.

Withdrawals have averaged more than 400 a day and the midway mark in the U.S. withdrawal was reached more than 24 hours ahead of schedule, the command said.

Nixon Eyes New CAB Chairman

WASHINGTON (UPI) — President Nixon will nominate Robert D. Timm, 51, to be chairman of the Civil Aeronautics Board, administration sources report.

Timm, a Republican and a farmer from Harrington, Wash., has been a CAB member since 1970. He would succeed Secor D. Browne, who resigned as chairman.

The five-member board regulates the airline industry, setting fares and designating routes.

Red Missile Sites Claimed

SAIGON (UPI) — South Vietnam accused the North Vietnamese today of setting up three antiaircraft missile launching sites near Khe Sanh in "blatant violation" of the cease-fire agreement and said it could start the war all over again.

The Soviet-built missiles can fire as high as 12 miles and were responsible, officials said, for shooting down 16 U.S. B52s during the two-week bombing of Hanoi and Haiphong over Christmas and New Years.

Meanwhile, as the cease-fire went into a fifth week, Saigon reported 106 truce violations in the 24-hour period ending at dawn today. It was the lowest total since Feb. 5 when 89 violations were reported.

Nevertheless, intense fighting went on in the Central Highlands. Saigon said 42 Communists were killed in three provinces along with four South Vietnamese troops and a civilian hit by a Communist bombardment.

In its formal complaint about the reputed missile sites, Saigon said aerial photographs Feb. 18 showed three such missile sites plus improvements at Khe Sanh that were not there on Jan. 24, four days before the Vietnam cease-fire.

It said such sites could not have been built in four days and that therefore they were set up after the cease-fire despite the prohibition on bringing in war materials except as replacements for equipment already in place.

"This is a blatant violation" that "may well ignite the fuels of resurgent war," the complaint said. It said Communists must bear full responsibility for "any future repercussions which may ensue."

Khe Sanh is 383 miles north of Saigon and 16 miles south of the border dividing North and South. It was defended by U.S. Marines during an 88-day siege in 1968 and later abandoned and has been in Communist hands since the spring offensive last year.

U.S. pilots reported sighting some missiles south of the border during the early days of the offensive. But none had been reported in the south in months.

South Vietnam's complaint was delivered to Michel Gauvin, acting chairman of the peace-keeping International Commission of Control and Supervision (ICCS).

Decline Reported In Laos Fighting As U.S. Refuses Helicopter Call

VIENTIANE (UPI) — Acting Defense Minister Sisouk Na Champassak reported a decline today in the amount of fighting between royalist troops and Pathet Lao Communist forces. There was a lull at Paksong, a Communist-held town and the scene of the heaviest fighting since a truce came into force five days ago.

But Sisouk said chances of recapturing Paksong, a key southern town in the Bolovens plateau, appeared slim because of United States refusal to commit helicopters in support of Laotian forces.

He said government troops could recapture Paksong if they met no resistance from Communist troops. Officials said there was no fighting at the town, the scene of U.S. bombing earlier.

Of American refusal to give Laotian troops helicopter support, Sisouk said: "Our hands are tied. The Americans want to play the game strictly."

A Western source said U.S. air power remains available if Laotian officials consider it vital in combating post-truce hostilities. B52 bombers carried out some raids earlier after the government called for help in fighting in the deep south of the country.

U.S. sources said advisers stationed near Paksong would continue defensive and supply duties, but would not undertake any offensive operations.

Military authorities reported a general drop in cease-fire violations.

They said Communists launched a daily average of 20 attacks over the weekend with a total of 88 reported since the cease-fire came into force at noon last Thursday (midnight Wednesday EST).

Spokesmen listed 20 ceasefire violations between Saturday and Sunday morning and another 20 from Sunday until dawn today.

Paksong fell to the Commugovernment failed to get under way as scheduled today. Government sources said Communist delegates apparently were away consulting Hanoi.

Pathet Lao special negotiator Phoumi Vongvichit and Gen. Phoun Sipaseuth departed Saturday for Hanoi, reportedly for consultations. There was no word when they would return.

But government sources said Pathet Lao delegation leaders did agree that once the ceasefire Joint Commission meetings finally get under way, members should hold three or four sessions a week.

Swastika Banned For Policeman

CLEVELAND (UPI) — Mayor Ralph J. Perk said he would issue an order today forbidding city policemen to wear swastikas on their uniforms.

Perk, responding to charges that some patrolmen had been seen wearing the swastika on T-shirts, belt buckles and tie clips, said "anyone who would wear the Nazi symbol doesn't belong on the taxpayers' payroll."

"We abhor it because it is a symbol of racism and Hitler's hate and destruction," Perk said.

STILL BUCOLIC — Green open land and roving cows provide a pleasant rural scene on the Pinheiro Ranch in Novato as hopes to place a regional shopping center on the property appear to be fading. Progress on the center has been slow, and the cows probably will roam for a while longer.

Novato Shop Center Hopes Fade

By FRANK FARRARA

While Corte Madera and Larkspur both are vying for major shopping centers and Northgate is flourishing in San Rafael, Novato's hope for a regional shopping facility has faded.

Or as Charles Lewis, chairman of the city's downtown implementation committee, put it more bluntly the other day: "A regional shopping center is a dead issue."

The Novato Downtown Plan — prepared more than two years ago by consultants Sedway-Cooke of San Francisco and then the subject of long hearings which led to its adoption — featured such a shopping development on the Pinheiro Ranch and adjacent area north of downtown.

Early last year developer Alfred E. Burns of Mill Valley announced plans to build a $7 million center on the site, but progress has been slow.

Although Burns could not be reached by the Independent-Journal, city officials, businessmen and others reached indicated the problems stem from market saturation that would be caused by up to three major shopping centers in Marin and possible growth restrictions arising from city general plan changes.

City Councilman David Price Jones raised the possibility the development would have to be scaled down from the originally projected 1 million square feet of floor space to about 350,000 square feet.

City Planning Director Brian W. Mattson reported the other day, meanwhile, that Burns has "put his efforts on ice" pending a decision on commercial zoning at the Rowland Boulevard interchange, which could have an effect on development at the Pinheiro site.

Councilman David F. Ruegg said it was his belief that a regional shopping center never was contemplated. "All it was ever going to be was really a large neighborhood shopping center, not even subregional," he said.

"I would hope now the council would sit down and reevaluate the whole thing," he said. "We don't need another study, but need to apply common sense. I am of the opinion we don't really need a downtown plan, but a downtown attitude, and take advantage of opportunities rather than plan explicitly."

In any case, councilmen are expected to reevaluate the downtown plan in view of revisions to the city's general plan, the potential growth limits and the opening of a regional center in Central Marin — factors not present when the plan was adopted.

Jones said he hasn't "given up" on the downtown plan. Even if the Pinheiro center were abandoned, he said, the city still had another option — development of the downtown Novato shopping center as a major community retail center.

At the Pinheiro site, a key factor is the type of businesses that can be lured, he said. The city is seeking "uses that capture sales tax dollars" and stores that will attract persons not now shopping in Novato.

Downtown merchants have protested that adherence to the plan was thwarting other development in the area.

The clash wound up in court recently when Emil Renati filed a suit against the city because the planning commission had denied him a use permit for a retail tire and appliance store at the northeast corner of Redwood Highway and Vallejo Avenue.

The site was zoned commercial, but planning commissioners rejected his application on the basis the store would be in conflict with the downtown plan, which designates professional and office use at the site.

With possible scaling down of the proposed Pinheiro shopping center, there would be less need for office and professional uses in the nearby North Redwood Boulevard area.

The council upheld Renati's appeal and if he meets all conditions, is slated to get the permit.

Merchants also have complained that the plan has limited growth in the downtown area and that only large companies with vast resources are able to locate there.

Mattson reported that of 74 new uses established in the area since the plan was adopted, only eight were chain or large corporate operations. In this period, 14 firms have gone out of business, he said.

Mattson said the downtown area has received "only a nominal amount" of new construction and "many attribute this to the downtown plan." But, he said, when one looks closely at the uses denied "because of incompatibility with the plan, this is not true."

Mattson listed seven uses determined inconsistent with the plan, including Renati's proposed store, which now is on its way to approval.

Jones said in two cases, better uses were developed — an office building instead of a doughnut shop and a retail store instead of a car wash at the Renati site.

Other uses denied were a car wash, Taco Bell restaurant and a grocery and drug store development at Diablo Avenue and South Novato Boulevard, which was opposed by residents as a duplication of existing stores, he said.

City Mgr. Charles A. Brown said reevaluation of some parts of the plan will be needed, but "for the sake of one or two areas, some have taken liberties and have condemned the whole thing."

He said most of the subregions covered in the plan probably would be unaffected by revisions.

UROC Rips Nixon's Plan For Reparations To Hanoi

SACRAMENTO (UPI) — Calling the Vietnam ceasefire agreement a "surrender" United Republicans of California (UROC) believes the United States should not pay $2.5 billion "in reparations to North Vietnam disguised as reconstruction."

In a resolution adopted unanimously Sunday, the volunteer organization said the ceasefire was not "peace with honor," as described by President Nixon, but "surrender of the luckless people of South Vietnam."

"Describing the end of hostilities in Vietnam as 'peace with honor' when all facts show it is surrender is the heighth of hypocrisy and gross deception upon the American people," UROC's board of governor's said at its quarterly session.

Other resulutions passed by ultra-conservative group:

—Urge the legislature to rescind its ratification of the proposed U.S. Equal Rights Amendment, calling the measure a "most dangerous attack on traditional American family life."

—Request Nixon to pardon Lt. William L. Calley, accused of war crimes at My Lai.

—Support Gov. Ronald Reagan's appointment of William P. Clark Jr. to the state Supreme Court.

—Oppose extension of credit to communist countries and moves by Nixon to take power away from Congress.

—Criticize the size of Reagan's proposed $9.26 billion budget and urge the governor and legislature to enact "true tax reform" that would reduce overall taxation.

—Urge the state Board of Education to insert the creationist theory of the origin of life into social science texts.

STILL BUCOLIC — Green open land and roving cows provide a pleasant rural scene on the Pinheiro Ranch in Novato as hopes to place a regional shopping center on the property appear to be fading. Progress on the center has been slow, and the cows probably will roam for a while longer.

Novato Shop Center Hopes Fade

By FRANK FARRARA

While Corte Madera and Larkspur both are vying for major shopping centers and Northgate is flourishing in San Rafael, Novato's hope for a regional shopping facility has faded.

Or as Charles Lewis, chairman of the city's downtown implementation committee, put it more bluntly the other day: "A regional shopping center is a dead issue."

The Novato Downtown Plan — prepared more than two years ago by consultants Sedway-Cooke of San Francisco and then the subject of long hearings which led to its adoption — featured such a shopping development on the Pinheiro Ranch and adjacent area north of downtown.

Early last year developer Alfred E. Burns of Mill Valley announced plans to build a $7 million center on the site, but progress has been slow.

Although Burns could not be reached by the Independent-Journal, city officials, businessmen and others reached indicated the problems stem from market saturation that would be caused by up to three major shopping centers in Marin and possible growth restrictions arising from city general plan changes.

City Councilman David Price Jones raised the possibility the development would have to be scaled down from the originally projected 1 million square feet of floor space to about 350,000 square feet.

City Planning Director Brian W. Mattson reported the other day, meanwhile, that Burns has "put his efforts on ice" pending a decision on commercial zoning at the Rowland Boulevard interchange, which could have an effect on development at the Pinheiro site.

Councilman David F. Ruegg said it was his belief that a regional shopping center never was contemplated. "All it was ever going to be was really a large neighborhood shopping center, not even subregional," he said.

"I would hope now the council would sit down and reevaluate the whole thing," he said. "We don't need another study, but need to apply common sense. I am of the opinion we don't really need a downtown plan, but a downtown attitude, and take advantage of opportunities rather than plan explicitly."

In any case, councilmen are expected to reevaluate the downtown plan in view of revisions to the city's general plan, the potential growth limits and the opening of a regional center in Central Marin — factors not present when the plan was adopted.

Jones said he hasn't "given up" on the downtown plan. Even if the Pinheiro center were abandoned, he said, the city still had another option — development of the downtown Novato shopping center as a major community retail center.

At the Pinheiro site, a key factor is the type of businesses that can be lured, he said. The city is seeking "uses that capture sales tax dollars" and stores that will attract persons not now shopping in Novato.

Downtown merchants have protested that adherence to the plan was thwarting other development in the area.

The clash wound up in court recently when Emil Renati filed a suit against the city because the planning commission had denied him a use permit for a retail tire and appliance store at the northeast corner of Redwood Highway and Vallejo Avenue.

The site was zoned commercial, but planning commissioners rejected his application on the basis the store would be in conflict with the downtown plan, which designates professional and office use at the site.

With possible scaling down of the proposed Pinheiro shopping center, there would be less need for office and professional uses in the nearby North Redwood Boulevard area.

The council upheld Renati's appeal and if he meets all conditions, is slated to get the permit.

Merchants also have complained that the plan has limited growth in the downtown area and that only large companies with vast resources are able to locate there.

Mattson reported that of 74 new uses established in the area since the plan was adopted, only eight were chain or large corporate operations. In this period, 14 firms have gone out of business, he said.

Mattson said the downtown area has received "only a nominal amount" of new construction and "many attribute this to the downtown plan." But, he said, when one looks closely at the uses denied "because of incompatibility with the plan, this is not true."

Mattson listed seven uses determined inconsistent with the plan, including Renati's proposed store, which now is on its way to approval.

Jones said in two cases, better uses were developed — an office building instead of a doughnut shop and a retail store instead of a car wash at the Renati site.

Other uses denied were a car wash, Taco Bell restaurant and a grocery and drug store development at Diablo Avenue and South Novato Boulevard, which was opposed by residents as a duplication of existing stores, he said.

City Mgr. Charles A. Brown said reevaluation of some parts of the plan will be needed, but "for the sake of one or two areas, some have taken liberties and have condemned the whole thing."

Test Said Pornographic By Parents Of Freshmen

Your brother Little Freddy should have been there. Well anyway, they're perverts, and just think, we could have had the whole thing on film. C'est la guerre, pork chop. And that's not all! The Pillsbury Doughboy's sister, you know, the one you said looked like a rat, she did a striptease: took it all off except her kneesocks."

The letter, signed by a girl named Rachel who is appalled by the night's events, also mentions a bookcase which includes "The Cat in the Hat" and "The Sensuous Man," an encounter with a guitarist and a partygoer who passes out, apparently drunk.

The selection is followed by questions asking students to explain why the writer is composing the letter, what kind of person she is and what is known about the recipient.

"The whole thing is trash, jibberish," declared Noel Beringer of 10 Hawthorne Court, who said her 16-year-old daughter took the examination. "I'm not a Puritan, but I think that proper English should be taught in an English class."

Mrs. Beringer said she learned about the test when Ann M. Hughes of 127 Suffield Avenue, whose 14-year-old daughter also took the test, supplied her with a copy. Neither girl mentioned the examination at home, the parents said, adding it came to light when Mrs. Hughes found a copy among other papers in the girl's English file.

"This teacher is teaching immorality. First of all I feel the examination is evil. Her first selection is evil," said Mrs. Hughes. "I've never seen an English exam like this before in my life. I don't even like to discuss it," she said, adding she has prohibited her daughter from returning to the class, instead directing her to remain in the school library during English period.

Both women said they are backed by other concerned parents. They said they have received no satisfactory explanation of the worth or meaning of the examination from Drake or Tamalpais High School District officials.

"We're asking the school to clean tself up. One problem is the pornography and the other is the low quality," she said, adding that she will not allow her daughter to return to another English class until the school reveals what kind of examination was given to that class.

Instructor Elaine Johnson and Lorch, Drake's top educator, at first declined comment on the matter. "We do not discuss classroom assignments and examinations in the press," he declared.

Lorch told the Independent-Journal the examination was part of the English department's "discourse centered curriculum" which is aimed at reinforcing a student's increasing control over language. The first semester freshmen, added Mrs. Blickhahn, studies "voice," or the way in which language reveals the speaker, his attitude and notion of events.

Lorch said the examination was not immoral or pornographic and made no contribution to the delinquency of minors. "The voice of the author (in the exam) expresses moral condemnation" of the events at the party, he said.

Lorch said the selection has apparently caused a furor because it has been "taken out of context." The letter is merely one example of voice among hundreds that students have come in contact with throughout the year, he said. The administrator noted the examination includes other exercises in voice, including dialogue descriptions of the films "The African Queen" and "Gunga Din," an exercise asking students to clarify the nature of the speakers in a scene about the reunion of two lovers, and a creative writing selection requiring students to fill in missing dialogue.

Mrs. Blickhahn said she has discussed the examination and English program with Mrs. Hughes, as have other Drake officials, but was able to communicate little since the parent "has her mind made up" on the matter.

Lorch said he declined a request from Mrs. Hughes for prior approval of all assignments because parents are not allowed control over individual assignments. He said the Hughes girl was assigned to another English teacher last week and said he will allow Mrs. Hughes to review the examination given by that teacher.

Lorch, noting that parents have the option of turning to the ballot box and the school board, said Drake has an established grievance procedure whereby parents may talk to the teacher, department chairman, an assistant program coordinator and then himself.

The administrator said Drake officials are willing to talk to all parents who are concerned about the freshmen examination. Lorch, Superintendent Torrey, and district board chairman Corlett all expressed varying degrees of regret about the examination.

Lorch, who holds a doctorate in English, said he could see the worth of the test but regretted the flap it has created.

"I'm sorry the exam was given," said Torrey. "It's not one that I would use," he said, adding he did not know what the test was trying to accomplish or how the English Department intended to use the results.

"It's not the kind of exam that should be given in high school either to freshmen or to seniors," declared Corlett, adding he expected parents to bring the matter before the board.

Mrs. Hughes, meanwhile, declared that she "just wanted a moral environment for my child" with quality teaching aimed at helping youngsters pass college entrance examinations. Drake officials said senior students there do well on the "college board" tests.

Most oil-producing states oppose use of oil as a weapon in the campaign to force Israeli withdrawal from occupied Arab territory on grounds it would hurt the producing states financially more than it would hurt the consumers.

In Cairo, the newspaper Al Ahram said Palestinian guerrillas decided at a series of meetings in Damascus to step up its attacks on Israeli targets in revenge for the shooting.

An Egyptian government spokesman dismissed an Israeli statement that it will pay compensation to families of the victims.

"All that Israel says about forming an investigating committee or paying compensation to the families of the victims," a spokesman said, "are nothing but abortive attempts to cover up a bloody crime which was condemned by the whole world."

In its report, Al Ahram said the retaliation decision was taken at meetings under the chairmanship of Yasser Arafat, chief of the Palestine Liberation Organization (PLO).

Rain Brings Rash Of Accidents

Gusty winds and intermittent showers that wet down Marin and Southern Sonoma over the weekend settled down to steady light rain and gentle winds this morning.

There was no report of storm damage, but the California Highway Patrol and city police reported a rash of minor accidents in the commute rush this morning.

The most spectacular mishap was at about 8:30 a.m. when a soft-drink firm's large truck flipped on its side and down an embankment off the southbound lanes of Highway 101 near the 3-Rs School south of Northgate. No details on the accident were available this morning.

Federal weather forecasters said there is a 30 per cent chance of the rain continuing through tonight, and a 60 per cent chance of more rain tomorrow.

Sausalito firemen reported that the threatening slide in the 800 block of Bridgeway appeared relatively stable despite the rain's return after a relatively dry week. Workmen said yesterday they found a number of old bottles uncovered by the slide.

Rain watchers in Bolinas measured .18 of an inch for the 24 hours ending at 8 a.m. today; .12 of an inch yesterday and .71 of an inch Saturday morning. Petaluma had 49 of an inch for the 24 hours ending at 8 a.m. today, and Tiburon .45 of an inch. San Rafael rainfall was 1.29 inches iN9the 48 hours since Saturday noon.

The searchers on foot and horseback, hampered by washouts on fire trails, heavy brush and the rugged terrain, never got as far as where little Devon was found, Teague said.

It was men in one of two helicopters which had joined the search who finally sighted the child, set down on a nearby clearing and brought the child and the dog back to Forest Knolls.

"We would never have found him if he hadn't been wearing a red jacket," a sheriff's deputy said.

In Forest Knolls, the child was reunited with his parents, and the three were taken by ambulance, manned by off-duty personnel who had stood by, to Marin General Hospital.

The child, conscious but dazed and in shock, reportedly recovered sufficiently to ask for a longer ride in the helicopter.

At the hospital he was treated for exposure, scratches and scrapes before being released to his parents.

He was clad in a nylon jacket and long pants but had lost one of his tennis shoes during his ordeal.

As he was carried out of the hospital by his mother, Devon reportedly broke into tears for the first time and cried, "I want Moon."

Tough New Water Rules Eyed

I-J Special Report

OAKLAND — Proposed water pollution controls that Marin ranchers claim may drive them out of business will be reviewed by the Regional Water Quality Control Board tomorrow in Hayward.

The meeting starts at 10 a.m. in the Alameda County Public Works Building, 399 Elmhurst Street.

The controls were proposed last month by the State Water Resources Control Board, which is scheduled to adopt them on Thursday in its meeting in Los Angeles.

The state board proposed forcing ranchers to build ponds to hold all of the surface runoff from rainstorms to prevent stream pollution from livestock waste.

The regional board's staff will urge amendment of the proposal to provide for holding only the initial runoff, which carries the heaviest pollution. Diverting all runoff into ponds will leave no place for runoff from subsequent storms, the regional board's staff noted.

Also on the agenda is review of a subregional sewage system for Northern Marin and Southern Sonoma.

wrote that if Hahn wants to proceed with work immediately, "the only meanirgful a ternative at this time would be to revise the center's plans to preserve the existing water areas."

A "mitigation plan" under which wildlife areas eliminated by filling for the shopping center would be replaced on the Muzzi property closer to the bay has been jointly prepared by the Department of the Interior, the Town of Corte Madera, and Ernest Hahn's staff, said Col. Lammie.

But the Department of the Interior, according to Davoren, won't advise the Corps of Engineers on the fill application, until Corte Madera actually buys or condemns the Muzzi lands, or until its redevelopment project is under way and the town's general plan is revised.

Colonel Lammie said the Corps will hold a public hearing on Hahn's fill permit application after the Environmental Protection Agency has given its final comments on the Sedway Cooke environmental impact report.

The Corps's decision on granting the impact will be based on "an evaluation of the impact of the proposed work on the public interest," said Lammie.

Factors taken into consideration will be navigation, fish and wildlife, water quality, economics, conservation, aesthetics, recreation, water supply, flood damage prevention, ecosystem, and the needs and welfare of the people.

The Corte Madera Planning Commission's continued public hearing on the redevelopment report is set for tomorrow at 7:30 p.m. at San Clemente School.

CHARITY

day find himself in the same predicament as his hungry neighbor and he'd better throw him a piece of meat.

Charity has continued to be a mixture of man making certain that he himself will be cared for if he falls into need — often combined with a genuine concern for his fellow man.

Under the old Jewish law, there may have been grumbling but there wasn't much question of whether to give to charity or not. The rules, believed to be the carrying out of God's will, said it had to be done, and a corner of a man's field was left for the poor to harvest.

Jesus told his followers to feed the hungry, comfort the sick, clothe the naked and visit those in prison — but he didn't lay down any rules about how much money and how many hours to spend.

Later, when early communal Christianity was replaced with an established church, charity became for some people the way to make up for one's sins — the poor were cherished as a means for the fortunate to buy grace.

Then came Martin Luther, who saw pauperism as a criminal waste of manpower and who attacked the church for institutionalizing it. Luther believed alms giving unnecessary to obtain heavenly grace, and he further urged harsh treatment for those who did not work.

In this country, Americans have ascribed to various outlooks at various times about their less fortunate neighbors.

In 1889 the Red Cross was castigated editorially in a New York newspaper for encouraging "pauperism by giving out provisions and clothing to the more shiftless classes." The shiftless people referred to were victims of the Johnstown flood.

In the period before World War I, muckrakers and dogooders like Jane Addams, who founded Hull House in the Chicago slums, convinced many fellow Americans that sweatshops, poor housing, child labor and other such ills were dehumanizing blots on the American scene.

Later came the great Depression, which saw so many Americans overwhelmed by financial misfortune that large scale governmental help finally was approved.

Tax-supported relief of various kinds came about "not because people preferred this system but because the problem became so monumental the private sector could no longer take care of it," Miss Presley said.

In California, there has been a gradual but continuing increase in the types of unfortunates helped at public expense.

Aid to orphans started in the 1800s, Miss Presley said; later "half" orphans were included. Still later children whose fathers were in tuberculosis sanitariums or jail could receive aid, and in the 1930's and 1940's, "we got very liberal and included kids whos fathers' whereabouts had been unknown for three years," Miss Presley said.

Aid for poor old people started in the 1920's and '30's, she said, and in recent years, agencies began granting welfare to some intact families.

During the 22 years Miss Presley has headed the Marin welfare department, she has seen a considerable shift in public opinion toward the poor.

"Twenty years ago, people remembered the Depression. Today there are fewer who remember. Now we're getting back to the notion that 'anybody can make it,'" she said.

"There are lots of people in real need in Marin County, and I don't think we deal with them," said Marion Kelley, director of the Marin Volunteer Bureau.

She called the efforts of all private charitable organizations in the county "peanuts." The Salvation Army, Red Cross, churches and other charitable agencies simply don't have the money to make any real difference in the poverty picture.

Rev. Thomas I. Kennedy, pastor of St. Raphael's Church in San Rafael, a big parish which probably gives the most money to the poor of any church in the county, agreed with Msgr. Kelley.

"Our efforts are only Band-Aids," he said.

the price would average about $1,000 an acre. Park service spokesmen stressed that other costs, such as relocating property owners, also would have to come out of the funds.

They also emphasized that other property owners may be involved in initial negotiations.

Mailliard's office reported that $4 million of the $5.9 million came from surpluses left from the $57.5 million appropriated for the national Seashore. The park service said probably none of the $4 million will ne needed to complete purchases for the seashore.

The 1972 law creating the recreation area set a limit of $61,610,000 for land acquisition. Mailliard's staff said that the $5.9 million appropriation had the approval of the Office of Management and Budget. "If it's approved by the OMB, it's in the budget," a spokesman for the congressman said.

The budget is supposed to be approved by Congress before July, but passage often stretches beyond summer.

A park service spokesman optimistically predicted the $61.6 million limit will be sufficient to allow purchase of all the private holdings within three years.

The rest of the 34,000-acre recreation area is federal, state and county land. The area stretches along the ocean from the San Mateo-San Francisco line north to the seashore, and includes Alcatraz and Angel Islands. Acording to the state it will continue to operate Angel Island.

The administration's proposed budget, as reported previously, also includes $2.5 million to start opening to the public the federa, state and county lands.

The recreation area bill also authorized $58 million for development of public recreation facilities, but none of it was sought by the park service in the budget.

North Vietnamese uniforms and pelted five Communists with rocks, wood and bits of pottery. At Da Nang, some 30 miles to the south, about 300 persons demonstrated at the JMC regional headquarters. Nearly 100 of these broke into the compound and headed for the North Vietnamese area, hurling stones, but were halted by South Vietnamese police.

(The Washington Post today quoted an official spokesman for the North Vietnamese delegation in Saigon as saying "everything is prepared" for new POW release. The spokesman set no date indicating an incident involving the injury of North Vietnamese JMC members at Hue might cause a delay.)

So far 163 American POWs have been released by the Communists since the ceasefire and all have returned to the United States. Another 430 prisoners are known to be held in Communist camps.

Test Said Pornographic By Parents Of Freshmen

Your brother Little Freddy should have been there. Well anyway, they're perverts, and just think, we could have had the whole thing on film. C'est la guerre, pork chop. And that's not all! The Pillsbury Doughboy's sister, you know, the one you said looked like a rat, she did a striptease: took it all off except her kneesocks."

The letter, signed by a girl named Rachel who is appalled by the night's events, also mentions a bookcase which includes "The Cat in the Hat" and "The Sensuous Man," an encounter with a guitarist and a partygoer who passes out, apparently drunk.

The selection is followed by questions asking students to explain why the writer is composing the letter, what kind of person she is and what is known about the recipient.

"The whole thing is trash, jibberish," declared Noel Beringer of 10 Hawthorne Court, who said her 16-year-old daughter took the examination. "I'm not a Puritan, but I think that proper English should be taught in an English class."

Mrs. Beringer said she learned about the test when Ann M. Hughes of 127 Suffield Avenue, whose 14-year-old daughter also took the test, supplied her with a copy. Neither girl mentioned the examination at home, the parents said, adding it came to light when Mrs. Hughes found a copy among other papers in the girl's English file.

"This teacher is teaching immorality. First of all I feel the examination is evil. Her first selection is evil," said Mrs. Hughes. "I've never seen an English exam like this before in my life. I don't even like to discuss it," she said, adding she has prohibited her daughter from returning to the class, instead directing her to remain in the school library during English period.

Both women said they are backed by other concerned parents. They said they have received no satisfactory explanation of the worth or meaning of the examination from Drake or Tamalpais High School District officials.

"We're asking the school to clean tself up. One problem is the pornography and the other is the low quality," she said, adding that she will not allow her daughter to return to another English class until the school reveals what kind of examination was given to that class.

Instructor Elaine Johnson and Lorch, Drake's top educator, at first declined comment on the matter. "We do not discuss classroom assignments and examinations in the press," he declared.

Lorch told the Independent-Journal the examination was part of the English department's "discourse centered curriculum" which is aimed at reinforcing a student's increasing control over language. The first semester freshmen, added Mrs. Blickhahn, studies "voice," or the way in which language reveals the speaker, his attitude and notion of events.

Lorch said the examination was not immoral or pornographic and made no contribution to the delinquency of minors. "The voice of the author (in the exam) expresses moral condemnation" of the events at the party, he said.

Lorch said the selection has apparently caused a furor because it has been "taken out of context." The letter is merely one example of voice among hundreds that students have come in contact with throughout the year, he said. The administrator noted the examination includes other exercises in voice, including dialogue descriptions of the films "The African Queen" and "Gunga Din," an exercise asking students to clarify the nature of the speakers in a scene about the reunion of two lovers, and a creative writing selection requiring students to fill in missing dialogue.

Mrs. Blickhahn said she has discussed the examination and English program with Mrs. Hughes, as have other Drake officials, but was able to communicate little since the parent "has her mind made up" on the matter.

Lorch said he declined a request from Mrs. Hughes for prior approval of all assignments because parents are not allowed control over individual assignments. He said the Hughes girl was assigned to another English teacher last week and said he will allow Mrs. Hughes to review the examination given by that teacher.

Lorch, noting that parents have the option of turning to the ballot box and the school board, said Drake has an established grievance procedure whereby parents may talk to the teacher, department chairman, an assistant program coordinator and then himself.

The administrator said Drake officials are willing to talk to all parents who are concerned about the freshmen examination. Lorch, Superintendent Torrey, and district board chairman Corlett all expressed varying degrees of regret about the examination.

Lorch, who holds a doctorate in English, said he could see the worth of the test but regretted the flap it has created.

"I'm sorry the exam was given." said Torrey. "It's not one that I would use," he said, adding he did not know what the test was trying to accomplish or how the English Department intended to use the results.

"It's not the kind of exam that should be given in high school either to freshmen or to seniors," declared Corlett, adding he expected parents to bring the matter before the board.

Mrs. Hughes, meanwhile, declared that she "just wanted a moral environment for my child" with quality teaching aimed at helping youngsters pass college entrance examinations. Drake officials said senior students there do well on the "college board" tests.

Western and American industries."

—"Our oil is the future power for the United States for at least the coming 10 years, and without this power America falls down."

Most oil-producing states oppose use of oil as a weapon in the campaign to force Israeli withdrawal from occupied Arab territory on grounds it would hurt the producing states financially more than it would hurt the consumers.

In Cairo, the newspaper Al Ahram said Palestinian guerrillas decided at a series of meetings in Damascus to step up its attacks on Israeli targets in revenge for the shooting.

An Egyptian government spokesman dismissed an Israeli statement that it will pay compensation to families of the victims.

"All that Israel says about forming an investigating committee or paying compensation to the families of the victims," a spokesman said, "are nothing but abortive attempts to cover up a bloody crime which was condemned by the whole world."

In its report, Al Ahram said the retaliation decision was taken at meetings under the chairmanship of Yasser Arafat, chief of the Palestine Liberation Organization (PLO).

Rain Brings Rash Of Accidents

Gusty winds and intermittent showers that wet down Marin and Southern Sonoma over the weekend settled down to steady light rain and gentle winds this morning.

There was no report of storm damage, but the California Highway Patrol and city police reported a rash of minor accidents in the commute rush this morning.

The most spectacular mishap was at about 8:30 a.m. when a soft-drink firm's large truck flipped on its side and down an embankment off the southbound lanes of Highway 101 near the 3-Rs School south of Northgate. No details on the accident were available this morning.

Federal weather forecasters said there is a 30 per cent chance of the rain continuing through tonight, and a 60 per cent chance of more rain tomorrow.

Sausalito firemen reported that the threatening slide in the 800 block of Bridgeway appeared relatively stable despite the rain's return after a relatively dry week. Workmen said yesterday they found a number of old bottles uncovered by the slide.

Rain watchers in Bolinas measured .18 of an inch for the 24 hours ending at 8 a.m. today; .12 of an inch yesterday and .71 of an inch Saturday morning. Petaluma had 49 of an inch for the 24 hours ending at 8 a.m. today, and Tiburon .45 of an inch. San Rafael rainfall was 1.29 inches iN9the 48 hours since Saturday noon.

RESCUE

The searchers on foot and horseback, hampered by washouts on fire trails, heavy brush and the rugged terrain, never got as far as where little Devon was found, Teague said.

It was men in one of two helicopters which had joined the search who finally sighted the child, set down on a nearby clearing and brought the child and the dog back to Forest Knolls.

"We would never have found him if he hadn't been wearing a red jacket," a sheriff's deputy said.

In Forest Knolls, the child was reunited with his parents, and the three were taken by ambulance, manned by off-duty personnel who had stood by, to Marin General Hospital.

The child, conscious but dazed and in shock, reportedly recovered sufficiently to ask for a longer ride in the helicopter.

At the hospital he was treated for exposure, scratches and scrapes before being released to his parents.

He was clad in a nylon jacket and long pants but had lost one of his tennis shoes during his ordeal.

As he was carried out of the hospital by his mother, Devon reportedly broke into tears for the first time and cried, "I want Moon."

Tough New Water Rules Eyed

I-J Special Report

OAKLAND — Proposed water pollution controls that Marin ranchers claim may drive them out of business will be reviewed by the Regional Water Quality Control Board tomorrow in Hayward.

The meeting starts at 10 a.m. in the Alameda County Public Works Building, 399 Elmhurst Street.

The controls were proposed last month by the State Water Resources Control Board, which is scheduled to adopt them on Thursday in its meeting in Los Angeles.

The state board proposed forcing ranchers to build ponds to hold all of the surface runoff from rainstorms to prevent stream pollution from livestock waste.

The regional board's staff will urge amendment of the proposal to provide for holding only the initial runoff, which carries the heaviest pollution. Diverting all runoff into ponds will leave no place for runoff from subsequent storms, the regional board's staff noted.

Also on the agenda is review of a subregional sewage system for Northern Marin and Southern Sonoma.

wrote that if Hahn wants to proceed with work immediately, "the only meanirgful a ternative at this time would be to revise the center's plans to preserve the existing water areas."

A "mitigation plan" under which wildlife areas eliminated by filling for the shopping center would be replaced on the Muzzi property closer to the bay has been jointly prepared by the Department of the Interior, the Town of Corte Madera, and Ernest Hahn's staff, said Col. Lammie.

But the Department of the Interior, according to Davoren, won't advise the Corps of Engineers on the fill application, until Corte Madera actually buys or condemns the Muzzi lands, or until its redevelopment project is under way and the town's general plan is revised.

Colonel Lammie said the Corps will hold a public hearing on Hahn's fill permit application after the Environmental Protection Agency has given its final comments on the Sedway Cooke environmental impact report.

The Corps's decision on granting the impact will be based on "an evaluation of the impact of the proposed work on the public interest," said Lammie.

Factors taken into consideration will be navigation, fish and wildlife, water quality, economics, conservation, aesthetics, recreation, water supply, flood damage prevention, ecosystem, and the needs and welfare of the people.

The Corte Madera Planning Commission's continued public hearing on the redevelopment report is set for tomorrow at 7:30 p.m. at San Clemente School.

CHARITY

day find himself in the same predicament as his hungry neighbor and he'd better throw him a piece of meat.

Charity has continued to be a mixture of man making certain that he himself will be cared for if he falls into need — often combined with a genuine concern for his fellow man.

Under the old Jewish law, there may have been grumbling but there wasn't much question of whether to give to charity or not. The rules, believed to be the carrying out of God's will, said it had to be done, and a corner of a man's field was left for the poor to harvest.

Jesus told his followers to feed the hungry, comfort the sick, clothe the naked and visit those in prison — but he didn't lay down any rules about how much money and how many hours to spend.

Later, when early communal Christianity was replaced with an established church, charity became for some people the way to make up for one's sins — the poor were cherished as a means for the fortunate to buy grace.

Then came Martin Luther, who saw pauperism as a criminal waste of manpower and who attacked the church for institutionalizing it. Luther believed alms giving unnecessary to obtain heavenly grace, and he further urged harsh treatment for those who did not work.

In this country, Americans have ascribed to various outlooks at various times about their less fortunate neighbors.

In 1889 the Red Cross was castigated editorially in a New York newspaper for encouraging "pauperism by giving out provisions and clothing to the more shiftless classes." The shiftless people referred to were victims of the Johnstown flood.

In the period before World War I, muckrakers and dogooders like Jane Addams, who founded Hull House in the Chicago slums, convinced many fellow Americans hat sweatshops, poor housing, child labor and other such ills were dehumanizing blots on the American scene.

Later came the great Depression, which saw so many Americans overwhelmed by financial misfortune that large sc le governmental help finally w s approved.

Tax-supported relief o various kinds came about "not because people preferred this system but because the problem became so monum ntal the private sector could no longer take care of it," Miss Presley said.

In California, there has been a gradual but continuing increase in the types of unfortunates helped at public expense.

Aid to orphans started in the 1800s, Miss Presley said; later "half" orphans were included. Still later children whose fathers were in tuberculosis sanitariums or jail could receive aid, and in the 1930's and 1940's, "we got very liberal and included kids whos fathers' whereabouts had been unknown for three years," Miss Presley said.

Aid for poor old people started in the 1920's and '30's, she said, and in recent years, agencies began granting welfare to some intact families.

During the 22 years Miss Presley has headed the Marin welfare department, she has seen a considerable shift in public opinion toward the poor.

"Twenty years ago, people remembered the Depression. Today there are fewer who remember. Now we're getting back to the notion that 'anybody can make it,'" she said.

"There are lots of people in real need in Marin County, and I don't think we deal with them," said Marion Kelley, director of the Marin Volunteer Bureau.

She called the efforts of all private charitable organizations in the county "peanuts." The Salvation Army, Red Cross, churches and other charitable agencies simply don't have the money to make any real difference in the poverty picture.

Rev. Thomas I. Kennedy, pastor of St. Raphael's Church in San Rafael, a big parish which probably gives the most money to the poor of any church in the county, agreed with Msgr. Kelley.

"Our efforts are only Band-Aids," he said.

She is also survived by a son, Richard Braden of Pleasanton; a daughter, Karen Heisel of Missouri; two sisters, Jessie Andresen of Sebastopol and Marie Cerri of Santa Rosa; a brother, Art Schmidt of San Francisco, and three grandchildren.

Private inurnment was at Santa Rosa Memorial Park. The family prefers contributions to the McGinnis Memorial Fund at the Cotati branch of Exchange Bank.

ROBERT J. HARRIGAN

Mass of the Resurrection for Robert J. Harrigan, longtime Marin resident who died Friday in a local hospital after a short illness, will be at 11 a.m. tomorrow at St. Raphael's Church in San Rafael.

Harrigan, 62, was a teamster for 23 years, last working for the Larkspur Lumber Co. Before that, he was plant manager for the Coca Cola Bottling Co. in San Rafael.

He was a member of the Teamsters, Warehouseman and Helpers Union, Local 624.

Harrigan was born in San Francisco but had lived in Marin about 45 years.

In addition to his wife, he is survived by a sister, Mrs. Anita Ongaro of San Rafael, and a brother, William L. Harrigan of San Anselmo.

The Rosary will be recited at 8 p.m. today at Harry M. Williams Mortuary in San Rafael. Entombment will be in Mount Olivet Cemetery.

AGNES BAKER

Private funeral for Agnes C. Baker has been held in Mill Valley.

Mrs. Baker, 80, died Thursday at her home at 26 Country Club Drive, Mill Valley, apparently of a heart attack.

She was born in Scotland and moved to Canada in 1924, later living in New York City. Her husband, the late Merrill G. Baker, was a colonel in the Army during World War I. He was employed in the steel business until he retired.

She is survived by two sisters, Jessie Crichton of Mill Valley and Nan Roach of Long Island and a brother, Donald Crichton of Scotland.

the price would average about $1,000 an acre. Park service spokesmen stressed that other costs, such as relocating property owners, also would have to come out of the funds.

They also emphasized that other property owners may be involved in initial negotiations.

Mailliard's office reported that $4 million of the $5.9 million came from surpluses left from the $57.5 million appropriated for the national Seashore. The park service said probably none of the $4 million will ne needed to complete purchases for the seashore.

The 1972 law creating the recreation area set a limit of $61,610,000 for land acquisition. Mailliard's staff said that the $5.9 million appropriation had the approval of the Office of Management and Budget. "If it's approved by the OMB, it's in the budget," a spokesman for the congressman said.

The budget is supposed to be approved by Congress before July, but passage often stretches beyond summer.

A park service spokesman optimistically predicted the $61.6 million limit will be sufficient to allow purchase of all the private holdings within three years.

The rest of the 34,000-acre recreation area is federal, state and county land. The area stretches along the ocean from the San Mateo-San Francisco line north to the seashore, and includes Alcatraz and Angel Islands. Acording to the state it will continue to operate Angel Island.

The administration's proposed budget, as reported previously, also includes $2.5 million to start opening to the public the federa, state and county lands.

The recreation area bill also authorized $58 million for development of public recreation facilities, but none of it was sought by the park service in the budget.

POWS

North Vietnamese uniforms and pelted five Communists with rocks, wood and bits of pottery. At Da Nang, some 30 miles to the south, about 300 persons demonstrated at the JMC regional headquarters. Nearly 100 of these broke into the compound and headed for the North Vietnamese area, hurling stones, but were halted by South Vietnamese police.

(The Washington Post today quoted an official spokesman for the North Vietnamese delegation in Saigon as saying "everything is prepared" for new POW release. The spokesman set no date indicating an incident involving the injury of North Vietnamese JMC members at Hue might cause a delay.)

So far 163 American POWs have been released by the Communists since the ceasefire and all have returned to the United States. Another 430 prisoners are known to be held in Communist camps.

Services Pact Before Board

The Marin Hospital District Board will be asked to approve an agreement between Marin General Hospital and the County of Marin for in-patient psychiatric services at its meeting tomorrow at 7 p.m. in the coral room of Marin General.

High Court Sticks To Abortion Stand

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The Supreme Court directed lower federal courts today to rule on the constitutionality of nine state anti-abortion laws in the light of the Court's controversial decision on the issue five weeks ago.

The action came as the justices refused to reconsider their Jan. 22 ruling against Texas and Georgia laws. This was seen as invalidating abortion statutes in most states.

Technically, the Court sent the nine cases back to the federal district court level for reconsideration, but the latter will have to apply the yardstick set forth in the Georgia and Texas opinions. This barred states from interfering with abortions during a woman's first three months of pregnancy and sharply limited their powers to regulate them for the final six months.

In other actions:

—The Court let stand a lower federal court ruling which struck down broad segments of the Texas vagrancy law as unconstitutional.

—The justices refused to consider a claim by four suburban Detroit school districts that they should be exempt from a broad busing program unless a finding is made against them that they are practicing school segregation.

—Justice William J. Brennan refused to order bail set for the two leaders of the Philadelphia teachers' strike. Frank Sullivan, president of the teachers union, and John Ryan, its chief negotiator, are being held in jail part-time on contempt of court action for failing to end the strike.

Marin City Session

The Marin City Council will hold a special meeting to discuss problems of public housing at Marin City at 8 p.m. today at Manzanita Center.

Wage Rules Said Same As Phase II

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The administration said today wage standards for the economy as a whole during Phase III of the government's economic stabilization program would be no different than they were during Phase II.

Treasury Secretary George P. Shultz also said a special committee would be established to help hold down wage increases in the inflation-prone food industry.

Shultz and Director John T. Dunlop of the Cost of Living Council made public a statement by the 10-member labor-management advisory committee set up to define "responsible wage behavior" under the largely voluntary wage-price guidelines of the Phase III stabilization program.

The committee, which includes AFL-CIO President George Meany, called for "continuing stabilization in the average rate of wage and benefit increases (total compensation per man hour) in 1973 compared to 1972 so as to be consistent with the goal set by the President of getting the rate of inflation down to 2.5 per cent or less by the end of the year."

In aiming for this target, Dunlop said, "wage and price standards that existed in Phase II continue in effect as they have been."

There was no mention in the statement of the 5.5 per cent Phase II standard for wage increases and both Dunlop and Shultz, without mentioning the figure, denied that it had been scrapped.

Labor sources in Miami Beach, where the AFL-CIO executive council was winding up its midwinter meeting today, had said the advisory committee was recommending abandonment of the 5.5 per cent limit.

Cash Taken

An undetermined amount of postage stamps and about $100 cash was taken from a cash box at Don Timoteo School, 39 Trellis Street, San Rafael, over the weekend by thieves who forced a window in the facility's main office, police said today.

Two Accused Of Violating Packing Law

I-J Special Report

WASHINGTON, D.C. — A Petaluma livestock dealer and Santa Clara meatpacker have been charged in a joint government complaint with violating the Packers and Stockyards Act, the U.S. Department of Agriculture announced Saturday.

The department's Packers and Stockyards Administration alleged that dealer Manuel G. Brazil and San Jose Valley Veal, Inc., have violated fair trade practice, conflict of interest and payment requirements of the act.

The complaint says that Brazil has maintained management and ownership interests in the meatpacking firm although such relationships are prohibited between a packer and dealer.

In the same complaint San Jose Valley Veal is charged with acting through Brazil to restrict competition in buying calves. The complaint says that the packing firm's buyer refrained from bidding against a major competitor, Tony G. Brazil, at livestock markets.

Health Council Asks Budget Of $63,023

The Marin County Comprehensive Health Planning Council has recommended adoption of a $63,023 budget for fiscal 1973-74, about $5,000 more than the current spending program.

Of the total, about $41,000 is recommended for salaries and fringe benefits if a clerical position is added to he current staff of two.

Included in that figure is a $2,000 (14 per cent) hike in the present $15,432 salary of executive director Joan M. Ripple.

The budget estimates about $20,000 in revenue from the federal goernment with the rest coming from local taxes.

According to Miss Ripple, next year's budget proposes greater community involvement in the field of health planning.

Local advisory councils will be formed throughout Marin to help determine what health care services are needed in various areas of the county.

The proposed budget will be considered by county supervisors during June budget hearings.

Tam Cars Returned To Lessors

Cars for the superintendent and his assistant, fringe benefits for top administrators of the Tamalpais High School District for years, have been cut out.

One of the first acts of Robert D. Torrey, named acting superintendent after the forced resignation of Supt. Wilber D. Hawkins last month was to kill the fringe benefit.

Torrey sent Hawkins' late model car — leased by the district for $105 a month — back to the lessors, and turned his own 1965 model into the district motor pool.

The other two employees with district cars, Oliver (Skip) Bonner, director of maintenance, and Marvin Kattner, supervisor of custodians, will retain their vehicles because they're on 24-hour emergency call.

The superintendent of the District has been assigned a car for the last 15 years, his assistant has had one for 10 years.

Man Arrested For Petty Theft

A Novato man was arrested after a foot chase early today, when Novato police officers reported they saw him trying to carry away a park-type bench from in front of the Greyhound bus depot on Highway 101.

Dennis Joseph McCormick, 31, of 761 Franklin Avenue, said he thought the bench would "look tasty in my house," officers reported after he was halted in a nearby alley, at 12:30 a.m.

McCormick was booked into Marin County Jail on suspicion of petty theft, then released on his own recognizance to appear in Marin Municipal Court today.

Joint Meeting Is Set Wednesday

The Novato City Council and Novato Unified School District board will meet in breakfast session at 7:30 a.m. Wednesday at the Alvarado Inn, Ignacio, to discuss coordination matters.

The meeting originally was scheduled for Tuesday morning.

THE CENTER BATTLE

Only One Will Emerge Winner

By PATRICIA PERRY

Ladies and Gentlemen: Presenting to you the contenders for the Regional Shopping Center Championship of Marin County.

On the right, the Town of Corte Madera — fighting fit with a population of 8,644, a current tax rate of $1.72 per $100 assessed valuation, and weighing in with a 76-acre site east of Highway 101.

Only one contender can win.

Last week's announcement that Larkspur, like Corte Madera, intends to support a major regional shopping center by redevelopment activities marked the beginning of a rematch between the two cities. Corte Madera was previously declared a winner by a technical knockout when a major developer revealed his plans for that city.

And if the spectacle of the Twin Cities battling it out seems to anyone like a lightweight contest, it should be remembered that many, many millions of dollars are at stake.

Dollars for the developers. Dollars for the stores. And dollars, welcome dollars, in sales taxes and property taxes to offset spiraling tax rates in one community or the other.

The fight promises to match an earlier contest between the two cities for the site of the Golden Gate Bridge District's Central Marin Ferry Terminal, a figh won last spring by Larkspur.

Corte Madera first entered the latest contest publicly in September 1971, when the council changed the zoning of the 76-acre site for a regional shopping center. In February last year, the council set itself up as a redevelopment agency to finance site improvements.

Larkspur was a comparatively late starter, when in March last year the city council endorsed a tentative plan for a major regional "fashion mall" on the Bon Air site, later setting up as a redevelopment agency.

Yet while Corte Madera continued to make public announcement of progress in its shopping center plans, Larkspur worked in carefully guarded secrecy. In such secrecy, in fact, that when the names of tenants signed up for the Corte Madera project were announced Feb. 7, Larkspur was counted out by most observers, unaware that city was continuing its effort.

Ernest W. Hahn Inc., of Hawthorne, plans to build a center on the Corte Madera site, and has said four major tenants will be Penneys, Macy's, Montgmery Wards and Bullocks.

The Rouse Co. of Maryland and Ted Connolly of Oakland plan to build a center on the Bon Air site next to the existing Bon Air Center. Three major department stores will locate there, said the developers, while declining to name them.

Larkspur's mayor, attorney William G. Fleckles, estimates the Bon Air proposal — the Larkspur-Greenbrae Mall — would bring in between $500,000 and $800,000 annually in sales tax revenues for Larkspur, compared to its present sales tax revenue of $130,000 annually.

Corte Madra's mayor, engineer Holmes S. (Pete) Norville, estimates the Hahn center — the Marin Mall — would produce more in sales and property tax revenues than the entire present town income. Consultants estimate that between 1975 and 1980 Corte Madera would receive $2,794,000 in sales taxes alone.

"You have to look at the tax picture when considering the shopping center proposal," said Mayor Norville. "Fifteen years ago we had the newest biggest shopping center in Marin (the existing Corte Madear Center) and together with our automobile agencies this gave us a sales tax which far exceeded the amount of property tax paid by the citizens."

This happy situation has deteriorated over the years, said the mayor; in fiscal 1969-70, sales tax represented 31.5 per cent of town revenue, with property tax at 20.2 per cent.

This fiscal year property tax makes up 32 per cent of town income, with sales tax bringing in only 28 per cent.

"I'm kind of ignoring it personally," said Mayor Norville, "I don't think there is anything to be gained in blatant rivalry, it doesn't behoove us to fight that way with our neighbors."

But he added, solemnly: "I think basically we have a better location, and we are also a year ahead with our planning. The facts are Hahn has four major stores signed up. Larkspur's center doesn't have any signed up."

And Fleckles attacked Corte Madera's site, while extolling the virtues of his city's.

"The Corte Madera site is going to be detrimental to the merchants of the Corte Madera Center," he claimed, "and the Larkspur property can be developed more attractively with a shoreline park arrangement along Corte Madera Creek without substantial and costly highway improvements."

Firing a preliminary salvo at his neighbors, Mayor Fleckles repeated that Larkspur will oppose any extension of Williams Avenue (advocated in the environmental impact report on Corte Madera's redevelopment project.)

Fleckles also said he thinks the amount of piling and fill required for the Hahn site would be "phenomenal," while the Larkspur location won't require preparation — "it's tabletop level," he said proudly.

And the mayor capped his dim view of the Corte Madera proposal with the comment: "I think it's a very raw weather area out there on the marshland."

Everyone involved in the rival developments concedes that only one shopping center will go. Marin County could not possibly support two more regional shopping centers, say all.

"But it really isn't a race between the two cities," said Fleckles. "The key is economics. The tenants of a shopping center dictate terms. The one that's going to win is the developer that's able to present to the major tenants the finished package."

Corte Madera's proposal ostensibly is further advanced, since Hahn has designs and plans drawn, and is ready to build. However, he's hung up on a fill permit application to the Army Corps of Enginers, an application opposed by the Environmental Protection Agency. The Corte Madera site needs a million cubic yards of fill placed on the marshland, which will take a year to settle.

Larkspur's proposal hasn't yet entered the design stage, and the city's redevelopment agency isn't as formally organized as Corte Madera's. The developers plan to start building late 1974.

At this stage, it looks like neck-and-neck down to the finish lines.

An ironic element in the contest is that rivalry between the Twin Cities would not, could not, have existed in 1973 if plans to merge both communities in the 1950's had succeeded.

In the early 1950s, the mayors, George Leftwich of Larkspur and Don O'Neil of Corte Madera, proposed a merger of their cities, but they got little support.

Then the idea popped up again in 1957, when Roger Morse, a Corte Madera town councilman, proposed the twin cities undertake joint operation of police, fire, building and street departments.

Councilmen of both cities agreed to spend $2,500 on a study on unification — which produced a glowing report disclosing that a single city could operate with a tax rate lower than either's.

A citizen committee appointed by the two councils proposed to put the merger to a vote of the people in April 1959. But Corte Madera became reluctant because Larkspur was larger, and would thus be the consolidating city; a reluctance heightened when Corte Madera began getting increased sales tax revenues from the Corte Madera Center.

It had been proposed that the name of the new merged city would be Tamalpais — although some irreverent residents preferred the title Corte Malarkey.

Plus the annual joint Fourth of July celebrations. In 1972 there were no fireworks . . . this year, there may well be fireworks of a different variety.

EXISTING CENTER — The existing Corte Madera Center faces Highway 101 from the west. As might be expected, its owners, Capital Planning Associates, oppose plans to build a new shopping center across the highway, but it has been stated That Penney's and Ward's intend to move out anyway.

THE CENTER BATTLE

Only One Will Emerge Winner

By PATRICIA PERRY

Ladies and Gentlemen: Presenting to you the contenders for the Regional Shopping Center Championship of Marin County.

On the right, the Town of Corte Madera — fighting fit with a population of 8,644, a current tax rate of $1.72 per $100 assessed valuation, and weighing in with a 76-acre site east of Highway 101.

Only one contender can win.

Last week's announcement that Larkspur, like Corte Madera, intends to support a major regional shopping center by redevelopment activities marked the beginning of a rematch between the two cities. Corte Madera was previously declared a winner by a technical knockout when a major developer revealed his plans for that city.

And if the spectacle of the Twin Cities battling it out seems to anyone like a lightweight contest, it should be remembered that many, many millions of dollars are at stake.

AIR AND GROUND SEARCH

VOLUNTEER — Staff Sgt. David Manwiller of Hamilton Air Force Base studies a photo and description of 2 year-old Devon Bridler, taped to a sheriff's patrol car window. He then joined in the search for the child, who was finally sighted from a helicopter, lying on a clearing in West Marin.

$19,200 Donated In Heart Drive

Heart Sunday contributions from residents of Marin yesterday totaled $19,200 not counting gifts still anticipated, according to the Marin County Heart Association.

The amount turned in by 11 p.m. at Bank of Marin in San Rafael was $1,200 more than collected last year on Heart Sunday.

Spring weather found many residents away from home. Mail-in envelopes were left and it is expected the "not-at-home" donations will swell Heart contributions during the next week to 10 days, according to Donald G. Reuter, Association director.

Yet to report are some areas in West Marin, parts of San Rafael and Southern Marin.

Close to 2,500 volunteers worked yesterday as in past years. The one-day solicitation benefits the month long Heart Fund Campaign held each year during month of February. The contributions collected will be used for research, education and local community programs aimed at reducing death and disability from heart and blood vessel diseases.

Suspicious Auto Nets Three Arrests

Sheriff's deputies checking a suspicious parked car on Shoreline Highway last night arrested its three occupants on a variety of charges, including possession of a concealed weapon and possession of marijuana and narcotics paraphernalia, according to Marin City substation reports.

Deputies reported they smelled marijuana smoke when they checked the car, shortly after 8 p.m.

Michael Andrew Shannon, 29, of no fixed address, was booked into Marin County Jail on suspicion of having narcotics paraphernalia and of being in a place where narcotics was being used, as well as for $372 in outstanding traffic warrants. He was held in jail in lieu of a total of $622 bail, to appear today in Marin Municipal Court.

Jeffrey Edward Martin, 20, of 303 Montford Avenue, Mill Valley, was booked on suspicion of carrying a concealed .25-caliber automatic pistol, concealing stolen property, possession of marijuana and paraphernalia and being in a place where narcotics was used. He posted $2,500 bail and is to appear Friday in Marin Municipal Court.

Stephen John Roll, 20, of 965 Magnolia Avenue, Apt. 21, Larkspur, was booked on suspicion of marijuana and paraphernalia possession and being in a place where marijuana was used. He also posted $2,500 bail and is to appear in court Friday.

Moratorium On Agenda

The Larkspur Planning Commission will discuss a proposed building moratorium on the area north of Skylark Drive at its meeting tomorrow at 8 o'clock at city hall.

The area isn't in the Northridge Open Space Plan, but a moratorium has been suggested to commissioners to preserve the high land.

Commissioners also will work on architectural supervision applications for condominiums on Larkspur Plaza and apartments on South Eliseo Drive.

Soprano Flaws Are Overcome

By MARTIN FRICK

Last night, the Coffee Concert Series at Dominican College presented Carolyn Caton in a recital of songs from Bach to Barber which highlighted the soprano's big voice and great presence as well as some vocal distortions and contortions.

The first section of songs by Mozart, Faure and Ravel were flawed by frequent flatting, and in addition the Ravel songs require a much straighter tone than Mrs. Caton's vibrato would allow.

But in the lovely Bach aria "Sweet Delight" which followed, the soprano's exquisite phrasing drew our ears away from the faulty intonation. In this, she was ably assisted by Laurel Elkjer on the flute and Phyllis Murphy at the piano.

Mrs. Murphy was a most sympathetic accompanist throughout the recital, from the technically difficult Ravel song "Tout gai" to the sensitive Samuel Barber song cycle "Despite and Still" composed in 1969. These songs, with texts by a variety of poets, include a wide range of imagery which Mrs. Caton's admirable diction served well.

Likewise, the dramatic intensity which the soprano brought to the group of Spanish songs by Fernando Obradors spilled over here, especially in "Solitary Hotel" from James Joyce's "Ulysses."

The recital closed with Schubert's lilting "Shepherd on the Rock," which Mrs. Caton sang both to the small, attentive audience in Caleruega Hall and to her clarinetist, Wayne Ellerman, whose perfect control and pitch inspired the soprano to deliver her most beautiful notes of the evening.

A TREE TO HOLD A HILLSIDE

This liquid amber being planted by Alan Harobin (left), Phillip Johnson (center) and Alan Harobin Sr. is intended to do more than beautify the hillside behind Laurel Dell School in San Rafael. It's one of seven trees planted Sunday by parents who hope they will secure the hillside and prevent further erosion. About 85 parents and children turned out for the parent-financed project supervised by Harobin, park superintendent of the Marinwood Community Services District. Four black maples and three liquid ambers were planted.

Concert By Bach-To-Mozart Group Is Highly Successful

By VERA M. OLMSTED

A near-capacity crowd of Marinites enjoyed another one of the Bach-to-Mozart Group's highly successful chamber concerts last night in the Del Mar School Auditorium in Tiburon.

Raymond Duste, founder of the group, plays an important part in establishing and keeping an informal and sociable mood between performers and audience. This group of musicians comes across as eager to share its music making with others, without the formality present in a concert hall.

Several of the evening's works were particularly outstanding in performance. The first of these was the Quartet in D Minor, Op. 76, No. 2, by Franz Joseph Haydn, father of the string quartet. This piece is a little jewel, the product of his mature years.

The quartet begins with a four-note theme of descending fifths which gives the work its nickname, "Quinten." The ensemble played strongly and firmly, taking great care to bring out the texture and dynamics.

The inner voices were well defined by Donna Salarpi, second violin, and Asbjorn Finess, viola. Teresa Adams played the cello sensitively, as she did in the other works that evening. William Pynchon, first violin, gave firm direction to the ensemble. The violin part is quite prominent and Pynchon played well technically, although he had some difficulties with intonation, particularly in the last movement.

Also highly successful was Bass Robert Bernard's fine interpretation of Osmin's aria, "Oh, wie will ich triumphieren," from Mozart's comic opera, "The Abduction from the Seraglio." The vain and lascivious Osmin is one of Mozart's great characters, and Bernard was able to project the humor of the role with his facial expressions and body movements. Bernard has a very pleasing voice and his low notes were secure and carried well.

Another favorite work on the evening's program was the Brandenburg Concerto No. 5 by J. S. Bach. Although the solo instruments are specified as flute, violin and harpsichord, the harpsichord part is so important that this is in effect a harpsichord concerto.

Erika Matthes played with admirable dexterity, setting a pace that never lagged, though this caused some rushing in the famous first movement cadenza. She used a one manual, pedal instrument, and intelligently varied the registration according to the music and the needs of the small ensemble which accompanied her.

There were times when violinist Pynchon and flutist Walter Subke did not project enough, and their melodic line could not be heard clearly.

Soprano Marie Gibson was most effective in her duet with Robert Bernard, "Mein Freund ist mein" from Bach's Cantata No. 140. Her tone was rich and polished, and the beautiful melodic line was carefully articulated.

Other works heard included two Bach arias and two concertos by J. F. Fasch and Tomaso Albiononi. These pieces had some good performances by Edward Haug, trumpet, and Eleanor Duste, oboe.

This was the Third Concert of the Candlelight Chamber Music Series. The next program features the Czech Nonet from Czechoslovakia on April 1, 8 P.M., in the Del Mar School Auditorium, Tiburon.

Library Opposes Meeting Idea

The council Tuesday considered converting its present chambers to office space and moving, but, according to board secretary Jean Downs, the library may need its basement meeting area for book sorting and other library functions in the future.

The library board also opposed merger with the Marin County library system and formation of a special library district.

'Cactus Flower' Is Funny, Well Cast

By KAY KSANDA

What does an office nurse do when her impression on men is likened to a "large Band-Aid," and her employer uses her as camouflage, pretending she is his wife to foil romantic attachments?

The answer is provided in the well-known comedy, "Cactus Flower," a three act-play that opened this weekend at the Novato Community Theater. (Repeating only next Friday and Saturday at 8:30 p.m.)

Although this isn't the most common situation in a dentist's office, it makes for a funny situation with enough froth and clean lines to make it all right for children.

Written by old-time radio and television scriptwriter Abe Burrows, the story is about a swinging dentist who protects his bachelor status by pretending to be married. His nurse has the personality of a cactus, his girlfriend is more like a passion flower, and his best friend, Harvey, is a freeloading sponge.

With such a group, he's his own worst enemy. His chief problem is catching up with his own lies. When he isn't drilling, he's plotting his romantic strategy and discounting his nurse. He sees her as a frigid spinster with a hatred of men, particularly Harvey.

"No one," she snaps, "needs a reason for hating Harvey!"

It's a funny show, with a fast pace and good casting. New to the Novato stage is Bernel Flath as the dentist. With his acting background in the "interplayers" and this year's production of Shakespeare's "Henry the Fifth," he brings a special kind of energy to comedy and a clearly defined characterization to his part. His prissy, dignified lover is particulary comic.

Jackie Proett, as the nurse, is a very sharp sardonic lady, and Gene Vasco, as Harvey, is the perfect sponge. Sandy Trinka plays the part of the ingenue more matter-of-fact than madcap.

Loren Roberts, as Igor, her handsome neighbor, is also a good "straight man," leaving lots of/area for the rest of the cast to be very funny. Both Gail Frank and Kathryn McLaughlin get a lot of mileage out of their small roles as Harvey's girl friend, and the doctor's patient. Gale Nims, as Senior Sanchez, philanderer-Spanish-style, was well cast and well played.

"CACTUS FLOWER" — A three-act play by Abe Burrows. Presented by the Novato Community Players. Produced by John and Jackie Bonner. Directed by Shirley Nilsen; Lighting, John Prohaska and Caryl Yaudes; set Bob Marchant; costumes, Claudia Bliss; props, Gwen Wright and Kathryn McLaughlin; sound, John Prohaska. Cast: Toni Simmons, Sandy Trinka; Igor Sullivan, Loren Roberts; Stephanie Dickinson, Jackie Proett; Mrs. Dixon Durant, Kathryn McLaughlin; Harvey Greenfield, Gene Vasco; Dr. Julian Winston, Bernel Flath; Senior Arturo Sanchez, Gale Nims; Boticelli's Springtime, Gail Frank; Waiter, Al Wright; Customer, John Bonner.

Tympanist Entertains Children At Concert

By SYLVIA L. RUBY

Mix one large bunch of children with an equal portion of noise-making instruments; leaven with the enthusiastic guidance of knowledgeable percussionists and you have the recipe for a successful childrens' concert such as was presented by Peggy Lucchesi, ably assisted by Lloyd Davis, at the Bach-to-Mozart Junior Candlelight Concert at the Del Mar School in Tiburon yesterday afternoon.

Miss Lucchesi, tympanist with the San Francisco Symphony for 10 years, was brought back this year for a second appearance by popular request.

Comments like "Mothers may cover drum heads with pads to prevent disturbing the children with their practicing" and "Would you like to hear one really loud cymbal crash?" met with wide approval. As timing is of the essence in tympani work, so it is in presenting childrens' concerts, and Miss Lucchesi moved quickly and efficiently in demonstrating the different instruments in what she described as a "short history of music through a variety of drums."

First on the program was the second movement of Muczynski's "Three Designs for Three Tympani," a work showing the different tones of the tympani and the gradations of dynamic levels possible. Next, Lloyd Davis discussed and played various military drums, comparing the sounds of hard and soft sticks.

In talking about the Romantic period of orchestral composition it was pointed out that composers called for a wider range of tone colors and additional percussion instruments were incorporated into symphonic works including nationalistic instruments such as the tambourine and castanets from Spain and the claves and maracas from Latin America.

The last Junior Candlelight Concert will be at 2:30 at Del Mar School in Tiburon, April 29.

ON THE WARPATH — A flotilla of canoes, led by naturalist Elizabeth Terwilliger of Mill Valley, heads for the intended site of the ferry terminal planned for Central Marin. The trip Saturday on Corte Madera Creek was to protest locating the terminal on the triangular piece of land near the Hutchinson Quarry in Larkspur. Nature will be disturbed, they argued to little avail with the sympathetic officials, who also turned out under leaden skies to present their position. San Quentin Prison is nowhere as near the site as the telephoto lens would make it seem.

Canoe Paddlers Protest Plans For Ferry Terminal Location

A group of Marin residents opposed to the proposed location for a Central Marin ferry terminal staged a "protest paddle" Saturday to call attention to their objections.

About 50 persons braved strong winds and threatening skies and paddled canoes up Corte Madera Creek to the site earmarked for the terminal, a triangular piece of land on the creek near the old Hutchinson quarry in Larkspur.

Several officials of the Golden Gate Bridge District, which chose the terminal location some time ago, joined the unusual caravan to explain their side of the story to the protestors.

Among those present were Dale W. Luehring, district general manager, Stephan C. Leonoudakis, president of the bridge board, and Dean N. Meyer, a district director.

The residents, headed by Mill Valley naturalist Elizabeth Terwilliger, gathered near the site in their canoes for a brief watery rally. They said the district should place the terminal on San Quentin Point, where it would not interfere with the creek or its wildlife.

The protestors also objected to the fact that a small island which has become a sanctuary for many birds will have to be removed to make room for the ferries.

They also expressed fears that dredging of the creek for the terminal and ferries will damage marine life in the area and that the wake from large boats will make small boat activities dangerous or impossible.

Leonoudakis told the group the district could not obtain the San Quentin land for at least a year and said it may be much longer than that before the state Department of Corrections makes the property available.

"We've already inquired and the department tells us there is no way any of the land can go until a master plan for San Quentin is approved by the legislature sometime next year," he said.

The bridge board president said San Quentin prison may not be closed by 1974, as state officials have predicted. "There are indications it may be open for a long time yet and, if that's true, we won't be able to get the land."

Bridge officials also pointed out that the bird sanctuary had been created by fill from a sewer project on the creek and said the district intends to build another island with fill from its dredging of the creek to replace that one that will be lost.

Meyer suggested that the district might go a step further and develop other habitats for wildlife, such as salt marshes, mudflats and possibly an island for sea lions.

Dr. Joel Gustafson of Mill Valley, a professor of biology at San Francisco State University, agreed it would be possible to create artificial islands, marshes and mudflats from the fill which will come from the dredging. "The mud — if it is out of the water — will naturally regenerate itself."

"Could we improve areas to offset what might be damaged?" Meyer asked. "Yes, you could," Gustafson replied.

Willis Evans, a biologist for the U.S. Forest Service, suggested that the time to bring forth objections to the site would be at the public hearing to discuss the local environmental impact of the terminal and ferries. The impact study of the effects of the terminal on Marin will be completed in three or four months, according to Leonoudakis.

Jail Riot Is Blamed On Alioto

SAN BRUNO (AP) — It will be up to higher authorities to prevent another rampage at the San Francisco County Jail where inmates yesterday set fires, smashed windows and threw mattresses and debris out of windows, Sheriff Richard Hongisto says.

"It's only a matter of time until somebody is hurt unless the mayor and the board of supervisors act to remedy the situation," Hongisto said of the six-hour disturbance in which eight persons —six inmates, a deputy and a fireman — reportedly received minor injuries.

Hongisto blamed the rampage, which he said caused up to $20,000 in damages, on conditions he said he had tried to reform.

Two weeks earlier there was a similar but less intense protest here over alleged staff shortages, the quality and quantity of food and clothing.

"The problems the men raised were outlined clearly in my budget justification to the mayor," Hongisto said after inmates set fires on all 10 cell tiers and reportedly broke into the jail's medical supply room and stole drugs, food and other supplies.

"It says that all conditions which prevailed at Attica prevail here —poor diet, inadequate clothing and shortage of staff," Hongisto said, referring to the bloody rebellion at a prison in Attica, N.Y., in September 1971.

Hongisto has accused Mayor Joseph A. Alioto and the board of supervisors of failing to provide adequate funds for running the jail. "The inmates had a peaceful fire disturbance to demonstrate to the mayor," he said.

By nightfall, the fires were controlled and the inmates returned to their cells, with no reported confrontations with 70 law officers summoned to the facility.

Hongisto told a news conference he was able to convince inmate leaders to end the disturbance after a two-hour meeting. Later meetings were planned to discuss the grievances, which included demands for better food, medical care and more showers, exercise periods and visits with relatives.

Fires started with clothing and tables forced deputies to herd all prisoners into the yard while firemen battled the flames and removed charred debris for several hours.

The individual cells and tiers "were left in good condition," Hongisto said, although the halls were flooded with water and littered with debris and burnt paper.

Calley Still Drawing Lieutenant's Salary

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Although convicted of mass murder, 1st Lt. William L. Calley Jr. continues to draw a federal salary of $10,600 a year, Army officials said today.

Calley originally was sent to the stockade after his conviction. But by order of President Nixon he was allowed to move into the bachelor officers' quarters at Ft. Benning, Ga., where he is kept under guard but allowed to have visitors, including his girl friend.

Calley, 29, was convicted March 31, 1971, of murdering at least 22 South Vietnamese civilians in the 1968 My Lai massacre. He was sentenced to life but that was later reduced to 20 years. Just last week the Army's Court of Military Review upheld the conviction and the reduced sentence.

Calley was also sentenced to dismissal from the service and loss of all pay and allowances.

Not all of Calley's sentence, however, has been imposed. He still holds his rank and gets his pay. Should he lose all his appeals and the sentence finally be carried out, Calley would no longer be paid—but the time spent confined to his barracks with pay would count as part of his sentence, officials said.

They said Calley would not have to refund any of the pay he is now receiving. For this period he would be in effect a salaried federal prisoner.

The armed services sometimes, but not always, delay carrying out a sentence until a convicted man has exhausted the appeals route, Army officials said. They said one section of the prison at Ft. Leavenworth, Kan., holds men still wearing their uniforms and still drawing pay.

"The fact that the sentence hasn't been carried out in Calley's case isn't exceptional—although the length of time he has continued in this status is," one Army officer said. It has been almost two years since the conviction.

Dredging Project Meeting Planned

The Bel Marin Keys Community Services District board will have a special meeting at 7:30 p.m. tomorrow to discuss problems that have arisen in the fredging project along Novato Creek.

Homeowners along the creek have protested that their docks are separated from the channel by mud which has been retained in the tules rather than sloughing off into the channel as planned, according to Betty L. Zoeller, District secretary.

Soprano Flaws Are Overcome

By MARTIN FRICK

Last night, the Coffee Concert Series at Dominican College presented Carolyn Caton in a recital of songs from Bach to Barber which highlighted the soprano's big voice and great presence as well as some vocal distortions and contortions.

The first section of songs by Mozart, Faure and Ravel were flawed by frequent flatting, and in addition the Ravel songs require a much straighter tone than Mrs. Caton's vibrato would allow.

But in the lovely Bach aria "Sweet Delight" which followed, the soprano's exquisite phrasing drew our ears away from the faulty intonation. In this, she was ably assisted by Laurel Elkjer on the flute and Phyllis Murphy at the piano.

Mrs. Murphy was a most sympathetic accompanist throughout the recital, from the technically difficult Ravel song "Tout gai" to the sensitive Samuel Barber song cycle "Despite and Still" composed in 1969. These songs, with texts by a variety of poets, include a wide range of imagery which Mrs. Caton's admirable diction served well.

Likewise, the dramatic intensity which the soprano brought to the group of Spanish songs by Fernando Obradors spilled over here, especially in "Solitary Hotel" from James Joyce's "Ulysses."

The recital closed with Schubert's lilting "Shepherd on the Rock," which Mrs. Caton sang both to the small, attentive audience in Caleruega Hall and to her clarinetist, Wayne Ellerman, whose perfect control and pitch inspired the soprano to deliver her most beautiful notes of the evening.

A TREE TO HOLD A HILLSIDE

This liquid amber being planted by Alan Harobin (left), Phillip Johnson (center) and Alan Harobin Sr. is intended to do more than beautify the hillside behind Laurel Dell School in San Rafael. It's one of seven trees planted Sunday by parents who hope they will secure the hillside and prevent further erosion. About 85 parents and children turned out for the parent-financed project supervised by Harobin, park superintendent of the Marinwood Community Services District. Four black maples and three liquid ambers were planted.

'Cactus Flower' Is Funny, Well Cast

By KAY KSANDA

What does an office nurse do when her impression on men is likened to a "large Band-Aid," and her employer uses her as camouflage, pretending she is his wife to foil romantic attachments?

The answer is provided in the well-known comedy, "Cactus Flower," a three act-play that opened this weekend at the Novato Community Theater. (Repeating only next Friday and Saturday at 8:30 p.m.)

Written by old-time radio and television scriptwriter Abe Burrows, the story is about a swinging dentist who protects his bachelor status by pretending to be married. His nurse has the personality of a cactus, his girlfriend is more like a passion flower, and his best friend, Harvey, is a freeloading sponge.

With such a group, he's his own worst enemy. His chief problem is catching up with his own lies. When he isn't drilling, he's plotting his romantic strategy and discounting his nurse. He sees her as a frigid spinster with a hatred of men, particularly Harvey.

"No one," she snaps, "needs a reason for hating Harvey!"

It's a funny show, with a fast pace and good casting. New to the Novato stage is Bernel Flath as the dentist. With his acting background in the "interplayers" and this year's production of Shakespeare's "Henry the Fifth," he brings a special kind of energy to comedy and a clearly defined characterization to his part. His prissy, dignified lover is particulary comic.

Jackie Proett, as the nurse, is a very sharp sardonic lady, and Gene Vasco, as Harvey, is the perfect sponge. Sandy Trinka plays the part of the ingenue more matter-of-fact than madcap.

Loren Roberts, as Igor, her handsome neighbor, is also a good "straight man," leaving lots of/area for the rest of the cast to be very funny. Both Gail Frank and Kathryn McLaughlin get a lot of mileage out of their small roles as Harvey's girl friend, and the doctor's patient. Gale Nims, as Senior Sanchez, philanderer-Spanish-style, was well cast and well played.

"CACTUS FLOWER" — A three-act play by Abe Burrows. Presented by the Novato Community Players. Produced by John and Jackie Bonner. Directed by Shirley Nilsen; Lighting, John Prohaska and Caryl Yaudes; set Bob Marchant; costumes, Claudia Bliss; props, Gwen Wright and Kathryn McLaughlin; sound, John Prohaska. Cast: Toni Simmons, Sandy Trinka; Igor Sullivan, Loren Roberts; Stephanie Dickinson, Jackie Proett; Mrs. Dixon Durant, Kathryn McLaughlin; Harvey Greenfield, Gene Vasco; Dr. Julian Winston, Bernel Flath; Senior Arturo Sanchez, Gale Nims; Boticelli's Springtime, Gail Frank; Waiter, Al Wright; Customer, John Bonner.

Tympanist Entertains Children At Concert

By SYLVIA L. RUBY

Mix one large bunch of children with an equal portion of noise-making instruments; leaven with the enthusiastic guidance of knowledgeable percussionists and you have the recipe for a successful childrens' concert such as was presented by Peggy Lucchesi, ably assisted by Lloyd Davis, at the Bach-to-Mozart Junior Candlelight Concert at the Del Mar School in Tiburon yesterday afternoon.

Miss Lucchesi, tympanist with the San Francisco Symphony for 10 years, was brought back this year for a second appearance by popular request.

Comments like "Mothers may cover drum heads with pads to prevent disturbing the children with their practicing" and "Would you like to hear one really loud cymbal crash?" met with wide approval. As timing is of the essence in tympani work, so it is in presenting childrens' concerts, and Miss Lucchesi moved quickly and efficiently in demonstrating the different instruments in what she described as a "short history of music through a variety of drums."

First on the program was the second movement of Muczynski's "Three Designs for Three Tympani," a work showing the different tones of the tympani and the gradations of dynamic levels possible. Next, Lloyd Davis discussed and played various military drums, comparing the sounds of hard and soft sticks.

In talking about the Romantic period of orchestral composition it was pointed out that composers called for a wider range of tone colors and additional percussion instruments were incorporated into symphonic works including nationalistic instruments such as the tambourine and castanets from Spain and the claves and maracas from Latin America.

The last Junior Candlelight Concert will be at 2:30 at Del Mar School in Tiburon, April 29.

Concert By Bach-To-Mozart Group Is Highly Successful

By VERA M. OLMSTED

A near-capacity crowd of Marinites enjoyed another one of the Bach-to-Mozart Group's highly successful chamber concerts last night in the Del Mar School Auditorium in Tiburon.

Raymond Duste, founder of the group, plays an important part in establishing and keeping an informal and sociable mood between performers and audience. This group of musicians comes across as eager to share its music making with others, without the formality present in a concert hall.

Several of the evening's works were particularly outstanding in performance. The first of these was the Quartet in D Minor, Op. 76, No. 2, by Franz Joseph Haydn, father of the string quartet. This piece is a little jewel, the product of his mature years.

The quartet begins with a four-note theme of descending fifths which gives the work its nickname, "Quinten." The ensemble played strongly and firmly, taking great care to bring out the texture and dynamics.

The inner voices were well defined by Donna Salarpi, second violin, and Asbjorn Finess, viola. Teresa Adams played the cello sensitively, as she did in the other works that evening. William Pynchon, first violin, gave firm direction to the ensemble. The violin part is quite prominent and Pynchon played well technically, although he had some difficulties with intonation, particularly in the last movement.

Also highly successful was Bass Robert Bernard's fine interpretation of Osmin's aria, "Oh, wie will ich triumphieren," from Mozart's comic opera, "The Abduction from the Seraglio." The vain and lascivious Osmin is one of Mozart's great characters, and Bernard was able to project the humor of the role with his facial expressions and body movements. Bernard has a very pleasing voice and his low notes were secure and carried well.

Another favorite work on the evening's program was the Brandenburg Concerto No. 5 by J. S. Bach. Although the solo instruments are specified as flute, violin and harpsichord, the harpsichord part is so important that this is in effect a harpsichord concerto.

Erika Matthes played with admirable dexterity, setting a pace that never lagged, though this caused some rushing in the famous first movement cadenza. She used a one manual, pedal instrument, and intelligently varied the registration according to the music and the needs of the small ensemble which accompanied her.

There were times when violinist Pynchon and flutist Walter Subke did not project enough, and their melodic line could not be heard clearly.

Soprano Marie Gibson was most effective in her duet with Robert Bernard, "Mein Freund ist mein" from Bach's Cantata No. 140. Her tone was rich and polished, and the beautiful melodic line was carefully articulated.

Other works heard included two Bach arias and two concertos by J. F. Fasch and Tomaso Albiononi. These pieces had some good performances by Edward Haug, trumpet, and Eleanor Duste, oboe.

This was the Third Concert of the Candlelight Chamber Music Series. The next program features the Czech Nonet from Czechoslovakia on April 1, 8 P.M., in the Del Mar School Auditorium, Tiburon.

Library Opposes Meeting Idea

The council Tuesday considered converting its present chambers to office space and moving, but, according to board secretary Jean Downs, the library may need its basement meeting area for book sorting and other library functions in the future.

The library board also opposed merger with the Marin County library system and formation of a special library district.

Msgr. Dullea Leaving Catholic High Post

MSGR. EDWARD M. DULLEA
Leaving school post

Msgr. Edward M. Dullea, a teacher and principal at Marin Catholic High School in Kentfield since 1951, is leaving the school to become pastor of St. Edward's Church in San Francisco.

A public reception in his honor will be held in the Marin Catholic cafeteria from 2 to 4 p.m. March 4.

Monsignor Dullea has spent almost his entire clerical career in Marin County. Ordained in his native San Francisco in 1946 after graduating from St. Patrick's Seminary, Menlo Park, he was assistant pastor of St. Anselm's Church in San Anselmo until 1950. He served briefly at the Catholic University in Washington, D.C.

He was assigned to the Marin Catholic faculty in 1951, teaching mathematics and physics and helping coach. He was principal of the school from 1963 to 1971, when he asked to return to the classroom.

He was elevated to Monsignor in 1964, and last year was designated prelate of honor, the highest rank among monsignors.

Arnheiter's Wife Asks Dissolution Of Marriage

The wife of a retired Naval officer, who gained international notoriety for his 99 days in command of a destroyer escort off Vietnam, has filed in Marin Superior Court to dissolve their marriage.

Janice Arnheiter claimed irreconcilable differences have developed in her marriage to retired Lt. Cmdr. Marcus Aurelius Arnheiter, 47, who, the Navy said, was relieved of command for "bad judgment and lack of integrity."

Wed May 5, 1956, in Annapolis, Md., the couple separated Thursday, according to the suit.

Mrs. Arnheiter asked custody of the five children, Jeffery, 16; Ashley, 14; Christopher, 11; and Kimberly and Katherine, both 7, as well as financial support for herself and the children.

Arnheiter, now living in Novato, is assistant manager of the San Rafael agency of Mutual of New York life insurance company.

A graduate of the Naval Academy in 1952, he retired after failing to win a court-martial he hoped would clear him of charges by junior officers which led to his replacement as commander of a ship on patrol off Vietnam in March 1966.

The officers charged, among other things, he was tyrranical, that he falsified position reports, violated Navy rules and orders, needlessly risked his ship and crew and required them to recommend him for an undeserved Silver Star.

Arnheiter, whose case reverbrated up to Congress, contended he was undermined by mutinous junior officers who resented his efforts to whip into shape his ship and crew.

However, the Navy said after hearings in 1968 that he was relieved because he created pretexts to shell the Vietnam shore, without even knowing if friendly forces were in the area.

Pope Paul Gives Shortest Blessing

VATICAN CITY (UPI) — Pope Paul VI opened a window that overlooks St. Peter's Square and saw snow swirling over the crowd gathered for his normal Sunday blessing.

"I do not want to keep you under the snow in bad weather," the pontiff said. "We thank you for your presence and give you our blessing in the name of the Father, the Son and the Holy Spirit." It was the shortest blessing of his reign.

ON THE WARPATH — A flotilla of canoes, led by naturalist Elizabeth Terwilliger of Mill Valley, heads for the intended site of the ferry terminal planned for Central Marin. The trip Saturday on Corte Madera Creek was to protest locating the terminal on the triangular piece of land near the Hutchinson Quarry in Larkspur. Nature will be disturbed, they argued to little avail with the sympathetic officials, who also turned out under leaden skies to present their position. San Quentin Prison is nowhere as near the site as the telephoto lens would make it seem.

Canoe Paddlers Protest Plans For Ferry Terminal Location

A group of Marin residents opposed to the proposed location for a Central Marin ferry terminal staged a "protest paddle" Saturday to call attention to their objections.

About 50 persons braved strong winds and threatening skies and paddled canoes up Corte Madera Creek to the site earmarked for the terminal, a triangular piece of land on the creek near the old Hutchinson quarry in Larkspur.

Several officials of the Golden Gate Bridge District, which chose the terminal location some time ago, joined the unusual caravan to explain their side of the story to the protestors.

Among those present were Dale W. Luehring, district general manager, Stephan C. Leonoudakis, president of the bridge board, and Dean N. Meyer, a district director.

The residents, headed by Mill Valley naturalist Elizabeth Terwilliger, gathered near the site in their canoes for a brief watery rally. They said the district should place the terminal on San Quentin Point, where it would not interfere with the creek or its wildlife.

The protestors also objected to the fact that a small island which has become a sanctuary for many birds will have to be removed to make room for the ferries.

They also expressed fears that dredging of the creek for the terminal and ferries will damage marine life in the area and that the wake from large boats will make small boat activities dangerous or impossible.

Leonoudakis told the group the district could not obtain the San Quentin land for at least a year and said it may be much longer than that before the state Department of Corrections makes the property available.

"We've already inquired and the department tells us there is no way any of the land can go until a master plan for San Quentin is approved by the legislature sometime next year," he said.

The bridge board president said San Quentin prison may not be closed by 1974, as state officials have predicted. "There are indications it may be open for a long time yet and, if that's true, we won't be able to get the land."

Bridge officials also pointed out that the bird sanctuary had been created by fill from a sewer project on the creek and said the district intends to build another island with fill from its dredging of the creek to replace that one that will be lost.

Meyer suggested that the district might go a step further and develop other habitats for wildlife, such as salt marshes, mudflats and possibly an island for sea lions.

Dr. Joel Gustafson of Mill Valley, a professor of biology at San Francisco State University, agreed it would be possible to create artificial islands, marshes and mudflats from the fill which will come from the dredging. "The mud — if it is out of the water — will naturally regenerate itself."

"Could we improve areas to offset what might be damaged?" Meyer asked. "Yes, you could," Gustafson replied.

Willis Evans, a biologist for the U.S. Forest Service, suggested that the time to bring forth objections to the site would be at the public hearing to discuss the local environmental impact of the terminal and ferries. The impact study of the effects of the terminal on Marin will be completed in three or four months, according to Leonoudakis.

Jail Riot Is Blamed On Alioto

SAN BRUNO (AP) — It will be up to higher authorities to prevent another rampage at the San Francisco County Jail where inmates yesterday set fires, smashed windows and threw mattresses and debris out of windows, Sheriff Richard Hongisto says.

"It's only a matter of time until somebody is hurt unless the mayor and the board of supervisors act to remedy the situation," Hongisto said of the six-hour disturbance in which eight persons —six inmates, a deputy and a fireman — reportedly received minor injuries.

Hongisto blamed the rampage, which he said caused up to $20,000 in damages, on conditions he said he had tried to reform.

Two weeks earlier there was a similar but less intense protest here over alleged staff shortages, the quality and quantity of food and clothing.

"The problems the men raised were outlined clearly in my budget justification to the mayor," Hongisto said after inmates set fires on all 10 cell tiers and reportedly broke into the jail's medical supply room and stole drugs, food and other supplies.

"It says that all conditions which prevailed at Attica prevail here —poor diet, inadequate clothing and shortage of staff," Hongisto said, referring to the bloody rebellion at a prison in Attica, N.Y., in September 1971.

Hongisto has accused Mayor Joseph A. Alioto and the board of supervisors of failing to provide adequate funds for running the jail. "The inmates had a peaceful fire disturbance to demonstrate to the mayor," he said.

By nightfall, the fires were controlled and the inmates returned to their cells, with no reported confrontations with 70 law officers summoned to the facility.

Hongisto told a news conference he was able to convince inmate leaders to end the disturbance after a two-hour meeting. Later meetings were planned to discuss the grievances, which included demands for better food, medical care and more showers, exercise periods and visits with relatives.

Fires started with clothing and tables forced deputies to herd all prisoners into the yard while firemen battled the flames and removed charred debris for several hours.

The individual cells and tiers "were left in good condition," Hongisto said, although the halls were flooded with water and littered with debris and burnt paper.

Calley Still Drawing Lieutenant's Salary

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Although convicted of mass murder, 1st Lt. William L. Calley Jr. continues to draw a federal salary of $10,600 a year, Army officials said today.

Calley originally was sent to the stockade after his conviction. But by order of President Nixon he was allowed to move into the bachelor officers' quarters at Ft. Benning, Ga., where he is kept under guard but allowed to have visitors, including his girl friend.

Calley, 29, was convicted March 31, 1971, of murdering at least 22 South Vietnamese civilians in the 1968 My Lai massacre. He was sentenced to life but that was later reduced to 20 years. Just last week the Army's Court of Military Review upheld the conviction and the reduced sentence.

Calley was also sentenced to dismissal from the service and loss of all pay and allowances.

Not all of Calley's sentence, however, has been imposed. He still holds his rank and gets his pay. Should he lose all his appeals and the sentence finally be carried out, Calley would no longer be paid—but the time spent confined to his barracks with pay would count as part of his sentence, officials said.

They said Calley would not have to refund any of the pay he is now receiving. For this period he would be in effect a salaried federal prisoner.

The armed services sometimes, but not always, delay carrying out a sentence until a convicted man has exhausted the appeals route, Army officials said. They said one section of the prison at Ft. Leavenworth, Kan., holds men still wearing their uniforms and still drawing pay.

"The fact that the sentence hasn't been carried out in Calley's case isn't exceptional—although the length of time he has continued in this status is," one Army officer said. It has been almost two years since the conviction.

The Bel Marin Keys Community Services District board will have a special meeting at 7:30 p.m. tomorrow to discuss problems that have arisen in the fredging project along Novato Creek.

Homeowners along the creek have protested that their docks are separated from the channel by mud which has been retained in the tules rather than sloughing off into the channel as planned, according to Betty L. Zoeller, District secretary.

Court Realistic In Latest Ruling

The United States Supreme Court has at last recognized that (1) "one man, one vote" is not a guarantee of equal representation, and (2) states have some rights in deciding how their own legislatures shall be made up.

This came last week in 5-to-3 Supreme Court approval of a redistricting plan for the Virginia House of Delegates which deviates from the population uniformity required for U. S. House of Representatives reapportionment.

A STATE, ruled Justice Rehnquist — with concurrence of four of his colleagues — may take into consideration such matters as city and county boundaries or geographical barriers in redistricting its own legislature, even though these result in some variation in population among the districts.

That is what the Virginia House of Delegates has done in redistricting itself. The result was no gerrymandered monstrosity; it was a sensible plan, but the largest district was 16 per cent greater in population than the smallest.

In the case of the federal House of Representatives, wrote Justice Rehnquist, the 14th Amendment requires "a good-faith effort to achieve absolute equality." But a state may have legitimate reasons for departing from such uniformity in district populations, he noted — and the Constitution does not require it to ignore them.

Justice Rehnquist might have gone further, but he limited his opinion to the case before the court (a practice that other courts, including the California Supreme Court, might do well to emulate).

He might have gone back to the framing of the Constitution itself, when one of the main compromises during the four months of the constitutional convention was that which allotted one member of the House of Representatives for each 30,000 population, but kept the Senate apportioned on a geographical basis: two senators for each state.

The framers of the Constitution recognized that equality has many facets, and that "one man, one vote" does not reflect all of them.

WE HAVE AN example in Marin County.

Following court decisions, the Marin County Board of Supervisors in 1968 redistricted the county to provide nearly-equal populations in each supervisorial district. The result, however, was to rob the rural areas of effective representation, by lumping part of them in with a dissimilar urban area including part of San Rafael, Corte Madera, Larkspur and Kentfield, and the rest in with Novato, the county's second largest city.

Last week's Supreme Court decision has resulted already in a new look at redistricting of the California Legislature. It should have many other results. And in the long run, it should bring more equitable representation than the "apportionment by computer" produced by "one man, one vote" rulings.

Marin's Seagulls

In parts of the United States, seagulls are regarded as pests and a menace to the public health, Johnathan Livingston not counting. Marin, fortunately, has not experienced the gull population explosion which has made them a problem in the northeastern states.

The thing which makes gulls a pest is a result of their adaptability. In their pristine state, they spent much time scavenging beaches as the tide ebbed. As beaches built up, garbage dumps, sewage outlets and fish processing plants provided easier pickings. And the gulls adapted.

Now, because of man's dirty ways, the gull is a bird with a bad reputation. And such a handsome, graceful bird, too!

SEWER DISTRICT STYMIED

County Plan Unaccepted —Except By ABAG Staff

By PAUL E. PETERZELL

Planners at the Association of Bay Area Governments have indulged in highly selective listening to arrive at their opposition to plans by Las Gallinas Valley Sanitary District to expand sewage facilities.

Ignoring the aim of elected officials in the district to clean up its pollution, ABAG planners instead cocked their ears to the county planning department's proposed countywide general plan. The plant expansion would allow more population growth than envisioned by the proposed plan.

"Proposed," however, is the key word. The plan not only has no official standing, but has been subjected to so much harsh criticism that many consider it tarnished if not discredited.

AT STAKE is the district's application for federal and state grants totaling $224,000 toward the project's total cost of $256,000. Without an endorsement by ABAG's executive committee, the application will be as good as dead. The association is the government's official clearinghouse for such applications, and its staff's recommendations generally prevail before the executive committee.

Someone on the committee should note the absurdity of basing its action on the cordial relations between two planning staffs. The bureaucratic pride of staff should not deterine how we are governed.

The committee will take up the issue at 7:30 p.m. on March 15 in the Hotel Claremont, Berkeley.

BICYCLISTS MAY be distressed to learn that racks for them on the Golden Gate Bridge District's new ferries will be out in the open on the prow.

Racks on the present Sausalito ferry are inside, but the new vessels have been judged far too elegant to accommodate bicycles inside.

We wonder how many bicyclists will be reassured to hear the word from district officials that "very little" of the salt spray will reach the exposed deck.

ASSEMBLYMAN William T. Bagley, R-San Rafael, is eyeing the race for California secretary of state next year. He has been aiming at state controller, but will not run for the post if incumbent Houston I. Flournoy defers to Robert Finch in the race for governor.

Players in the game of political musical chairs will not be known until after Finch determines if he has strong enough financial backing, which probably will not be before July.

THINGS ARE TOUGH at the Bay Area Rapid Transit District, but we did not realize how tough. We got a letter from the district's planning department last week — with eight cents postage due.

WHAT OUR READERS SAY

Police On The Job When Home Entered

Recently I was away for the week end at which time my home was broken in and burglarized.

High praise to Officers Bertram and Souza, members of the San Rafael police force, for their most efficient handling of the situation.

In my book they did a very thorough and businesslike investigation and made me feel quite at ease.

Thanks to my neighbors, the Turks, for possibly scaring the culprit away and for informing me of the situation.

Corte Madera Protestor Not Non-Resident

I have lived at 42 Diamond Head Passage in Corte Madera for 13 years. On Feb. 13, as a member of the conservation committee of the Marin Audubon Society, I made a statement before the Corte Madera Planning Commission in regard to the proposed Hahn development.

It came as a surprise to me to read in "What Our Readers Say" that I was regarded as a non-resident by Mr. Beverly Sill, manager of the Crocker National Bank in Corte Madera. We have held our savings and checking account in Mr. Sill's bank for 13 years.

Please do not disenfranchise me, Mr. Sill. Watching the birds come and go in the marshlands has been a great source of pleasure to me and I hope they will be saved for the people of all communities in Marin County to enjoy.

Bouquet And Brickbat On Two Editorials

A bouquet to your editorial on the deteriorating postal service mess. To transfer mail from Marin County to San Francisco to be sorted and redelivered to Marin County all for the sake of justifying some expensive machinery has got to be the height of lunacy.

A brickbat to your editorial in which you lambasted our supervisors for leaving Highway One a beautiful unspoilt scenic drive. Your statistics on the accident rate are totally irrelevant to the subject; it must be obvious that trying to compare accidents/mile between Highway one and Interstate 5 is like comparing cottage cheese with pork rinds. Ergo, for those who like a quiet scenic drive, Highway 1 is for them — for those who are in a great rush to get to Point Reyes there are two alternative routes, both of which, incidentally would lend themselves for selected improvement if necessary.

If San Francisco was able to halt the half finished Embarcadero Freeway, it is not too unusual for just more than a handful of conservationists to want scenic Hwy 1 left alone.

RICHARD W. SHAND

Mill Valley.

(The comparative accident rates used in the editorial on Highway One were with two-lane rural roads throughout California, not with any interstate highway. The editorial mentioned that freeways have much lower accident rates per million vehicle miles than those quoted. — Editor)

Countywide Plan Called Discriminatory

One of the most controversial issues of the Marin Countywide Plan is the artificially imposed population limitation. The studies by the planning staff have shown that during the 1966 through 1969 housing slump, the scarcity of new housing has forced prices up. Now the county wants to reduce the total number of housing starts to 1,500 per year from an 18-year average of 2,300 units per year. This planned slump of housing will not only drastically force up housing prices but will also reduce employment and create a tremendous social cost. . .

While the county plan would reduce the influx of people, it is also trying to encourage low and middle income people to move to the county. It is obvious that when you close the county down, only the rich can afford to live here and the chance of having a broad social mix are much better by letting a normal flow of people into the county and by doing adequate planning for those people who are going to come in instead of as a tool to keep people out.

. . . If the cities do not have to live up to the countywide plan due to lack of control by the county, such a plan does not represent the interests of all the people living in the county. The majority of Marin County people live in cities and, under the new setup, the county review agency would have no power over the majority of the people. The plan is, therefore, discriminating against the minority of the population that lives in the unincorporated county areas of Marin.

A meaningful countywide plan developed around the realities as they exist today must, therefore, be designed which would also include the individual cities where most people of the county live. This plan must be designed from the bottom up and planning should start at a city level instead of from the top down and be forced upon the cities. . .

The techniques being used by the county planning director and planning staff to force the adoption of his plan are that of a master chess player or in plain English, "backing into the plan." At the last meeting, it was proposed that the village expansion policies should be approved by the planning commission. In turn the West Marin open space would be approved and the growth principle of the eastern corridor. This technique, together with a sustained effort at wearing down all opposition, has been demonstrated at every hearing.

TODAY'S WORLD

THE NEEDLE

By HAROLD COFFIN

In addition to the excitement of a fall World Series, baseball now provides suspense regarding the season's openers in the spring.

Will Players Rep Marvin Miller play ball with Commissioner Bowie Kuhn?

The players' idea of spring training is not to pursue fly balls but to chase the almightly dollar. In this respect they resemble owners.

'Equal Rights' Leaders Prove Inept As Political Quarterbacks

WASHINGTON — With 28 down and 10 to go, the more assertive advocates of the Equal Rights Amendment are proving that they will never replace men as quarterbacks in a clutch political situation.

After the first surge of ratifications by state legislatures, the amendment has been picking up consistent additions, one by one, until Vermont became No. 28 only last week. But now, leaders of the National Organization for Women (NOW) have lost patience with such steady, unspectacular progress, and opted instead for "confrontation tactics" and "civil disobedience" to push the amendment to final adoption.

The cheers you hear are from the other side.

IF THE WOMEN'S movement has not figured it out yet, it should be notified that most of this country is fed up to the point of gagging with confrontation tactics, mass picketing and all that. It also should know, by women's intuition if no other way, that hundreds of male legislators, who have found no politically prudent way to say no to calm, serious women, rationally arguing their case, will find raucous hell-raising by militant women to be a godsend. It will be easy and probably profitable, too, for them to refuse to be pushed around by a shrill, impolite mob, and thus to vote the opposition they feel down deep inside.

Yet the NOW women apparently perceive that the only way to get themselves and their cause on television is to make a spectacle of themselves. When they do so, television will respond on cue and give them a good ride on the evening news. And because television does that, the Equal Rights Amendment will be equated in the popular mind with battalions of sign-toting man-eaters.

The rationale behind the switch of tactics may be that all the pushover states already have fallen in line and ratified the amendment, and the ones left are the tough ones that require tough talk, and more than just talk. I submit that the switch will be counterproductive. Yet it may become useful after all, because it postpones final adoption ong enough for the amendment to be submitted to leisurely popular examination.

ALL THE BETTER CLASS of reform elements are solidly behind this amendment — not only NOW, but the Women's Political Caucus, Common Cause, the League of Women Voters, the YWCA, the business and professional women's clubs and some labor unions, particularly those with a high proportion of female membership. The opposition includes Phyllis Schlafly, whose most prominent previous outing was on behalf of Barry Goldwater for President, and ranking Catholic clergymen and lay organizations.

It is possible to be aligned firmly with NOW and the other advocates in the belief that all the inequalities and abuses they denounce should be ended forthwith and forever —and at the same time to question not only their tactics but also whether a constitutional amendment is necessary to achieve their reforms.

I concede this because since 1868 we have operated with guidance from the 14th Amendment, which says in important part that "all persons born or naturalized in the United States. . .are citizens." And that "no state. . .shall deny to any person within its jurisdiction the equal protection of the laws." Not all men, but all persons. No ifs, buts or maybes.

With the 14th Amendment, it may seem self-evident that discrimination against women has been unconstitutional nor at least 104.5 years, if not longer. Opponents of the current measure also cite the 19th Amendment, which gave women the vote, plus the Equal Pay Act of 1963 and the Civil Rights Act of 1964 to show that further amendments to this end are superfluous.

YET THE ARGUMENT that the 14th Amendment makes a new Equal Rights Amendment moot was just as applicable when the 19th Amendment was being debated. The 14th Amendment was on the books when the 15th spelled out its application to all, regardless of race. Nobody noticeable maintains today that those clarifications were wrong or frivolous.

And so, if the women are serious when they say they are willing to be drafted along with men, when they say they will be glad to give up their favored status in divorce law and elsewhere if that corrects other laws and practices loaded against them, I say let us ratify this 27th Amendment. It may not be necessary but, like those other amendments and the civil-rights laws of our recent past, it will serve to give the self-evident truth a standing that even a credit manager cannot deny.

ROSCOE DRUMMOND

'Peace At Any Price' Solons Now Oppose North Vietnam Aid

Will Congress vote aid to Hanoi? It will be a bitter fight, a close vote, but the White House is convinced that Congess will approve.

The irony of it is that many who were willing to aid North Vietnam by getting out of the war without any negotiated settlement now oppose helping Vietnam repair the worst ravages of the fighting.

They wanted to get out of the war and now shrink from helping to build the peace.

Americans are poor haters. That's good. That is why the majority favors economic assistance to Indochina, including North Vietnam. The President's argument for his aid plan is this: It is an investment in peace. The United States has proved that helping past enemies makes present friends. America's strongest allies today are Germany and Japan.

WHY KISSINGER-MAO TALKS WENT WELL. It is evident that the United States and China are moving steadily toward full diplomatic relations. We are eager. The Chinese are apparently eager.

One reason is that the Chinese leaders are more than ever convinced that the Soviet Union is seeking detente with Western Europe so it will be freer to turn Chinaward and create trouble for them on the Sino-Soviet frontier.

Peking wants detente with the United States. The United States wants detente with both Peking and Moscow. It's a delicate balancing act.

IS CHINA SO AWFULLY PEACE-LOVING? Today, quite possibly. Yesterday? The record does not bear out those who like to suggest that China has never been expansionist.

Since the Communists came to power in 1949, they have made war on two countries. They took Tibet and turned it into a Chinese appendage. They used force to seize some 50,000 square miles of India after Chou En-lai assured Prime Minister Nehru that China had no "frontier" disagreements with India.

DIPLOMACY ON THE MARCH IN MIDEAST. There is significant movement for negotiations to take the Arab-Israeli conflict further away from war. King Hussein, bearing peace proposals, has just been in Washington. Egyptian President Anwar Sadat's "Henry Kissinger" and Israeli's Prime Minister Golda Meir are due here at about the same time. Secy. of State William Rogers said the United States hoped to get negotiations started.

There are four courses of action open to the two sides:

1 — Either or both could renew the fighting.
2 — Negotiate for a limited settlement.
3 — Negotiate for a full settlement.
4 — Do nothing, continue the state of no war and no peace, each hoping the other side will get into trouble.

All three — Israel, Egypt and the United States — may now believe that limited negotiation leading to reopening of the Suez Canal and some Israeli pullback may be attainable.

THE THIRD BRANCH DECLARES ITS INDEPENDENCE. Despite four new appointees since Earl Warren's retirement, the Supreme Court is showing it is still not a "Nixon Court."

Three of the four justices named by Mr. Nixon — Burger, Blackmun and Powell — made possible the 7-to-2 decision striking down existing state laws restricting abortion. This opinion was written by Justice Blackmun and it clearly ran counter to the President's publicly expressed opinions.

Conservatives in Congress and in the country are now talking about wanting to cut back the powers of the court as they did when Earl Warren was chief justice. They'll not succeed.

That Permission Slip Wasn't Just What The Teacher Ordered

This anecdote had them rolling in the aisles when told last week during a meeting of county school administrators by Sister Joan, principal of St. Isabella's School in San Rafael — or at least, so we're assured by Virgil Hollis, Marin County Schools superintendent.

St. Isabella's, in a continuing battle to cut costs and save pennies, is always on the lookout for used paper that can be salvaged for use at the school.

A group of youngsters recently managed to scrounge a load of discarded forms from Marin General Hospital. The clean sides of the forms were put to a variety of uses, including the printing of permission slips for a class field trip, which were sent home with students to be signed by their parents.

Sister Joan, however, was astonished when one parent, little girl in tow, slammed the form down on her desk and in mock anger cried: "Sister Joan, you really don't want me to sign this."

Sister Joan said she could hardly believe her eyes when she looked at the form, Marin General Hospital side up, and found that it was, indeed, a permission slip — for an abortion.

THE SUBJECT OF DOGS is an old hat in Marin County, I know, but being new here, I am still astounded at the number of best friends the men here have.

City Councilman E. Ross Parkerson read a letter from a disgruntled Fairfax resident complaining about the problem during last week's city council meeting.

The letter immediately brought a chorus of sympathy from citizens in the audience who all had shaggy dog stories of their own to tell about how they are afraid to stroll their streets without clubs and are awakened at all hours of the day and night by howling canines.

They criticized the humane society for issuing citations only to owners of dogs with license tags, which are exactly the wrong animals to pull over and write up, and wondered what in the world could be done to solve the problem.

One man suggested Fairfax hire a fulltime dog catcher. But the idea was put down as too costly and, besides, said Councilman Lee Nelder, that would be barking up the wrong tree. Fairfax strays may not really be Fairfax strays. They may be drifers from San Anselmo or Kentfield, he said, and if Fairfax were the only town to hire a dog catcher, then Fairfax would be in charge of controlling the dog population for the entire Ross Valley.

Councilmen agreed to take the matter up during this month's dinner meeting of the Marin Council of Mayors and Councilmen.

Big Change Is In Sex, Says POW

MEMPHIS, Tenn. (UPI) — Lt. Cmdr. Raymond Vohden says the "sexual revolution" was the most shocking change he had seen in the United States after eight years in a North Vietnam prison camp.

"I'm no prude, but I've seen things in what I consider rather conservative magazines — nude women and things like this," said the Navy flier in a news conference Saturday at the Millington Naval Air Station. "It's not so shocking maybe, but surprising that this has changed."

Vohden said he and other prisoners of war managed to keep up—to a degree—with the news from America through new POWs who spread the word. He said the changes he found have not been "overwhelming.

"I understand that in eight years things are going to change," he said. "I can't say that there has been anything that's been difficult to face."

But Vohden refused to discuss his family life or to comment on reports that his wife, Bonnye, said he planned to go away for a month to think things over since he was having trouble adjusting to his freedom.

Mrs. Vohden filed for divorce last year, but later withdrew the suit, and now says she wants only a happy life for her family, which includes two children, Raymond Jr., 11, and Connye, 10.

Speaking Of The Weather (Who Isn't?), It's Not Safe Topic

When people talk to me about the weather, I always feel they mean something else. — Oscar Wilde

A sociologist with more time than questions on his hands recently asked himself (and a lot of other folks): What is the most popular subject for conversation?

The answer — are you ready for this? — was: the weather.

If a poll is worth taking, it is worth taking well. So, in the interests of a little more of the old in-depthness, we asked our milkman how many times a day people compel him to talk about the weather. He estimated around 25 weather-oriented conversations on a fair day, and when it turns nasty, around 35, which happens to be more than the number of customers on his route.

A touch of scholarly skepticism seemed called for. In our best sociologist's jargon, we asked him: "How come?"

Just then the mailman came by and asked the milkman: "Boy what about this weather?"

"See!" said the milkman.

BUT BEFORE WE get down to finesse questions, like the approved styles for talking about the weather, a few misapprehensions ought to be cleared away. The weather is not, as commonly supposed, a "safe" topic. "Cold enough for you?" (in the winter) and "Hot enough for you?" (in the summer) are questions that, directed at the wrong party at the wrong time, can provoke a war as easily as any other.

Nor is the weather the famously simple topic about which any man, woman, or babe in the crib can confidently comment. The weather takes studying, particularly if you live or work in the city and haven't been out of your fluorescent-lighted, temperature-controlled high-rise for half a day or so. Under the circumstances, one finds out what's happening, not by opening the window — you can't anyway — but by turning on the tube.

With the weather as with all else, television brings life at second hand.

Obviously talking about the weather nowadays is not the passive business — the easy-way-out — that a lot of people mistakenly suspect. It is, all in all, a fairly strenuous game, with your more dedicated participants identified by the styles they have developed:

THE WEATHER STATISTICIAN. He knows the rainfall to the nearest hundredth of an inch for the past 10 years. Don't tell him that, golly, this must be the coldest (or warmest) Feb. 26 ever. He'll tell you — "as a matter of fact ..." — which Feb. 26 it actually was.

THE WEATHER PERFECTIONIST. In the summer it's too hot for him, in the winter it's too cold. If, as a Statistician, you tell him it's exactly 72 degrees, he'll say: "But what about the dew point?" The Perfectionist, in G.C. Lichtenberg's phrase, would give half a lifetime to know the average barometer reading in Paradise. You can bet it isn't his.

THE WEATHER COMPETITOR. Who doesn't know a man or woman with what James Russell Lowell called "meteorological ambitions"? The Competitor takes pride in being hotter or colder or more snowed-upon than all his neighbors. Let a storm below down his maple. Let lightning strike his car. He couldn't be happier. The Competitor sees weather as a drama, and if the icicle falls on you, it's like getting the star part.

THE INNER-WEATHER WATCHER. Tell him the weather, and he'll tell you his mood. And does his little sensibility ever have cloud formations! Employers take warning: On sunny days the IWW feels too good to work. On overcast days he feels too bad to work.

It must be admitted: To a certain extent, everybody is an IWW — an inner-outer climate coordinator. Why else does June rhyme with moon in love songs? Even Shakespeare made weather practially a dramatis persona in "The Tempest."

For the ancient Greeks, among other pagans, weather was a report on the humors of the gods, with Zeus, the mightiest tantrum-thrower of them all, strong on thunderbolts.

For the Inner-Weather Watcher, a modern breed, weather reflects rather the mysteries within himself. In storms he sees the inexplicable gustings of his own passions and fears. Then, if all goes well, he senses in the calm after the storm the real possibility of his own resurrection. And so he says with heartfelt banality: "Nice day, isn't it?" — and, of course, means something else.

Viet Prisoners Relied On Faith

By U.P. INTERNATIONAL

Being a prisoner of war in Vietnam was like having to learn to survive on a strange, forbidden planet on the faith that America really cared.

Simple physical survival in the steamy jungles and overcoming the dreary monotony in prison camps were the basic struggles returning POWs have related. A more graphic description of enemy treatment will emerge when all the prisoners return.

Some already have told of learning to survive on a meager diet of rice and pork fat with rare tidbits of meat and of being locked in small wooden cages listening to the falling of American bombs.

The full story would be so "explosive" that it must wait until all American prisoners are freed, according to one returning POW.

In South Vietnam, there was widespread malaria and poor medical treatment. In one case, a "disobedient" POW was forced to stand in a pit of red ants.

"The American people don't know or understand what goes on in places like this because we don't have them in the United States," said Army Capt. Mark A. Smith, 26, Hawthorne, Calif. "It will be a shock to the people of the United States when everyone is back and can tell it like it was."

Officers compiling the stories of returning POWs say the detailed picture of hardships suffered by the prisoners will have to wait until every prisoner has come home. A handful of returnees, however, have described or hinted at some of the treatment.

Army Capt. George K. Wanat, 27, of Foxboro, Mass., says his imprisonment was "the ultimate bummer." He told of being kept in small wooden cages without netting to protect from swarms of malaria carrying mosquitos.

The diet in the south was mainly rice and bits of pork fat, occasionally a few vegetables and some meat from elephants, tigers and monkeys shot in the dense jungles.

Prisoners were occasionally relieved of "just sitting around" in cages and trotted out to listen to propaganda broadcasts by Radio Hanoi and the Viet Cong's Radio liberation. When American bombs got too close, they were forced to march to new locations.

However, there were few "direct" attempts to indoctrinate them as was done to American prisoners in Korea.

Monotony was the worst foe, particularly in the northern prison camps, where the men kept themselves going through adherence to strict military discipline, rigorous physical exercise, and belief in God and country.

Prisoner-organized exercise programs were supplemented by educational courses and inter-faith religious services using a Bible written from memory. News filtered in through new arrivals.

Airmen shot down over the North in the years up to 1969 tell of a Spartan but adequate life. The food "was adequate ... to maintin our health," said Air Force Col. Robinson Risner. He said that toward the end of 1969, treatment improved markedly.

The unsuccessful 1970 raid on the Son Tay Prison camp apparently led the Communists to move most American prisoners into the "Hanoi Hilton," a jail in the capital.

This strengthened the American command structure set up in 1965 for POWs, in which a commander-in-chief was in charge of all prisoners and subordinate commandants set up at different camps. Communications had previously been through a grapevine developed by prisoner movements such as medical transfers.

Maj. Norman A. McDaniel, 35, of Greensboro, N.C., said a sense of humor helped against the dull routine.

"You had to have it in order to survive," he said. "One thing that was quite popular were jokes about 'the light at the end of the tunnel.' We looked at the light a long, long time."

Presidential Items Auctioned

Those items and 40 less important pieces of presidential paraphernalia brought a private collector $7,157 Saturday, slightly more than an appraised value of $6,000.

Benefits Great For Union Chief

NEW YORK (UPI) — Joseph Curran, president of the National Maritime Union, would be able to get almost $1 million in severance pay and pension benefits when he leaves the union, The New York Times said Sunday.

Curran, 65, is getting $50,000 a year as head of the 50,000-member union. Severance pay for 36 years' service would amount to about $250,000 and pension benefits would be between $600,000 and $717,000, The Times said.

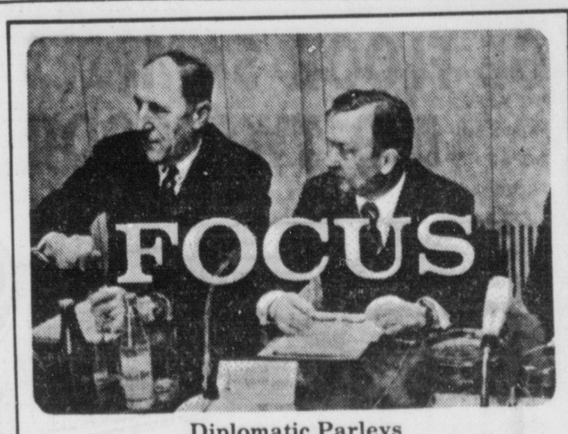
The union is preparing for the election of national officers, and such benefits are a factor in the campaign, The Times said.

Actors Sought

NOTTINGHAM, England (UPI) — The medical school of Nottingham University has decided to go into the movie business. It advertised for unemployed actors to play patients in films aimed at helping student doctors improve their bedside manners.



Diplomatic Parleys

For the U.S., the past months have brought unusual diplomatic activity, not only in connection with the Viet Nam cease-fire, but with Europe. As the Viet Nam conference begins today in Paris, American diplomats are attending other important parleys. Helsinki is hosting talks involving the U.S., Canada, and 32 European countries. This meeting, which began before Christmas, is concerned with ways to ease East-West relations. Representatives from 12 countries in NATO and 7 members of the Warsaw Pact began preparation in Vienna last month for a conference later this year on the withdrawal of forces from Central Europe.

Msgr. Dullea Leaving Catholic High Post

Msgr. Edward M. Dullea, a teacher and principal at Marin Catholic High School in Kentfield since 1951, is leaving the school to become pastor of St. Edward's Church in San Francisco.

A public reception in his honor will be held in the Marin Catholic cafeteria from 2 to 4 p.m. March 4.

Monsignor Dullea has spent almost his entire clerical career in Marin County. Ordained in his native San Francisco in 1946 after graduating from St. Patrick's Seminary, Menlo Park, he was assistant pastor of St. Anselm's Church in San Anselmo until 1950. He served briefly at the Catholic University in Washington, D.C.

He was assigned to the Marin Catholic faculty in 1951, teaching mathematics and physics and helping coach. He was principal of the school from 1963 to 1971, when he asked to return to the classroom.

He was elevated to Monsignor in 1964, and last year was designated prelate of honor, the highest rank among monsignors.

Arnheiter's Wife Asks Dissolution Of Marriage

The wife of a retired Naval officer, who gained international notoriety for his 99 days in command of a destroyer escort off Vietnam, has filed in Marin Superior Court to dissolve their marriage.

Janice Arnheiter claimed irreconcilable differences have developed in her marriage to retired Lt. Cmdr. Marcus Aurelius Arnheiter, 47, who, the Navy said, was relieved of command for "bad judgment and lack of integrity."

Wed May 5, 1956, in Annapolis, Md., the couple separated Thursday, according to the suit.

Mrs. Arnheiter asked custody of the five children, Jeffery, 16; Ashley, 14; Christopher, 11; and Kimberly and Katherine, both 7, as well as financial support for herself and the children.

Arnheiter, now living in Novato, is assistant manager of the San Rafael agency of Mutual of New York life insurance company.

A graduate of the Naval Academy in 1952, he retired after failing to win a court-martial he hoped would clear him of charges by junior officers which led to his replacement as commander of a ship on patrol off Vietnam in March 1966.

The officers charged, among other things, he was tyrranical, that he falsified position reports, violated Navy rules and orders, needlessly risked his ship and crew and required them to recommend him for an undeserved Silver Star.

Arnheiter, whose case reverbrated up to Congress, contended he was undermined by mutinous junior officers who resented his efforts to whip into shape his ship and crew.

However, the Navy said after hearings in 1968 that he was relieved because he created pretexts to shell the Vietnam shore, without even knowing if friendly forces were in the area.

Pope Paul Gives Shortest Blessing

VATICAN CITY (UPI) — Pope Paul VI opened a window that overlooks St. Peter's Square and saw snow swirling over the crowd gathered for his normal Sunday blessing.

"I do not want to keep you under the snow in bad weather," the pontiff said. "We thank you for your presence and give you our blessing in the name of the Father, the Son and the Holy Spirit." It was the shortest blessing of his reign.

Court Realistic In Latest Ruling

The United States Supreme Court has at last recognized that (1) "one man, one vote" is not a guarantee of equal representation, and (2) states have some rights in deciding how their own legislatures shall be made up.

This came last week in 5-to-3 Supreme Court approval of a redistricting plan for the Virginia House of Delegates which deviates from the population uniformity required for U. S. House of Representatives reapportionment.

A STATE, ruled Justice Rehnquist — with concurrence of four of his colleagues — may take into consideration such matters as city and county boundaries or geographical barriers in redistricting its own legislature, even though these result in some variation in population among the districts.

That is what the Virginia House of Delegates has done in redistricting itself. The result was no gerrymandered monstrosity; it was a sensible plan, but the largest district was 16 per cent greater in population than the smallest.

In the case of the federal House of Representatives, wrote Justice Rehnquist, the 14th Amendment requires "a good-faith effort to achieve absolute equality." But a state may have legitimate reasons for departing from such uniformity in district populations, he noted — and the Constitution does not require it to ignore them.

Justice Rehnquist might have gone further, but he limited his opinion to the case before the court (a practice that other courts, including the California Supreme Court, might do well to emulate).

He might have gone back to the framing of the Constitution itself, when one of the main compromises during the four months of the constitutional convention was that which allotted one member of the House of Representatives for each 30,000 population, but kept the Senate apportioned on a geographical basis: two senators for each state.

The framers of the Constitution recognized that equality has many facets, and that "one man, one vote" does not reflect all of them.

WE HAVE AN example in Marin County.

Following court decisions, the Marin County Board of Supervisors in 1968 redistricted the county to provide nearly-equal populations in each supervisorial district. The result, however, was to rob the rural areas of effective representation, by lumping part of them in with a dissimilar urban area including part of San Rafael, Corte Madera, Larkspur and Kentfield, and the rest in with Novato, the county's second largest city.

Last week's Supreme Court decision has resulted already in a new look at redistricting of the California Legislature. It should have many other results. And in the long run, it should bring more equitable representation than the "apportionment by computer" produced by "one man, one vote" rulings.

Marin's Seagulls

In parts of the United States, seagulls are regarded as pests and a menace to the public health, Johnathan Livingston not counting. Marin, fortunately, has not experienced the gull population explosion which has made them a problem in the northeastern states.

The thing which makes gulls a pest is a result of their adaptability. In their pristine state, they spent much time scavenging beaches as the tide ebbed. As beaches built up, garbage dumps, sewage outlets and fish processing plants provided easier pickings. And the gulls adapted.

Now, because of man's dirty ways, the gull is a bird with a bad reputation. And such a handsome, graceful bird, too!

SEWER DISTRICT STYMIED

County Plan Unaccepted —Except By ABAG Staff

By PAUL E. PETERZELL

Planners at the Association of Bay Area Governments have indulged in highly selective listening to arrive at their opposition to plans by Las Gallinas Valley Sanitary District to expand sewage facilities.

Ignoring the aim of elected officials in the district to clean up its pollution, ABAG planners instead cocked their ears to the county planning department's proposed countywide general plan. The plant expansion would allow more population growth than envisioned by the proposed plan.

"Proposed," however, is the key word. The plan not only has no official standing, but has been subjected to so much harsh criticism that many consider it tarnished if not discredited.

AT STAKE is the district's application for federal and state grants totaling $224,000 toward the project's total cost of $256,000. Without an endorsement by ABAG's executive committee, the application will be as good as dead. The association is the government's official clearinghouse for such applications, and its staff's recommendations generally prevail before the executive committee.

Someone on the committee should note the absurdity of basing its action on the cordial relations between two planning staffs. The bureaucratic pride of staff should not deterine how we are governed.

The committee will take up the issue at 7:30 p.m. on March 15 in the Hotel Claremont, Berkeley.

BICYCLISTS MAY be distressed to learn that racks for them on the Golden Gate Bridge District's new ferries will be out in the open on the prow.

Racks on the present Sausalito ferry are inside, but the new vessels have been judged far too elegant to accommodate bicycles inside.

We wonder how many bicyclists will be reassured to hear the word from district officials that "very little" of the salt spray will reach the exposed deck.

ASSEMBLYMAN William T. Bagley, R-San Rafael, is eyeing the race for California secretary of state next year. He has been aiming at state controller, but will not run for the post if incumbent Houston I. Flournoy defers to Robert Finch in the race for governor.

Players in the game of political musical chairs will not be known until after Finch determines if he has strong enough financial backing, which probably will not be before July.

THINGS ARE TOUGH at the Bay Area Rapid Transit District, but we did not realize how tough. We got a letter from the district's planning department last week — with eight cents postage due.

WHAT OUR READERS SAY

Police On The Job When Home Entered

Recently I was away for the week end at which time my home was broken in and burglarized.

High praise to Officers Bertram and Souza, members of the San Rafael police force, for their most efficient handling of the situation.

In my book they did a very thorough and businesslike investigation and made me feel quite at ease.

Thanks to my neighbors, the Turks, for possibly scaring the culprit away and for informing me of the situation.

Corte Madera Protestor Not Non-Resident

I have lived at 42 Diamond Head Passage in Corte Madera for 13 years. On Feb. 13, as a member of the conservation committee of the Marin Audubon Society, I made a statement before the Corte Madera Planning Commission in regard to the proposed Hahn development.

It came as a surprise to me to read in "What Our Readers Say" that I was regarded as a non-resident by Mr. Beverly Sill, manager of the Crocker National Bank in Corte Madera. We have held our savings and checking account in Mr. Sill's bank for 13 years.

Please do not disenfranchise me, Mr. Sill. Watching the birds come and go in the marshlands has been a great source of pleasure to me and I hope they will be saved for the people of all communities in Marin County to enjoy.

Bouquet And Brickbat On Two Editorials

A bouquet to your editorial on the deteriorating postal service mess. To transfer mail from Marin County to San Francisco to be sorted and redelivered to Marin County all for the sake of justifying some expensive machinery has got to be the height of lunacy.

A brickbat to your editorial in which you lambasted our supervisors for leaving Highway One a beautiful unspoilt scenic drive. Your statistics on the accident rate are totally irrelevant to the subject; it must be obvious that trying to compare accidents/mile between Highway one and Interstate 5 is like comparing cottage cheese with pork rinds. Ergo, for those who like a quiet scenic drive, Highway 1 is for them — for those who are in a great rush to get to Point Reyes there are two alternative routes, both of which, incidentally would lend themselves for selected improvement if necessary.

If San Francisco was able to halt the half finished Embarcadero Freeway, it is not too unusual for just more than a handful of conservationists to want scenic Hwy 1 left alone.

(The comparative accident rates used in the editorial on Highway One were with two-lane rural roads throughout California, not with any interstate highway. The editorial mentioned that freeways have much lower accident rates per million vehicle miles than those quoted. — Editor)

Countywide Plan Called Discriminatory

One of the most controversial issues of the Marin Countywide Plan is the artificially imposed population limitation. The studies by the planning staff have shown that during the 1966 through 1969 housing slump, the scarcity of new housing has forced prices up. Now the county wants to reduce the total number of housing starts to 1,500 per year from an 18-year average of 2,300 units per year. This planned slump of housing will not only drastically force up housing prices but will also reduce employment and create a tremendous social cost. . .

While the county plan would reduce the influx of people, it is also trying to encourage low and middle income people to move to the county. It is obvious that when you close the county down, only the rich can afford to live here and the chance of having a broad social mix are much better by letting a normal flow of people into the county and by doing adequate planning for those people who are going to come in instead of as a tool to keep people out.

. . . If the cities do not have to live up to the countywide plan due to lack of control by the county, such a plan does not represent the interests of all the people living in the county. The majority of Marin County people live in cities and, under the new setup, the county review agency would have no power over the majority of the people. The plan is, therefore, discriminating against the minority of the population that lives in the unincorporated county areas of Marin.

A meaningful countywide plan developed around the realities as they exist today must, therefore, be designed which would also include the individual cities where most people of the county live. This plan must be designed from the bottom up and planning should start at a city level instead of from the top down and be forced upon the cities. . .

The techniques being used by the county planning director and planning staff to force the adoption of his plan are that of a master chess player or in plain English, "backing into the plan." At the last meeting, it was proposed that the village expansion policies should be approved by the planning commission. In turn the West Marin open space would be approved and the growth principle of the eastern corridor. This technique, together with a sustained effort at wearing down all opposition, has been demonstrated at every hearing.

TODAY'S WORLD

THE NEEDLE

By HAROLD COFFIN

In addition to the excitement of a fall World Series, baseball now provides suspense regarding the season's openers in the spring.

Will Players Rep Marvin Miller play ball with Commissioner Bowie Kuhn?

The players' idea of spring training is not to pursue fly balls but to chase the almightly dollar. In this respect they resemble owners.

American League pitchers have designated pinch-hitters, but nobody goes to bat for the fans.

'Equal Rights' Leaders Prove Inept As Political Quarterbacks

WASHINGTON — With 28 down and 10 to go, the more assertive advocates of the Equal Rights Amendment are proving that they will never replace men as quarterbacks in a clutch political situation.

After the first surge of ratifications by state legislatures, the amendment has been picking up consistent additions, one by one, until Vermont became No. 28 only last week. But now, leaders of the National Organization for Women (NOW) have lost patience with such steady, unspectacular progress, and opted instead for "confrontation tactics" and "civil disobedience" to push the amendment to final adoption.

The cheers you hear are from the other side.

IF THE WOMEN'S movement has not figured it out yet, it should be notified that most of this country is fed up to the point of gagging with confrontation tactics, mass picketing and all that. It also should know, by women's intuition if no other way, that hundreds of male legislators, who have found no politically prudent way to say no to calm, serious women, rationally arguing their case, will find raucous hell-raising by militant women to be a godsend. It will be easy and probably profitable, too, for them to refuse to be pushed around by a shrill, impolite mob, and thus to vote the opposition they feel down deep inside.

Yet the NOW women apparently perceive that the only way to get themselves and their cause on television is to make a spectacle of themselves. When they do so, television will respond on cue and give them a good ride on the evening news. And because television does that, the Equal Rights Amendment will be equated in the popular mind with battalions of sign-toting man-eaters.

The rationale behind the switch of tactics may be that all the pushover states already have fallen in line and ratified the amendment, and the ones left are the tough ones that require tough talk, and more than just talk. I submit that the switch will be counterproductive. Yet it may become useful after all, because it postpones final adoption ong enough for the amendment to be submitted to leisurely popular examination.

ALL THE BETTER CLASS of reform elements are solidly behind this amendment — not only NOW, but the Women's Political Caucus, Common Cause, the League of Women Voters, the YWCA, the business and professional women's clubs and some labor unions, particularly those with a high proportion of female membership. The opposition includes Phyllis Schlafly, whose most prominent previous outing was on behalf of Barry Goldwater for President, and ranking Catholic clergymen and lay organizations.

It is possible to be aligned firmly with NOW and the other advocates in the belief that all the inequalities and abuses they denounce should be ended forthwith and forever —and at the same time to question not only their tactics but also whether a constitutional amendment is necessary to achieve their reforms.

I concede this because since 1868 we have operated with guidance from the 14th Amendment, which says in important part that "all persons born or naturalized in the United States. . .are citizens." And that "no state. . .shall deny to any person within its jurisdiction the equal protection of the laws." Not all men, but all persons. No ifs, buts or maybes.

With the 14th Amendment, it may seem self-evident that discrimination against women has been unconstitutional nor at least 104.5 years, if not longer. Opponents of the current measure also cite the 19th Amendment, which gave women the vote, plus the Equal Pay Act of 1963 and the Civil Rights Act of 1964 to show that further amendments to this end are superfluous.

YET THE ARGUMENT that the 14th Amendment makes a new Equal Rights Amendment moot was just as applicable when the 19th Amendment was being debated. The 14th Amendment was on the books when the 15th spelled out its application to all, regardless of race. Nobody noticeable maintains today that those clarifications were wrong or frivolous.

And so, if the women are serious when they say they are willing to be drafted along with men, when they say they will be glad to give up their favored status in divorce law and elsewhere if that corrects other laws and practices loaded against them, I say let us ratify this 27th Amendment. It may not be necessary but, like those other amendments and the civil-rights laws of our recent past, it will serve to give the self-evident truth a standing that even a credit manager cannot deny.

ROSCOE DRUMMOND

'Peace At Any Price' Solons Now Oppose North Vietnam Aid

Will Congress vote aid to Hanoi? It will be a bitter fight, a close vote, but the White House is convinced that Congess will approve.

The irony of it is that many who were willing to aid North Vietnam by getting out of the war without any negotiated settlement now oppose helping Vietnam repair the worst ravages of the fighting.

They wanted to get out of the war and now shrink from helping to build the peace.

Americans are poor haters. That's good. That is why the majority favors economic assistance to Indochina, including North Vietnam. The President's argument for his aid plan is this: It is an investment in peace. The United States has proved that helping past enemies makes present friends. America's strongest allies today are Germany and Japan.

WHY KISSINGER-MAO TALKS WENT WELL. It is evident that the United States and China are moving steadily toward full diplomatic relations. We are eager. The Chinese are apparently eager.

One reason is that the Chinese leaders are more than ever convinced that the Soviet Union is seeking detente with Western Europe so it will be freer to turn Chinaward and create trouble for them on the Sino-Soviet frontier.

Peking wants detente with the United States. The United States wants detente with both Peking and Moscow. It's a delicate balancing act.

IS CHINA SO AWFULLY PEACE-LOVING? Today, quite possibly. Yesterday? The record does not bear out those who like to suggest that China has never been expansionist.

Since the Communists came to power in 1949, they have made war on two countries. They took Tibet and turned it into a Chinese appendage. They used force to seize some 50,000 square miles of India after Chou En-lai assured Prime Minister Nehru that China had no "frontier" disagreements with India.

DIPLOMACY ON THE MARCH IN MIDEAST. There is significant movement for negotiations to take the Arab-Israeli conflict further away from war. King Hussein, bearing peace proposals, has just been in Washington. Egyptian President Anwar Sadat's "Henry Kissinger" and Israeli's Prime Minister Golda Meir are due here at about the same time. Secy. of State William Rogers said the United States hoped to get negotiations started.

There are four courses of action open to the two sides:

1 — Either or both could renew the fighting.

2 — Negotiate for a limited settlement.

3 — Negotiate for a full settlement.

4 — Do nothing, continue the state of no war and no peace, each hoping the other side will get into trouble.

All three — Israel, Egypt and the United States — may now believe that limited negotiation leading to reopening of the Suez Canal and some Israeli pullback may be attainable.

THE THIRD BRANCH DECLARES ITS INDEPENDENCE. Despite four new appointees since Earl Warren's retirement, the Supreme Court is showing it is still not a "Nixon Court."

Three of the four justices named by Mr. Nixon — Burger, Blackmun and Powell — made possible the 7-to-2 decision striking down existing state laws restricting abortion. This opinion was written by Justice Blackmun and it clearly ran counter to the President's publicly expressed opinions.

Conservatives in Congress and in the country are now talking about wanting to cut back the powers of the court as they did when Earl Warren was chief justice. They'll not succeed.

THREE-YEAR REPORT

Children's Center Becomes A Reality

By JOAN LISETOR

Three years of effort by many persons have gone into the founding of the center. Finding a location, the once abandoned kindergarten room at Yolandsale School in San Anselmo, made the center seem a reality, said the director, Mrs. Stanley Seiderman of San Anselmo. Funding has been a major challenge and set back the opening of the center once already last year.

In the midst of final weeks of preparation the federal government announced proposed new guidelines regarding funding of day care centers, which if not amended or withdrawn, will go into effect March 15. Along with most child care programs nationwide, the Fairfax-San Anselmo Children's Center may cease to exist.

Despite its gloomy future, the center opened today in an atmosphere that could not have been more cheerful. Thirteen children arrived this morning to find brightly painted furniture and a room decorated to suit the taste of the 30-month to 6-year-old age range.

"OUR CAPACITY is 30 children," but since we had to postpone our August opening due to AB99 (a bill changing the funding of day care centers from the Department of Public Social Services to the State Department of Education) some people made other arrangements for their children."

Formation of the center has been a joint effort of the National Council of Jewish Women, Marin Chapter; the San Anselmo School District; Community Action Marin; the Volunteer Bureau of Marin, and the Marin Association for Mental Health.

Representatives from the groups got together over the weekend for a combination work and letter writing session, getting the room and materials ready, and writing letters to the President, Congressmen and the state superintendent of public instruction urging a change in the guidelines.

"We have been hit by two regulations in the guidelines," Mrs. Seiderman explained. "First the government redefined former and potential welfare recipients. Until now a former recipient was anyone who had been on welfare during the past two years, but according to the new guidelines a former has only three months. A potential, someone who has never been on welfare but needs help to stay off, has qualified for five years; now that is shortened to six months."

The federal government reimburses child care centers for children whose parents fall under these categories, and this is the group the local center is attempting to reach, according to Mrs. Seiderman.

THE NEW guidelines also eliminate the federal program of matching private donations to federal support on a three for one basis. Federal aid would still be provided for programs using public state and local funds, but the United Bay Area Crusade matching funds, which the center has received, are considered private, so rule the center ineligible for federal funds.

"We have received and spent our first payment of $3,600 from UBAC," Mrs. Seiderman said. "We used it to get ready and to hire staff before we knew there would be problems like these, and we have another check due next week. As far as I know the check is on its way."

Walter Dolan, principal of Yolansdale School is excited about having the center at the school, and he sees it as a part of the school, rather than just a group renting space there, he said.

"We have been looking forward to working together for about a year," Dolan said, "hoping to integrate some of the young children into our ungraded kindergarten-first grade class."

Chairman of the San Anselmo School Board, Mary Olive, sees the venture as a mutual benefit as well as a solution to the problem of what to do with excess classrooms.

"WE WERE looking for compatible uses to pick up the costs, when the arrangements were made with the child care committee. More use of classrooms also gives us greater protection from vandalism."

Members of the National Council of Jewish Women also attending the work-letter writing session, Babette Bloch of Mill Valley, vice president in charge of community service projects; Joy Zailian of Tiburon, chairman of the day care committee; and Dr. Hannah Hochstaedter of San Anselmo, a pediatrician and the council's representative on the day care center's board, also have a concern.

"We have served as the center's fiscal agent," explained Mrs. Bloch. "We thought our part in organizing the center was complete. It happened so suddenly we haven't had time to decide what to o, having planned to go on to another project. Our members had planned to participate once the center was going by taking the children on field trips, serving as volunteer aides and doing things like taking them to the doctors for well baby check-ups."

"It looks like we are going to have to put our efforts into different directions," Mrs. Zailian said

"We are open, and we will stay open because we are committed to the program," Mrs. Seiderman said. "What I hope to see is the federal government funding children's centers 100 per cent, putting a priority on children instead of airplanes."

FINAL WORK WAS completed over the weekend so the Fairfax-San Anselmo children's Center could open today at the Yolandsdale School in San Anselmo. But the session turned into a combination work and letter writing session because members of the staff, parents and others ho have helped organize the center hope to persuade the federal government to change guidelines issued last week that may wipe out the day care facility along with other social services throughout the country.

That Permission Slip Wasn't Just What The Teacher Ordered

This anecdote had them rolling in the aisles when told last week during a meeting of county school administrators by Sister Joan, principal of St. Isabella's School in San Rafael — or at least, so we're assured by Virgil Hollis, Marin County Schools superintendent.

St. Isabella's, in a continuing battle to cut costs and save pennies, is always on the lookout for used paper that can be salvaged for use at the school.

A group of youngsters recently managed to scrounge a load of discarded forms from Marin General Hospital. The clean sides of the forms were put to a variety of uses, including the printing of permission slips for a class field trip, which were sent home with students to be signed by their parents.

Sister Joan, however, was astonished when one parent, little girl in tow, slammed the form down on her desk and in mock anger cried: "Sister Joan, you really don't want me to sign this."

Sister Joan said she could hardly believe her eyes when she looked at the form, Marin General Hospital side up, and found that it was, indeed, a permission slip — for an abortion.

THE SUBJECT OF DOGS is an old hat in Marin County, I know, but being new here, I am still astounded at the number of best friends the men here have.

City Councilman E. Ross Parkerson read a letter from a disgruntled Fairfax resident complaining about the problem during last week's city council meeting.

The letter immediately brought a chorus of sympathy from citizens in the audience who all had shaggy dog stories of their own to tell about how they are afraid to stroll their streets without clubs and are awakened at all hours of the day and night by howling canines.

They criticized the humane society for issuing citations only to owners of dogs with license tags, which are exactly the wrong animals to pull over and write up, and wondered what in the world could be done to solve the problem.

One man suggested Fairfax hire a fulltime dog catcher. But the idea was put down as too costly and, besides, said Councilman Lee Nelder, that would be barking up the wrong tree. Fairfax strays may not really be Fairfax strays. They may be drifers from San Anselmo or Kentfield, he said, and if Fairfax were the only town to hire a dog catcher, then Fairfax would be in charge of controlling the dog population for the entire Ross Valley.

Councilmen agreed to take the matter up during this month's dinner meeting of the Marin Council of Mayors and Councilmen.

Big Change Is In Sex, Says POW

MEMPHIS, Tenn. (UPI) — Lt. Cmdr. Raymond Vohden says the "sexual revolution" was the most shocking change he had seen in the United States after eight years in a North Vietnam prison camp.

"I'm no prude, but I've seen things in what I consider rather conservative magazines — nude women and things like this," said the Navy flier in a news conference Saturday at the Millington Naval Air Station. "It's not so shocking maybe, but surprising that this has changed."

Vohden said he and other prisoners of war managed to keep up—to a degree—with the news from America through new POWs who spread the word. He said the changes he found have not been "overwhelming.

"I understand that in eight years things are going to change," he said. "I can't say that there has been anything that's been difficult to face."

But Vohden refused to discuss his family life or to comment on reports that his wife, Bonnye, said he planned to go away for a month to think things over since he was having trouble adjusting to his freedom.

Mrs. Vohden filed for divorce last year, but later withdrew the suit, and now says she wants only a happy life for her family, which includes two children, Raymond Jr., 11, and Connye, 10.

Speaking Of The Weather (Who Isn't?), It's Not Safe Topic

When people talk to me about the weather, I always feel they mean something else. — Oscar Wilde

A sociologist with more time than questions on his hands recently asked himself (and a lot of other folks): What is the most popular subject for conversation?

The answer — are you ready for this? — was: the weather.

If a poll is worth taking, it is worth taking well. So, in the interests of a little more of the old in-depthness, we asked our milkman how many times a day people compel him to talk about the weather. He estimated around 25 weather-oriented conversations on a fair day, and when it turns nasty, around 35, which happens to be more than the number of customers on his route.

A touch of scholarly skepticism seemed called for. In our best sociologist's jargon, we asked him: "How come?"

Just then the mailman came by and asked the milkman: "Boy what about this weather?"

"See!" said the milkman.

BUT BEFORE WE get down to finesse questions, like the approved styles for talking about the weather, a few misapprehensions ought to be cleared away. The weather is not, as commonly supposed, a "safe" topic. "Cold enough for you?" (in the winter) and "Hot enough for you?" (in the summer) are questions that, directed at the wrong party at the wrong time, can provoke a war as easily as any other.

Nor is the weather the famously simple topic about which any man, woman, or babe in the crib can confidently comment. The weather takes studying, particularly if you live or work in the city and haven't been out of your fluorescent-lighted, temperature-controlled high-rise for half a day or so. Under the circumstances, one finds out what's happening, not by opening the window — you can't anyway — but by turning on the tube.

With the weather as with all else, television brings life at second hand.

Obviously talking about the weather nowadays is not the passive business — the easy-way-out — that a lot of people mistakenly suspect. It is, all in all, a fairly strenuous game, with your more dedicated participants identified by the styles they have developed:

THE WEATHER STATISTICIAN. He knows the rainfall to the nearest hundredth of an inch for the past 10 years. Don't tell him that, golly, this must be the coldest (or warmest) Feb. 26 ever. He'll tell you — "as a matter of fact ..." — which Feb. 26 it actually was.

THE WEATHER PERFECTIONIST. In the summer it's too hot for him, in the winter it's too cold. If, as a Statistician, you tell him it's exactly 72 degrees, he'll say: "But what about the dew point?" The Perfectionist, in G.C. Lichtenberg's phrase, would give half a lifetime to know the average barometer reading in Paradise. You can bet it isn't his.

THE WEATHER COMPETITOR. Who doesn't know a man or woman with what James Russell Lowell called "meteorological ambitions"? The Competitor takes pride in being hotter or colder or more snowed-upon than all his neighbors. Let a storm below down his maple. Let lightning strike his car. He couldn't be happier. The Competitor sees weather as a drama, and if the icicle falls on you, it's like getting the star part.

THE INNER-WEATHER WATCHER. Tell him the weather, and he'll tell you his mood. And does his little sensibility ever have cloud formations! Employers take warning: On sunny days the IWW feels too good to work. On overcast days he feels too bad to work.

It must be admitted: To a certain extent, everybody is an IWW — an inner-outer climate coordinator. Why else does June rhyme with moon in love songs? Even Shakespeare made weather practially a dramatis persona in "The Tempest."

For the ancient Greeks, among other pagans, weather was a report on the humors of the gods, with Zeus, the mightiest tantrum-thrower of them all, strong on thunderbolts.

For the Inner-Weather Watcher, a modern breed, weather reflects rather the mysteries within himself. In storms he sees the inexplicable gustings of his own passions and fears. Then, if all goes well, he senses in the calm after the storm the real possibility of his own resurrection. And so he says with heartfelt banality: "Nice day, isn't it?" — and, of course, means something else.

Viet Prisoners Relied On Faith

By U.P. INTERNATIONAL

Being a prisoner of war in Vietnam was like having to learn to survive on a strange, forbidden planet on the faith that America really cared.

Simple physical survival in the steamy jungles and overcoming the dreary monotony in prison camps were the basic struggles returning POWs have related. A more graphic description of enemy treatment will emerge when all the prisoners return.

Some already have told of learning to survive on a meager diet of rice and pork fat with rare tidbits of meat and of being locked in small wooden cages listening to the falling of American bombs.

The full story would be so "explosive" that it must wait until all American prisoners are freed, according to one returning POW.

In South Vietnam, there was widespread malaria and poor medical treatment. In one case, a "disobedient" POW was forced to stand in a pit of red ants.

"The American people don't know or understand what goes on in places like this because we don't have them in the United States," said Army Capt. Mark A. Smith, 26, Hawthorne, Calif. "It will be a shock to the people of the United States when everyone is back and can tell it like it was."

Officers compiling the stories of returning POWs say the detailed picture of hardships suffered by the prisoners will have to wait until every prisoner has come home. A handful of returnees, however, have described or hinted at some of the treatment.

Army Capt. George K. Wanat, 27, of Foxboro, Mass., says his imprisonment was "the ultimate bummer." He told of being kept in small wooden cages without netting to protect from swarms of malaria carrying mosquitos.

The diet in the south was mainly rice and bits of pork fat, occasionally a few vegetables and some meat from elephants, tigers and monkeys shot in the dense jungles.

Prisoners were occasionally relieved of "just sitting around" in cages and trotted out to listen to propaganda broadcasts by Radio Hanoi and the Viet Cong's Radio liberation. When American bombs got too close, they were forced to march to new locations.

However, there were few "direct" attempts to indoctrinate them as was done to American prisoners in Korea.

Monotony was the worst foe, particularly in the northern prison camps, where the men kept themselves going through adherence to strict military discipline, rigorous physical exercise, and belief in God and country.

Prisoner-organized exercise programs were supplemented by educational courses and inter-faith religious services using a Bible written from memory. News filtered in through new arrivals.

Airmen shot down over the North in the years up to 1969 tell of a Spartan but adequate life. The food "was adequate ... to maintin our health," said Air Force Col. Robinson Risner. He said that toward the end of 1969, treatment improved markedly.

The unsuccessful 1970 raid on the Son Tay Prison camp apparently led the Communists to move most American prisoners into the "Hanoi Hilton," a jail in the capital.

This strengthened the American command structure set up in 1965 for POWs, in which a commander-in-chief was in charge of all prisoners and subordinate commandants set up at different camps. Communications had previously been through a grapevine developed by prisoner movements such as medical transfers.

Maj. Norman A. McDaniel, 35, of Greensboro, N.C., said a sense of humor helped against the dull routine.

"You had to have it in order to survive," he said. "One thing that was quite popular were jokes about 'the light at the end of the tunnel.' We looked at the light a long, long time."

Presidential Items Auctioned

Those items and 40 less important pieces of presidential paraphernalia brought a private collector $7,157 Saturday, slightly more than an appraised value of $6,000.

Benefits Great For Union Chief

NEW YORK (UPI) — Joseph Curran, president of the National Maritime Union, would be able to get almost $1 million in severance pay and pension benefits when he leaves the union, The New York Times said Sunday.

Curran, 65, is getting $50,000 a year as head of the 50,000-member union. Severance pay for 36 years' service would amount to about $250,000 and pension benefits would be between $600,000 and $717,000, The Times said.

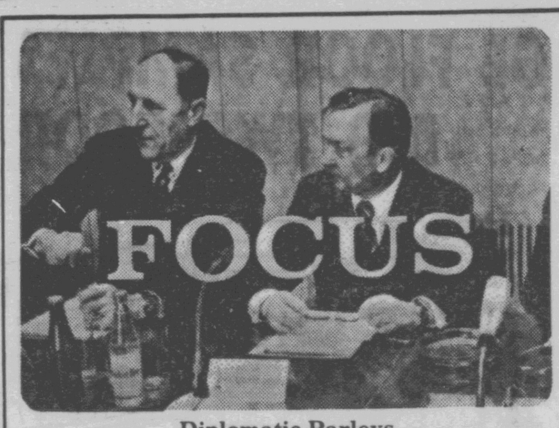
The union is preparing for the election of national officers, and such benefits are a factor in the campaign, The Times said.

Actors Sought

NOTTINGHAM, England (UPI) — The medical school of Nottingham University has decided to go into the movie business. It advertised for unemployed actors to play patients in films aimed at helping student doctors improve their bedside manners.



Diplomatic Parleys

For the U.S., the past months have brought unusual diplomatic activity, not only in connection with the Viet Nam cease-fire, but with Europe. As the Viet Nam conference begins today in Paris, American diplomats are attending other important parleys. Helsinki is hosting talks involving the U.S., Canada, and 32 European countries. This meeting, which began before Christmas, is concerned with ways to ease East-West relations. Representatives from 12 countries in NATO and 7 members of the Warsaw Pact began preparation in Vienna last month for a conference later this year on the withdrawal of forces from Central Europe.

HELEN HELP US!

Sometimes Unwanted Advice Needed If Reminder Is Used

DEAR HELEN:

You said unwanted advice is as welcome as an allergy on a hay ride. How about people who ask for your advice, then hold it against you?

I introduced a widower friend of mine to a woman I once dated casually. When things began getting heavy, my friend asked my frank opinion on their chances of a good marriage.

They got married anyway. And now they are both extremely cool. According to the woman, I'm supposed to have "damaged her reputation and almost wrecked her romance," and of course the man holds it against me for "talking about his future wife." Guess they had a truth session that made me the villain.

So here's my advice: when someone asks yours, stay mum! — OUT IN THE COOL

DEAR OITC:

If I took your advice, I wouldn't stay in business long. But you're right: honesty leads to enmity when a friend only wants encouragement.

Remind this couple you introduced them in the first place — which should win you a few points — until they begin to blame you for that too. — H.

DEAR HELEN:

I am a vet going to college on the GI bill, age 30, have a job that will support a wife (especially if she works, too) and everything was set for my marriage to Sheila, age 20 . . . until I fell in love with her mother.

While Sheila was away at college, I got to coming over to Maria's (her divorced mother) for dinner. She is a young 37, and a fascinating woman. When Sheila came home at Christmastime, I realized what a mistake I'd made. I want Maria for my wife, but how will I work out as stepfather to my ex-fiance?

On the plus side, Sheila is cooling off, but these two are very close. Even if she's stopped loving me, will she accept me in the family? — FATHER OF THE "BRIDE"

DEAR FOTB:

Why don't you ask her — and also Maria? (Nowhere in your letter did you mention that the mother of the "bride" wanted you for a husband.) — H.

DEAR HELEN:

Society frowns on the older woman marrying a young man, while it admires the older male who catches a young chick. In our era of hormones, plastic surgery, etc., this seems ridiculous. People should forget age and seek mates who please them.

A Los Angeles psychiatrist made a study of present-day human mating and indicated men might be happier with more mature women. They make better wives, he said, as they "age" later, and mellow with the years. An older woman can match her male mentally, socially and emotionally, while a young wife is apt to destroy an older husband.

Look at the famous beauties of our world: Liz, Jackie, Ingrid, Elke, Sophia, Raquel — they're all considerably over 30 and some over 40. And women really don't develop much intelligence until age 30.

When I get ready to marry, I won't let age stand in my way. So if you know any 40-year-old unattached females, Helen, refer them to — 30 AND JUST ABOUT READY

P.S. It isn't a requisite, but if they have money, I won't hold it against them.

DEAR 30:

Sorry, I don't run a lonely-hearts concession. Besides, a man who insists that under-30 women lack beauty and brains wouldn't appeal to my over-30 friends. — H.

How To Save On Car Repairs

By Josephine Ripley
The Christian Science Monitor News Service

How can you save on car repairs? You can if you try, and here are some tips:

1. See that your car gets "preventive maintenance."

2. Take it in for servicing at the first sign of trouble. Don't put it off even though the car is still running and you think you can get by.

3. Have your brakes checked as mileage piles up.

4. Be sure — or as sure as you can be — that you are taking your car to a good mechanic.

5. Beware of the "language barrier." Describe the problem as accurately as you can. How the car sounds, reacts. Locate the area of the problem if possible. Communicate.

6. Know something about your car beside the color of the upholstery. When you ask for a simple tune-up, know what you are asking for and should get.

"PREVENTIVE MAINTENANCE, is the way to maintain a car and prevent engine problems," according to a General Motors service manager who has seen cars come and go through the service department for 25 years.

What is preventive maintenance? It is taking the car in regularly for an oil and grease change. Many motorists do not do this. They can't see that the car runs any better after this service than it did before. Why waste the money?

The answer is that lack of regular lubrication can necessitate repairs costing $150 or more.

Manufacturers recommend an oil change every 6,000 miles. But if you are a low mileage driver, it would be wise to change the oil every 2,000 miles. Impurities tend to collect in low mileage driving.

About the brakes: When should you have them checked? A motorist who does a lot of city driving should have the brakes checked every 15,000 miles. One who does most of his driving on open highways should have a brake check every 24,000 miles. In other words, city driving is harder on the brake system.

If you are in doubt, take your car in for a brake check. Let the mechanic take the wheels off and have a look at the brake linings. Or take it to a diagnostic center. They can check linings there without removing the wheels.

In fact, diagnostic centers are recommended even by top mechanics. The price of a checkup is low. If repairs are recommended, you can report to your regular mechanic and see if he agrees. It's a good way to double-check.

It is a generally accepted fact that dealership-service departments have good mechanics and good equipment. They are specialists in working on the kind of cars sold by the dealership. The bigger stations are jammed with work, to be sure. The smaller dealerships have a heavy work load, but there is some advantage in the smaller operation.

Most car owners take their cars to such places for service at least while they are under the warranty.

Be sure you know just hat comes under that warranty. Otherwise you may take your car to a nearby gasoline service station for something that comes under the warranty and would be done without charge by a dealership.

For instance, you might pay from $60 to $100 at a gas station for a new water pump — a needless expenditure since this is covered by the car guarantee. Check all those printed documents before you spend your money.

Some motorists avoid dealership-service departments because they feel the charge is higher. There has been some criticism of the "flat rate charge." That is, a price for the job rather than a per hour charge.

It has been argued that the customer may have to pay for an hour's labor when an hour was not required for the job. That may be true. But dealer servicemen contend that the flat rate charge is actually a consumer protection. The flat rate is based on X amount of dollars per hour and the time it takes a person to do the job.

ON MANY common jobs, there should not be any variation. But it is argued that at a dealership you are paying for trained personnel — for a mechanic who knows that particular car thoroughly.

If the flat rate book says a certain job should be done in two hours and it takes eight hours to do it, the charge is still for two hours. On an hourly system, you would pay for the eight hours.

There are good mechanics at many gasoline stations. They know something about all types of cars, but usually are not specialists on any one car.

Sometimes you find one who has many regular, satisfied customers. You find out about him by word of mouth.

As for the language barrier. Most drivers are not mechanics, right? So it is important to describe your car problem in such a way that the mechanic will have at least a general idea of what it is.

Don't depend on your memory. When you discover an irregularity in the handling or sound of your car, you may be far from a service station. Make a note of the problem then, in a notebook or on a piece of paper. It will help you to describe it briefly and most concisely.

How many car owners know what a tune-up is — what it consists of? A simple tune-up should include the setting or replacing of the spark plugs, the points, the condenser, the motor and adjustment of the carburetor.

The charge includes labor and parts and as a rule comes to $30 or $35.

WHAT ABOUT A major tune-up? This may include an overhauling of the carburetor. The charge depends on the size and type of carburetor. It may run from $50 to $100. So, if you want a major overhaul, but not a carburetor overhaul, be sure to make this clear.

It is a good idea to ask for a safety check occasionally. This includes the removal of one wheel to inspect the brakes, checking all lights, tires, front suspension, steering and exhaust system.

This service may be free if you happen to be a regular customer.

RAPPING ABOUT THE REDUCING WRAP

Many questions have been raised concerning the new methods of size and weight reduction now offered in health studios around the country. The following information is designed to help answer some of your questions about our organic mummy wrap, not to make or imply any medical or therapeutic claims.

Q. What is the Ann Marie Body Wrap method?
A. Our body wrap is a reducing process allowing a person to lose inches and in many instances, pounds, as it liquefies fat, lightens scars, stretch and age marks, increases the circulation, draws out the poisons and toxins without dehydration and most of all it conditions and shrinks the skin.

Q. Is the Organic Mummy Wrap safe for me to use?
A. A dermatologist brought this formula from Europe and developed this exclusively for Ann Marie Figure Salons. Any person can use our wrap. We suggest if you have any question about your health or reducing plans, consult your family doctor, before beginning your program of self improvement.

Q. Does this mean the inch loss a person receives from our wrap is a water loss that will return after drinking water?
A. We feel that the inch loss a person receives from our wrap is more permanent than dieting or exercise. As with dieting or exercising, the permanency of inch loss depends on a person's day to day habits after the event. Contrary to common belief, a liquid loss of this nature will not return permanently upon the consumption of non-caloric fluids. Drinking water is non-caloric and its ingestion travels the digestive process with the greatest percentage leaving the body through the urinary system. We encourage you to drink as much as eight glasses of water a day.

Nancy Ruud

Jean Hicks
Lost 6 inches in first visit, next day another 7⅞ inches all in the tummy area

Q. Does wrapping involve exercise?
A. No, our body wrap works independently of exercise. You do nothing except lie back, relax, read a book, or even take a nap while your body wrap treatment works for you. We ask you not to go into any exercise program of any kind while on our program.

Q. Do you use any drugs or medications.
A. Absolutely not!
Q. How long does it last?
A. Nothing lasts forever but most of our ladies are happy for one year.
Q. Can the face be wrapped?
A. Yes. Most of our ladies do take facials. It is not only very restful but it stops the aging process, tightens the neck, eye and chin tissue as it lightens scar and age marks.

Delores Ownes
Went from size 12 to a size 9 in just 10 visits

Ethel Fuller

Q. Is the treatment hot?
A. No, heat sometimes triggers your body into gaining weight and makes your skin flabby. With our body wrap we cool the body making your skin young and tight. It feels good too.
Q. How fast will we see results?
A. You will feel and see results after your first treatment. In just 90 minutes we guarantee you will lose from 5 to 25 inches, depending on where you are wrapped or your money will be refunded.
Q. How do I know I am receiving results.
A. In many ways: Prior to the wrap we measure tightly and mark each and every person where they are measured. Second, after the wrap you are remeasured on the same mark so the before and after measurements are as accurate as possible. In addition many people will lose actual body weight as well as inches making the results evident.
Q. Is our wrap like most of the other wraps I have heard about?
A. No. Our wrap is considerably different from any of the other reducing wraps on the market. We use the compression method because it works best. We have used this for 13 years. This method molds the body the way you want it. It increases circulation, pulls fatty granules out of the tissue. The tighter you are wrapped the more you lose. Our lotion is different. It is organic and completely safe. Our added tightening ingredient LJ5 is also organic which conditions the skin and makes the inch loss more permanent.
Q. Do I lose all over?
A. Not necessarily, we use the controlled area method. What this means is we wrap you only where you want to lose. You can lose as much as 3 inches or more off midriff and back, without changing the size of the bust.

Q. Do you keep wrap records in your salons?
A. At all Ann Marie Figure Salons, measurements before and after the process are recorded and the results totaled on a measurement chart. Statistical material gathered from these charts in our Santa Rosa salon, which we routinely keep, for the month of February, 1972, showed an average inch loss of 8.67 inches per application for patrons wrapped that month. This was based on approximately 211 wraps applied. If you would like to confirm the results for yourself, you're welcome to stop by and review our result charts at any time.

Q. Is the wrap painful?

A. No. Unlike salons who use rough paper which has to be hosed off, we use sterilized rolls of soft cotton bandages.

A. Our wrap has worked on thousands of other people and that's why we offer a money back guarantee if you don't lose from 5 to 25 inches, depending on where you are wrapped. May we suggest that anybody with a figure problem call us for a body wrap analysis without cost or obligation. These consultations are private and confidential.

Ignore Advice In Picking Wife

THREE-YEAR REPORT

Children's Center Becomes A Reality

By JOAN LISETOR

Three years of effort by many persons have gone into the founding of the center. Finding a location, the once abandoned kindergarten room at Yolandsale School in San Anselmo, made the center seem a reality, said the director, Mrs. Stanley Seiderman of San Anselmo. Funding has been a major challenge and set back the opening of the center once already last year.

In the midst of final weeks of preparation the federal government announced proposed new guidelines regarding funding of day care centers, which if not amended or withdrawn, will go into effect March 15. Along with most child eare programs nationwide, the Fairfax-San Anselmo Children's Center may cease to exist.

Despite its gloomy future, the center opened today in an atmosphere that could not have been more cheerful. Thirteen children arrived this morning to find brightly painted furniture and a room decorated to suit the taste of the 30-month to 6-year-old age range.

"OUR CAPACITY is 30 children," but since we had to postpone our August opening due to AB99 (a bill changing the funding of day care centers from the Department of Public Social Services to the State Department of Education) some people made other arrangements for their children."

Formation of the center has been a joint effort of the National Council of Jewish Women, Marin Chapter; the San Anselmo School District; Community Action Marin; the Volunteer Bureau of Marin, and the Marin Association for Mental Health.

Representatives from the groups got together over the weekend for a combination work and letter writing session, getting the room and materials ready, and writing letters to the President, Congressmen and the state superintendent of public instruction urging a change in the guidelines.

"We have been hit by two regulations in the guidelines," Mrs. Seiderman explained. "First the government redefined former and potential welfare recipients. Until now a former recipient was anyone who had been on welfare during the past two years, but according to the new guidelines a former has only three months. A potential, someone who has never been on welfare but needs help to stay off, has qualified for five years; now that is shortened to six months."

The federal government reimburses child care centers for children whose parents fall under these categories, and this is the group the local center is attempting to reach, according to Mrs. Seiderman.

THE NEW guidelines also eliminate the federal program of matching private donations to federal support on a three for one basis. Federal aid would still be provided for programs using public state and local funds, but the United Bay Area Crusade matching funds, which the center has received, are considered private, so rule the center ineligible for federal funds.

"We have received and spent our first payment of $3,600 from UBAC," Mrs. Seiderman said. "We used it to get ready and to hire staff before we knew there would be problems like these, and we have another check due next week. As far as I know the check is on its way."

Walter Dolan, principal of Yolansdale School is excited about having the center at the school, and he sees it as a part of the school, rather than just a group renting space there, he said.

"We have been looking forward to working together for about a year," Dolan said, "hoping to integrate some of the young children into our ungraded kindergarten-first grade class."

Chairman of the San Anselmo School Board, Mary Olive, sees the venture as a mutual benefit as well as a solution to the problem of what to do with excess classrooms.

"WE WERE looking for compatible uses to pick up the costs, when the arrangements were made with the child care committee. More use of classrooms also gives us greater protection from vandalism."

Members of the National Council of Jewish Women also attending the work-letter writing session, Babette Bloch of Mill Valley, vice president in charge of community service projects; Joy Zailian of Tiburon, chairman of the day care committee; and Dr. Hannah Hochstaedter of San Anselmo, a pediatrician and the council's representative on the day care center's board, also have a concern.

"We have served as the center's fiscal agent," explained Mrs. Bloch. "We thought our part in organizing the center was complete. It happened so suddenly we haven't had time to decide what to o, having planned to go on to another project. Our members had planned to participate once the center was going by taking the children on field trips, serving as volunteer aides and doing things like taking them to the doctors for well baby check-ups."

"It looks like we are going to have to put our efforts into different directions," Mrs. Zailian said

"We are open, and we will stay open because we are committed to the program," Mrs. Seiderman said. "What I hope to see is the federal government funding children's centers 100 per cent, putting a priority on children instead of airplanes."

FINAL WORK WAS completed over the weekend so the Fairfax-San Anselmo children's Center could open today at the Yolandsdale School in San Anselmo. But the session turned into a combination work and letter writing session because members of the staff, parents and others ho have helped organize the center hope to persuade the federal government to change guidelines issued last week that may wipe out the day care facility along with other social services throughout the country.

EVERYTHING'S COMING UP DAISIES

Sen. Peter Behr, R-San Rafael, eyes the Shasta Daisy he got Friday from Terra Linda High School students who want the blossom to be America's national flower. Amy Blythe, fastening Behr's daisy lapel pin, is one of several Shasta Daisy Students (SDS) who organized the campaign in a senior government class. They are asking the Legislature to pass a resolution requesting Congress to adopt the daisy as the National flower. The flower is one of the few sturdy enough to grow well in the fifty states, according to the students.

Redevelopment Plan To Be Viewed Once Again

Marin County supervisors will attempt again Tuesday to iron out differences with the City of San Rafael over the city's redevelopment plan.

A proposed agreement to limit the size and scope of the redevelopment project failed last week to get the necessary third vote from supervisors. The vote is needed to drop two county suits against the project.

Two supervisors, Peter R. Arrigoni Jr. and Robert A. Roumiguiere, have indicated they will support the agreement which limits the project to $6 million in redevelopment bonds over the next seven years.

Supervisors Arnold M. Baptiste and Gary T. Giacomini last week continued to voice opposition to the project, saying it was too large and lacked social benefit.

Supervisor Michael Wornum, who has opposed the city's plan in the past, declined to give an opinion pending further study of the county's legal posture.

A closed session is scheduled for 9 a.m. Tuesday to discuss legal matters and the county's two suits. The board will convene in public session at 9:30 a.m.

Redevelopment has pitted city and county officials against one another for months over the way it would be financed — primarily through "siphoning off" county tax revenues.

The supervisors' agenda also includes:

ANIMALS — Discussion of the regional water quality control board's proposed guidelines to control animal waste on West Marin ranches. Supervisors claim the guidelines are too strict.

CHILD CARE — A request from Dr. Virgil S. Hollis, county superintendent of schools, for support in protesting proposed federal cutbacks in child day care funds.

PARKING — Recommendations from the county administrator's office on solving parking problems at the Civic Center. The administrator is recommending hiring of a parking enforcement officer to clamp down on parking violators.

GAYS — An amendment to the county's human rights ordinance insuring equal employment opportunities to homosexuals. The item is contained under "nonpolicy items," which generally are approved without discussion.

College Board Wants Site Work Funding

Marin Community College District staff wants state education officials to help restore state funds for site work at Indian Valley Colleges cut from the governor's 1973-74 budget.

The state Department of Finance didn't include money for storm drains and campus lighting in the budget, district trustees were told.

But the budget did list $1,545,400 in state contributions toward $4,308,648 worth of construction at the new North Marin campus.

The estimated total cost of the draining and walkways and lighting and signing at Indian Valley Colleges is $610,839, and the state was asked to contribute about 35 per cent.

Dale A. Fleming, director of planning for the college district, said that if the cut funds aren't restored, it won't hinder the anticipated fall 1974 opening of the campus.

"We'd just have to put in temporary gravel walkways and hold no night classes," suggested Fleming.

The district is spending $4 million on initial construction, plus $1.5 on site development.

Construction projects that have been included in proposed 1973-74 state budget include a power plant and corporation yard, Inner College "A," a classroom and laboratory building for Inner College "B," an administration building, and science classroom laboratories for Inner College "C."

HELEN HELP US!

By HELEN BOTTEL

Sometimes Unwanted Advice Needed If Reminder Is Used

DEAR HELEN:

You said unwanted advice is as welcome as an allergy on a hay ride. How about people who ask for your advice, then hold it against you?

I introduced a widower friend of mine to a woman I once dated casually. When things began getting heavy, my friend asked my frank opinion on their chances of a good marriage.

They got married anyway. And now they are both extremely cool. According to the woman, I'm supposed to have "damaged her reputation and almost wrecked her romance," and of course the man holds it against me for "talking about his future wife." Guess they had a truth session that made me the villain.

So here's my advice: when someone asks yours, stay mum! — OUT IN THE COOL

DEAR OITC:

If I took your advice, I wouldn't stay in business long. But you're right: honesty leads to enmity when a friend only wants encouragement.

Remind this couple you introduced them in the first place — which should win you a few points — until they begin to blame you for that too. — H.

DEAR HELEN:

I am a vet going to college on the GI bill, age 30, have a job that will support a wife (especially if she works, too) and everything was set for my marriage to Sheila, age 20 . . . until I fell in love with her mother.

While Sheila was away at college, I got to coming over to Maria's (her divorced mother) for dinner. She is a young 37, and a fascinating woman. When Sheila came home at Christmastime, I realized what a mistake I'd made. I want Maria for my wife, but how will I work out as stepfather to my ex-fiance?

On the plus side, Sheila is cooling off, but these two are very close. Even if she's stopped loving me, will she accept me in the family? — FATHER OF THE "BRIDE"

DEAR FOTB:

Why don't you ask her — and also Maria? (Nowhere in your letter did you mention that the mother of the "bride" wanted you for a husband.) — H.

DEAR HELEN:

Society frowns on the older woman marrying a young man, while it admires the older male who catches a young chick. In our era of hormones, plastic surgery, etc., this seems ridiculous. People should forget age and seek mates who please them.

A Los Angeles psychiatrist made a study of present-day human mating and indicated men might be happier with more mature women. They make better wives, he said, as they "age" later, and mellow with the years. An older woman can match her male mentally, socially and emotionally, while a young wife is apt to destroy an older husband.

Look at the famous beauties of our world: Liz, Jackie, Ingrid, Elke, Sophia, Raquel — they're all considerably over 30 and some over 40. And women really don't develop much intelligence until age 30.

When I get ready to marry, I won't let age stand in my way. So if you know any 40-year-old unattached females, Helen, refer them to — 30 AND JUST ABOUT READY

P.S. It isn't a requisite, but if they have money, I won't hold it against them.

DEAR 30:

Sorry, I don't run a lonely-hearts concession. Besides, a man who insists that under-30 women lack beauty and brains wouldn't appeal to my over-30 friends. — H.

MONEY MATTERS

How To Save On Car Repairs

By Josephine Ripley
The Christian Science Monitor
News Service

How can you save on car repairs? You can if you try, and here are some tips:

1. See that your car gets "preventive maintenance."

2. Take it in for servicing at the first sign of trouble. Don't put it off even though the car is still running and you think you can get by.

3. Have your brakes checked as mileage piles up.

4. Be sure — or as sure as you can be — that you are taking your car to a good mechanic.

5. Beware of the "language barrier." Describe the problem as accurately as you can. How the car sounds, reacts. Locate the area of the problem if possible. Communicate.

6. Know something about your car beside the color of the upholstery. When you ask for a simple tune-up, know what you are asking for and should get.

"PREVENTIVE MAINTENANCE, is the way to maintain a car and prevent engine problems," according to a General Motors service manager who has seen cars come and go through the service department for 25 years.

What is preventive maintenance? It is taking the car in regularly for an oil and grease change. Many motorists do not do this. They can't see that the car runs any better after this service than it did before. Why waste the money?

The answer is that lack of regular lubrication can necessitate repairs costing $150 or more.

Manufacturers recommend an oil change every 6,000 miles. But if you are a low mileage driver, it would be wise to change the oil every 2,000 miles. Impurities tend to collect in low mileage driving.

About the brakes: When should you have them checked? A motorist who does a lot of city driving should have the brakes checked every 15,000 miles. One who does most of his driving on open highways should have a brake check every 24,000 miles. In other words, city driving is harder on the brake system.

If you are in doubt, take your car in for a brake check. Let the mechanic take the wheels off and have a look at the brake linings. Or take it to a diagnostic center. They can check linings there without removing the wheels.

In fact, diagnostic centers are recommended even by top mechanics. The price of a checkup is low. If repairs are recommended, you can report to your regular mechanic and see if he agrees. It's a good way to double-check.

It is a generally accepted fact that dealership-service departments have good mechanics and good equipment. They are specialists in working on the kind of cars sold by the dealership. The bigger stations are jammed with work, to be sure. The smaller dealerships have a heavy work load, but there is some advantage in the smaller operation.

Most car owners take their cars to such places for service at least while they are under the warranty.

Be sure you know just hat comes under that warranty. Otherwise you may take your car to a nearby gasoline service station for something that comes under the warranty and would be done without charge by a dealership.

For instance, you might pay from $60 to $100 at a gas station for a new water pump — a needless expenditure since this is covered by the car guarantee. Check all those printed documents before you spend your money.

Some motorists avoid dealership-service departments because they feel the charge is higher. There has been some criticism of the "flat rate charge." That is, a price for the job rather than a per hour charge.

It has been argued that the customer may have to pay for an hour's labor when an hour was not required for the job. That may be true. But dealer servicemen contend that the flat rate charge is actually a consumer protection. The flat rate is based on X amount of dollars per hour and the time it takes a person to do the job.

ON MANY common jobs, there should not be any variation. But it is argued that at a dealership you are paying for trained personnel — for a mechanic who knows that particular car thoroughly.

If the flat rate book says a certain job should be done in two hours and it takes eight hours to do it, the charge is still for two hours. On an hourly system, you would pay for the eight hours.

There are good mechanics at many gasoline stations. They know something about all types of cars, but usually are not specialists on any one car.

Sometimes you find one who has many regular, satisfied customers. You find out about him by word of mouth.

As for the language barrier. Most drivers are not mechanics, right? So it is important to describe your car problem in such a way that the mechanic will have at least a general idea of what it is.

Don't depend on your memory. When you discover an irregularity in the handling or sound of your car, you may be far from a service station. Make a note of the problem then, in a notebook or on a piece of paper. It will help you to describe it briefly and most concisely.

How many car owners know what a tune-up is — what it consists of? A simple tune-up should include the setting or replacing of the spark plugs, the points, the condenser, the motor and adjustment of the carburetor.

The charge includes labor and parts and as a rule comes to $30 or $35.

WHAT ABOUT A major tune-up? This may include an overhauling of the carburetor. The charge depends on the size and type of carburetor. It may run from $50 to $100. So, if you want a major overhaul, but not a carburetor overhaul, be sure to make this clear.

It is a good idea to ask for a safety check occasionally. This includes the removal of one wheel to inspect the brakes, checking all lights, tires, front suspension, steering and exhaust system.

This service may be free if you happen to be a regular customer.

RAPPING ABOUT THE REDUCING WRAP

Many questions have been raised concerning the new methods of size and weight reduction now offered in health studios around the country. The following information is designed to help answer some of your questions about our organic mummy wrap, not to make or imply any medical or therapeutic claims.

Q. What is the Ann Marie Body Wrap method?
A. Our body wrap is a reducing process allowing a person to lose inches and in many instances, pounds, as it liquefies fat, lightens scars, stretch and age marks, increases the circulation, draws out the poisons and toxins without dehydration and most of all it conditions and shrinks the skin.

Q. Is the Organic Mummy Wrap safe for me to use?
A. A dermatologist brought this formula from Europe and developed this exclusively for Ann Marie Figure Salons. Any person can use our wrap. We suggest if you have any question about your health or reducing plans, consult your family doctor, before beginning your program of self improvement.

Q. Does this mean the inch loss a person receives from our wrap is a water loss that will return after drinking water?
A. We feel that the inch loss a person receives from our wrap is more permanent than dieting or exercise. As with dieting or exercising, the permanency of inch loss depends on a person's day to day habits after the event. Contrary to common belief, a liquid loss of this nature will not return permanently upon the consumption of non-caloric fluids. Drinking water is non-caloric and its ingestion travels the digestive process with the greatest percentage leaving the body through the urinary system. We encourage you to drink as much as eight glasses of water a day.

Nancy Ruud

Jean Hicks
Lost 6 inches in first visit, next day another 7¾ inches all in the tummy area

Q. Does wrapping involve exercise?
A. No, our body wrap works independently of exercise. You do nothing except lie back, relax, read a book, or even take a nap while your body wrap treatment works for you. We ask you not to go into any exercise program of any kind while on our program.

Delores Ownes
Went from size 12 to a size 9 in just 10 visits.

Q. Do you use any drugs or medications.
A. Absolutely not!
Q. How long does it last?
A. Nothing lasts forever but most of our ladies are happy for one year.
Q. Can the face be wrapped?
A. Yes. Most of our ladies do take facials. It is not only very restful but it stops the aging process, tightens the neck, eye and chin tissue as it lightens scar and age marks.

Ethel Fuller

Q. Is the treatment hot?
A. No, heat sometimes triggers your body into gaining weight and makes your skin flabby. With our body wrap we cool the body making your skin young and tight. It feels good too.
Q. How fast will we see results?
A. You will feel and see results after your first treatment. In just 90 minutes we guarantee you will lose from 5 to 25 inches, depending on where you are wrapped or your money will be refunded.
Q. How do I know I am receiving results.
A. In many ways: Prior to the wrap we measure tightly and mark each and every person where they are measured. Second, after the wrap you are remeasured on the same mark so the before and after measurements are as accurate as possible. In addition many people will lose actual body weight as well as inches making the results evident.
Q. Is our wrap like most of the other wraps I have heard about?
A. No. Our wrap is considerably different from any of the other reducing wraps on the market. We use the compression method because it works best. We have used this for 13 years. This method molds the body the way you want it. It increases circulation, pulls fatty granules out of the tissue. The tighter you are wrapped the more you lose. Our lotion is different. It is organic and completely safe. Our added tightening ingredient LJ5 is also organic which conditions the skin and makes the inch loss more permanent.
Q. Do I lose all over?
A. Not necessarily, we use the controlled area method. What this means is we wrap you only where you want to lose. You can lose as much as 3 inches or more off midriff and back, without changing the size of the bust.

Q. Do you keep wrap records in your salons?
A. At all Ann Marie Figure Salons, measurements before and after the process are recorded and the results totaled on a measurement chart. Statistical material gathered from these charts in our Santa Rosa salon, which we routinely keep, for the month of February, 1972, showed an average inch loss of 8.67 inches per application for patrons wrapped that month. This was based on approximately 211 wraps applied. If you would like to confirm the results for yourself, you're welcome to stop by and review our result charts at any time.

Q. Is the wrap painful?

A. No. Unlike salons who use rough paper which has to be hosed off, we use sterilized rolls of soft cotton bandages.

A. Our wrap has worked on thousands of other people and that's why we offer a money back guarantee if you don't lose from 5 to 25 inches, depending on where you are wrapped. May we suggest that anybody with a figure problem call us for a body wrap analysis without cost or obligation. These consultations are private and confidential.

Happy Marin Tars Bound For Ventura

By RALPH CHATOIAN
I-J Sports Editor

It's on to Ventura and the state championships for a happy bunch of College of Marin basketball players.

The Tars earned the right to represent the Camino Norte Conference when they drubbed Skyline College of San Bruno, 85-64, Saturday night in Kentfield, clinching the CNC crown.

The only game remaining on Marin's schedule is at Suisun Wednesday night against Solano College, and the Tars' 12-1 conference record is two full games better than their nearest pursuer, West Valley of Campbell. And unless Marin comes completely apart at the seams, it will crush the Solano cagers, winners of just one conference game all year, and take a 26-3 season record into the State Community College Championships at Ventura. March 8-9-10.

Marin, ranked fourth in the state, will be taking on seventh-ranked Riverside Junior College of the Mission Conference in the tournament's opening game at 3 p.m. in the Ventura College gym.

Following Saturday night's victory, the jubilant players hauled head coach John Panagakis out of the locker room, carried him to the nearby diving pool and flung him in, clothes and all. The players, still in their basketball uniforms, joined Panagakis in the water and some even dived from the three-meter board and the higher platform at the far end of the pool.

There was shouting, there was laughter, there was joy. It was College of Marin's first CNC basketball title in five years of competing in it after being switched from the smaller Golden Valley Conference. The players wanted to make the most of it.

Marin came close last year before losing its final two games of the season, to West Valley and Skyline.

"We were really ready for them this time," said a beaming Neil Traub, 6-foot-9 center who was a member of both Tars' teams. "We weren't going to let it happen again this year. This is the best team Marin ever had."

"We would like to really thank our fans," cut in guard Joe DeMaestri, also a member of both those Tar teams. "They were really great." Forward Joe Casteel, the other Marin starter who played on the 1971-72 team, agreed.

It was Casteel who got Marin started against Skyline, scoring eight of Marin's first 10 points to keep the score tied at 10-all after the first six minutes. Skyline, on a pair of free throws by Jeff Wellemeyer, went ahead at the 14-12 shortly after that, but with DeMaestri, Traub and guard Len Smith each hitting a pair of buckets, the Tars jumped out to a seven-point lead which they were not going to again give up.

Freshman forward Wil Garner, the team's top scorer, led all players with 20 points, 14 of them coming in the second half.

Hooray! Baseball's Peace Treaty Signed

Baseball's great feud of 1973 is over. Peace has been restored in the land and the national (outdoor) pastime will start on schedule. Talk of strikes and lockouts and all those problems of big business is over.

Just when I thought all men in high places in baseball had gone daffy, the announcement came that spring training would start as scheduled, the official day being Thursday. Baseball players throughout the U.S. are gathering up their bats, balls, gloves and shoes and making plans for flights to Florida, California and Arizona.

From the wire stories I've read about the agreement between management and hirelings, peace will last for three years, at which time, I imagine, the two sides will again be at each other's throat. Major stumbling block always is the reserve clause which binds a player indefinitely to the team which signs him.

The settlement reached yesterday covers a so-called Basic Agreement which governs active player-owner relations and the pension-benefit plan and reportedly permits arbitration of salary squabbles for players who have been in the big leagues for at least two consecutive seasons or a total of three years.

The agreement led to quotes such as, "a milestone in baseball," and " . . . give and take on both sides."

I didn't think it would take the owners and players, through their representative Marvin Miller, this long to call a truce. The last things either side should have wanted were a strike or a lockout by the owners.

After last year's delayed season start, an action which most assuredly caused some fans to leave baseball and turn to such things as opera or ballet, I didn't think either side would be content to "turn off" more fans. Let's face it. Baseball interest is on the downswing and the sport needs all the help it can get to remain a money-making business for the owners. After all, when it gets to the point that owners spend more money than they take in, they will cease to be owners and stick to such things as selling chewing gum or insurance.

But for now, let's all shout it together: PLAY BALL!

IF YOU CAUGHT the final few holes of the Jackie Gleason Inverrary-National Airlines Golf Classic (phew, that's a name!) on television yesterday, you can be excused for shedding a tear for a young San Jose man by the name of Forrest Fezler.

All week long, while he was leading the tournament, Fezler said he would try not to think about that $52,000 first prize. Everything was going fine until he bogied the 15th hole. Then he missed a little five-foot putt on 17, the three-putt green costing him another bogie and the lead to Lee Trevino. Then with one last chance to tie Trevino on 18, Fezler missed another five-footer. After missing the putt, he stood there before the television cameras, his head in his hand, one more young kid who came out of golf's wolfpack to snatch the glory of victory, only to have it slip through his fingers like so much jelly. There's always tomorrow, Forrest.

MIDNIGHT SWIM — College of Marin basketball coach John Panagakis and his double-knits were given an unauthorized drenching in the school's swimming pool Saturday night after his Tars clinched the Camino Norte Conference championship with an 85-64 victory over Skyline College. The coach, game to the end, struggled to take John Crozier (front) with him. Helping push Panagakis in were Jim Forni (44), Steve Pieper (behind Panagakis), Rich Hagler (behind Pieper), Len Smith (background) and Mike Lindquist.

Play Ball! Camps Open

NEW YORK (UPI) — "Hallelujah! Thank the Good Lord that it's over," said Nick Mileti, owner of the Cleveland Indians.

"It was the first thing they said on the news. I was so tickled I almost rammed the car in front of me," said Paul Owens, general manager of the Philadelphia Phillies.

"Needless to say, I am gratified...Now for the next three years, and hopefully much longer, we will be able to concentrate on baseball," said Cedric Tallis, general manager of the Kansas City Royals.

Thanks to a three-year agreement reached by negotiators for the owners and players Sunday, the scheduled March 1 opening of spring training was assured. But that didn't prevent the 24 clubs from welcoming their heroes en masse beginning today at sites throughout Florida and Arizona and one in California.

"Very informal," was the description given by New York Yankee manager Ralph Houk for today's scheduled workout at Fort Lauderdale, Fla. "We'll start around 11, but I won't hold anybody to that time," Houk said shortly after learning of the agreement Sunday. "Me? I'll be there early. About 9:30. I can't wait to get started."

Houk, along with 23 other major league managers and some 600 players, were given the go-ahead when agreement on a new three-year contract was announced following a 90-minute meeting in the midtown New York office of John Gaherin, the chief negotiator for the owners. Details of the agreement were withheld pending ratification by the players and owners.

Marvin Miller, the executive director of the Players Association, said a meeting of his group's executive board, made up of the player reps from the 24 clubs, will be held Wednesday in Miami. The board is expected to urge ratification of the contract by the entire membership.

"The ratification by the players will begin as soon as possible in spring training and we will meet with two clubs at a time to speed it up," said the white-haired Miller, who along with aide Dick Moss and Minnesota Twins pitcher and player rep Jim Perry represented the

Sonoma State Can Clinch Loop Cage Title Friday

By PAUL DWORIN

SAN FRANCISCO — Sonoma State College can clinch its first Far Western Conference basketball championship this weekend after securing at least a tie for the title Saturday night by downing San Francisco State here, 94-88.

The win upped the Cossacks' conference record to 9-2, which gives them a one and a half-game edge over runner-up Chico State College, 7-3. Regardless of what Chico does this weekend against Hayward and San Francisco State colleges, Sonoma can wrap up the title with a home victory over Sacramento State College Friday night.

The Cossacks held a slim 48-47 lead with 16 minutes left in the second half when they went on an offensive spree, outscoring the Gators 21-7 in the next six minutes. Bill Belander and Tom Fitchie put in six points each during this stretch.

That was the biggest lead Sonoma gained, as the Gators clawed their way back into the game, cutting the margin down to six points with a minute to play. They never got closer, though, as the Cossacks matched them basket for basket in the final moments of the game.

"I thought we played a good game, especially in the second half," commented a happy Cossack coach, Bill Trumbo, after the game. "In the second half we slowed up a bit and controlled the tempo of the game, not like in the first half when we tried to run with them a little too much."

The first half was a much closer battle, with neither team able to pull away by more than the five point Sonoma lead, 33-28, in the middle of the half. San Francisco came right back to grab its biggest lead of the half by scoring nine straight unanswered points to take over, 37-33. In all, there were 12 ties and 15 exchanges of leads in the first half.

Steve Tiedeman led the scoring in the first half with 13 points, as both teams were cold with the Cossacks shooting 42 per cent from the field and the Gators hitting a poor 37 per cent.

Tiedeman increased his scoring pace in the second half, popping in 20-foot jumpers and even one 30-footer for a game high total of 28 points. Belander and Ron Johnson added 19 and 18 points for the winners.

In the preliminary game, the Sonoma junior varsity squad completed its most successful season ever with a 71-70 victory over the San Francisco junior varsity. Keith Mason and Ken Thurston led the Cossacks with 16 points each.

Seals Learn Flyers Use Sticks, Fists

OAKLAND (UPI) — The California Golden Seals have learned the Philadelphia Flyers can act with their hockey sticks as well as their fists.

With Doug Favell in goal, the Flyers, most penalized team in the National Hockey League, trounced the Seals 7-0 in a Sunday matinee before 5,330 disappointed fans at the Coliseum-Arena.

Favell turned aside 31 shots in recording his first shutout of the season. For all purposes, the Flyers won the game toward the end of the first period when Don Saleski, Tom Bladon and Gary Dornhoefer all scored within a 48-second span.

The game was a turnaround for the Seals, who played brilliantly in beating the New York Rangers 5-3 Friday night.

Philadelphia played a comparatively mild first two periods, getting whistled for only two penalties. But things erupted in the final period when a fight between Bob Stewart of the Seals and the Flyers Jim Watson triggered several minor skirmishes.

Referee Lloyd Gilmour assessed one game misconduct against Saleski for joining in the fray and he handed 10-minute misconducts to Stewart and Dave Schultz of the Flyers.

Showing only one victory in their last 15 games, the Seals now go on the road for three games starting Wednesday night against the Minnesota North Stars. Then California plays a weekend set at Pittsburgh and Atlanta.

SONOMA WRESTLER WINS TITLE

SACRAMENTO — Sonoma State College wrestler Ed Buonaccorsi won the 126-pound championship of the Far Western Conference with a 6-1 decision over Paul Zender of Humboldt State College here Saturday night.

Ron Lunsford, 167-pounder, and heavyweight Dennis Hudson took third and fourth places to help lead the Cossacks to their best showing in the conference finals — a fifth place finish behind first-place San Francisco State College.

2 Marin Wrestlers Qualify For Tourney

Ron Losk and Jon Loberg must like Hayward, because they'll be going back there this weekend.

The two wrestlers from Terra Linda High School each finished second in the North Coast Section meet Saturday at Tennyson High School in the East Bay city, thus qualifying for the state meet Friday and Saturday at Hayward State University.

Loberg, a heavyweight, suffered his first defeat of the year in the final match Saturday, losing an 8-5 decision, pinned an opponent at 33 seconds of the second period, and won a 16-6 decision.

Losk, a 194-pounder, dropped a 7-6 decision to Dan Bohan of St. Helena, the same wrestler who defeated him in the Division I finals the weekend before. Prior to his loss, Losk pinned three opponents in 5:15, 5:15 and 4:48.

Mike Roush, a 178-pounder from Redwood High, finished fifth. (The top four qualified for the state meet.) Of the nine Marinites who were eligible to compete in the NCS meet, the only other one who participated was Terra Linda's Reggie Grant, a 136-pounder, who lost two close matches and was eliminated.

Smith tallied 18 points and DeMaestri 17, 14 in the first half, mostly on outside shots. High man for Skyline was guard Herlest Eastman with 18 points.

Referees were calling everything close, determined not to let the game get out of hand. A total of 45 fouls were called, 25 against Skyline and 20 against Marin. Casteel fouled out with 3:59 left in the game but by then it was already out of reach, 75-59. A little more than one minute later, Panagakis pulled all his starters out, to the ovation of the 1,800 fans who almost filled the gymnasium.

Marin led by 12 at the half, 45-33, and maintained a lead of from eight to 14 points until Skyline found itself in foul trouble and started giving up too many free throw opportunities to Marin. In a short stretch Marin, with one-and-one chances at the free throw line, converted seven of eight free throws, four of them by Smith, and then Garner hit four straight fielders and the game and championship were in the bag.

"Those guys are really something," said Panagakis after getting out of his wet clothes into some dry ones. He admitted he had been forewarned about the possible dunking if the team won.

Ne t item on Panagakis agenda is to make reservations for a short stay in Ventura next month. "I'll be doing that bright and early Monday morning," he laughed.

Skyline — Hansen 3-2-8, O'Regan 5-2-12, Eastman 7-4-18, Wellemeyer 1-4-6, Sever 5-0-10, LaBelle 1-0-2, Jones 4-0-8. Totals: 26-12-64.

players at the meeting in Gaherin's office.

The owners' group included, besides Gaherin, National League president Chub Feeney, American League president Joe Cronin, attorneys Barry Rona, Lou Hoines and Jim Garner and Harry Allen, an actuary.

Sunday's meeting ended 10 days of intensive talks that had been held in an attempt to break the stalemate, get the players into camp, and prevent any repetition of last year's deadlock that saw a players' strike at the beginning of the season lop 13 days off the 1972 campaign.

Despite the reluctance of both sides to discuss the new contract, the two chief stumbling blocks almost from the start of negotiations were the players' insistence on having outside arbitration in salary disputes and the owners' refusal to budge on changes in the reserve clause. When the owners saw that the players would not relent in their demands they announced spring training camps would not open until an agreement was reached.

Following a meeting in Miller's office Saturday a settlement appeared imminent but both Miller and Gaherin emphasized the agreement was not reached until Sunday.

"There were several loose ends and a major issue still to be settled today," Miller insisted.

"The agreement was reached in this room today," Gaherin added.

Missed Putts Spell Win For Lee

Fezler Blows Two Key Shots

By DAVID MOFFIT

LAUDERHILL, Fla. (UPI) — Let's be honest, Lee Trevino didn't win the Jackie Gleason Inverrary Classic, Forrest Fezler lost it.

All the 23-year-old Fezler had to do Sunday was make four-foot putts on each of the last two holes and $52,000 and his first professional victory would have been his.

Fezler fretted over those putts, and missed them both.

"This is the first time a miss meant a win for me," said the jubilant Trevino, who now has won 14 Professional Golfers Association tournaments in addition to two British Opens.

"I know Forrest was feeling the pressure out there," he added. "But he's young. He was there. He's got a good future. The next time he'll be able to pull it out. When you lose, you lose by making mistakes and you win by not making the same mistakes twice."

Fezler, who shot 67-69-68 the first three rounds, went into Sunday's final round three strokes ahead of Trevino, who had posted three straight 69s.

But the battle-tested Trevino played even par golf in a light rain to wind up at nine-under-par 207 while Fezler, who still had two holes to go when Trevino finished, had those missed putts and a 76 for 280.

Fexler insisted he "did not choke" and that he "was not thinking about the money."

The dejected Fezler wondered aloud whether he could win a tournament this year. "It's tough. I don't know how (Jack) Nicklaus does it every week. He ought to have gray hair instead of blonde."

Nicklaus, who wound up in a tie for sixth place at 283, was never really in contention in the Gleason Classic, although the $8,092 puts him just a few dollars behind Trevino in their battle to overtake leading money winner Bruce Crampton, who withdrew from the Gleason Thursday. Nicklaus, who had a 71 Sunday, was never closer than he was at the end.

Trevino hadn't won since last September, at St. Louis, and had said that he usually didn't start getting on his game until the tour came to Florida.

"It makes me feel good to win this early," he said. "It helps relieve the tension as the year goes by."

Although Fezler was unhappy about not winning, the $29,640 second prize in this richest 72-hole tournament of the year had to salve his wounds.

Bob Murphy got $18,460 for finishing third with a 71 for 281 and Sam Snead and Bruce Devlin each got $11,440 for tying for fourth at 282.

Snead will be 61 in May and Trevino said "It's incredible how a man can strike the ball like that at his age."

Johnny Miller, Jerry Heard and Gibby Gilbert were tied with Nicklaus at 283, Ed Sneed was alone at 284, and first-round co-leader Gay Brewer headed a group of six 285 shooters.

Arnold Palmer, believed finding new golf life at 43 when he won the Hope Desert Classic several weeks ago, never got his game going at Inverrary and finished far back in the field at 292. Defending champion Tom Weiskopf was 10 strokes higher this year than the 278 that he won here with in 1972.

WATCH THE BIRDIE — Flamboyant Lee Trevino grinned after he watched his birdie putt drop on the 15th hole yesterday during the Jackie Gleason Inverrary golf tournament in Lauderhill, Fla. His birdie, the last of the round, was the margin of victory as Trevino won by a stroke over Forrest Fezler. Trevino gained his first victory of the year and took home the $52,000 first prize with his 279. (UPI Telephoto)

Ken DeMont Stars In Marin Swim Meet

Ken DeMont, swimming "the best meet of his life without a doubt" in coach Don Swartz's words, captured four first places and two seconds and led the Marin Aquatic Club to a second-place finish in the Marin A.C. Junior-Senior Class swimming meet Saturday and yesterday at Terra Linda High School.

Ken, younger brother of Olympian Rick DeMont, won the 100-yard backstroke in 59.6 seconds and the 200 individual medley in 2:09.9, and swam on the winning 800 freestyle and 400 medley relay teams. He also finished second in the 200 butterfly and the 400 I.M.

Marin A.C. finished with 202 points, trailing the Pleasant Hill Swim Club's 274, but outdistancing the Pacific Athletic Club of Stockton (51½) and the Arden Hills Swim Club from the Sacramento area (40½). Some 56 clubs participated.

Other winners from Marin A.C. included Keith Strange in the 100 free (50.9), John Redig in the 100 breast (1:07.8), Dan Stewart in the 200 breast (2:28.6), Maura Campion in the girls' 100 back (1:07.7), Julie Waters in the girls' 200 back (2:26.0), and the boys 400 free relay team.

The times of the winning relay teams were 3:31.6 for the 400 free (Keith Strange, Jeff Miller, Scott Hislop and Brian Silcox), 4:02.2 for the 400 medley (DeMont, Stewart, Bob Placak, Miller) and 7:47.7 for the 800 free (Hislop, Mike Keck, Miller, DeMont).

Yacht Intrepid Goes To 3-Man Syndicate

SEATTLE (UPI) — The 12-meter America's cup yacht Intrepid has been purchased by a syndicate of three men and wil be entered in the 1974 competition for the classic goblet.

George Schuchart, Seattle construction and towing company executive, said Saturday that he, Charles Hughes of San Diego and George Jewett of San Francisco had bought the Intrepid from the International Oceanographic Foundation of Miami.

2 Marin Men Win In Car Show

Larrie Mead and Rick Loomer, both of San Rafael, were gold medal trophy winners at the 25th annual National Roadster Show which ended a 10-day run last night at the Oakland Coliseum Arena.

The show's $5,000, nine-foot trophy as "America's most beautiful roadster" went to Charles Corsello of San Jose for his psychedelic 1923 hot rod.

Giants' Fox Waiting For Camp's Start

SAN FRANCISCO (UPI) — Manager Charlie Fox is in Arizona awaiting the opening of spring training today for the San Francisco Giants.

"We're ready to go Tuesday," said Fox after learning of Sunday's agreement between club owners and the players association. "I'm already planning intrasquad games starting perhaps as early as next Tuesday. We've got to work a little harder a little longer."

The Giants announced Saturday that pitcher Les Cain, 25, of the Detroit Tigers organization, would be given a tryout at spring training.

Cain played briefly with Detroit and Phoenix last season. In 1970 with the Tigers he amassed a 12-7 record.

The Giants also disclosed that catcher Dave Rader, who hit .259 last year, and infielder Gene Cook of the California League signed contracts.

Bruce Little's heave of 134 feet led the discus relay team, composed also of Larry Alberty and Mike O'Riley, to third place. Tom Malvino high-jumped 6 feet as he, Dave Volper and Greg Biber combined to take third place. Bob Bunnell finished third in the open three-mile run in 15:41.

Warriors Recapture Poise Versus Bucks

OAKLAND (UPI) — Golden State has regained its poise and coach Al Attles hopes it remains until the playoffs.

With Rick Barry providing the offensive spark and Nate Thurmond and Jim Barnett performing heroically on defense, the Warriors turned back the Milwaukee Bucks 102-93 before 9,970 happy fans at the Coliseum-Arena Saturday night.

It was the first win for the Warriors over the Bucks in five National Basketball Association meetings this season. The victory also was the third straight for Golden State, including Friday night's triumph over the Lakers at Los Angeles.

"These two games were important," said Attles, "not in the standings, but because we played good basketball we'll need in the playoffs.

"The most important thing was our poise after we got behind in the third quarter against Milwaukee. I'd say it was a combination of poise and good defense that was the key to the game."

Milwaukee turned several bad Warrior passes into baskets to gain a 62-59 lead midway through the third quarter.

But the Warriors regained their momentum early in the fourth period as they outscored the Bucks 12-0 to take an 84-76 advantage with 8:02 remaining. Then Barry took over with the score tied 88-88 and scored six of his team's next 10 points to give Golden State an insurmountable 98-90 lead. Barry topped the Warriors with 25 points.

Barnett sparked the Warriors with his hustle and timely drives. But he also limited Bucks' guard Lucius Allen to 17 points while netting 18 himself. Allen was shooting 61 per cent from the floor and average 20.3 points against the Warriors.

Golden State now goes on the road for games in Detroit Tuesday night and at Boston Wednesday night.

Tar Golfers Face De Anza Tomorrow

Ex-Track Coach Wins $130,000 In Libel Suit

EL PASO, Tex. (UPI) — Former Texas-El Paso track coach Wayne Vandenburg, who sued Newsweek magazine for $2.5 million, was "very pleased" today with a federal court jury decision that awarded him $130,000 in damages.

Vandenburg filed the libel suit against Newsweek a few months after the article, entitled, "The Angry Black Athlete," appeared in a July, 1968, issue.

"The reason for all of it was that the article wasn't factual, contained untruths and painted a picture that wasn't me," he said. "Now, a jury has heard the evidence and evidently felt the same way."

The three-man, three-woman jury heard four days of testimony in U. S. District Judge Ernest Guinn's court last week, most of it from Vandenburg himself in direct and cross-examination testimony, before reaching a verdict in about six hours deliberation Saturday.

EVERYTHING'S COMING UP DAISIES

Sen. Peter Behr, R-San Rafael, eyes the Shasta Daisy he got Friday from Terra Linda High School students who want the blossom to be America's national flower. Amy Blythe, fastening Behr's daisy lapel pin, is one of several Shasta Daisy Students (SDS) who organized the campaign in a senior government class. They are asking the Legislature to pass a resolution requesting Congress to adopt the daisy as the National flower. The flower is one of the few sturdy enough to grow well in the fifty states, according to the students.

Redevelopment Plan To Be Viewed Once Again

Marin County supervisors will attempt again Tuesday to iron out differences with the City of San Rafael over the city's redevelopment plan.

A proposed agreement to limit the size and scope of the redevelopment project failed last week to get the necessary third vote from supervisors. The vote is needed to drop two county suits against the project.

Two supervisors, Peter R. Arrigoni Jr. and Robert A. Roumiguiere, have indicated they will support the agreement which limits the project to $6 million in redevelopment bonds over the next seven years.

Supervisors Arnold M. Baptiste and Gary T. Giacomini last week continued to voice opposition to the project, saying it was too large and lacked social benefit.

Supervisor Michael Wornum, who has opposed the city's plan in the past, declined to give an opinion pending further study of the county's legal posture.

A closed session is scheduled for 9 a.m. Tuesday to discuss legal matters and the county's two suits. The board will convene in public session at 9:30 a.m.

Redevelopment has pitted city and county officials against one another for months over the way it would be financed — primarily through "siphoning off" county tax revenues.

The supervisors' agenda also includes:

ANIMALS — Discussion of the regional water quality control board's proposed guidelines to control animal waste on West Marin ranches. Supervisors claim the guidelines are too strict.

CHILD CARE — A request from Dr. Virgil S. Hollis, county superintendent of schools, for support in protesting proposed federal cutbacks in child day care funds.

PARKING — Recommendations from the county administrator's office on solving parking problems at the Civic Center. The administrator is recommending hiring of a parking enforcement officer to clamp down on parking violators.

GAYS — An amendment to the county's human rights ordinance insuring equal employment opportunities to homosexuals. The item is contained under "nonpolicy items," which generally are approved without discussion.

College Board Wants Site Work Funding

Marin Community College District staff wants state education officials to help restore state funds for site work at Indian Valley Colleges cut from the governor's 1973-74 budget.

The state Department of Finance didn't include money for storm drains and campus lighting in the budget, district trustees were told.

But the budget did list $1,545,400 in state contributions toward $4,308,648 worth of construction at the new North Marin campus.

The estimated total cost of the draining and walkways and lighting and signing at Indian Valley Colleges is $610,839, and the state was asked to contribute about 35 per cent.

Dale A. Fleming, director of planning for the college district, said that if the cut funds aren't restored, it won't hinder the anticipated fall 1974 opening of the campus.

"We'd just have to put in temporary gravel walkways and hold no night classes," suggested Fleming.

The district is spending $4 million on initial construction, plus $1.5 on site development.

Construction projects that have been included in proposed 1973-74 state budget include a power plant and corporation yard, Inner College "A," a classroom and laboratory building for Inner College "B," an administration building, and science classroom laboratories for Inner College "C."

USF, SANTA CLARA

Fiery Cage Race On West Coast

By U.P. INTERNATIONAL

Meanwhile, third-ranked Long Beach State, angered by its upset at the hands of Los Angeles State the previous night, routed University of California at Santa Barbara 92-65 Saturday night to capture its fourth straight basketball title in the Pacific Coast Athletic Association.

At Las Vegas Sunday Santa Clara jumped back into a deadlock with San Francisco at 10-2 in the WCAC by beating Nevada-Vegas 74-57 in a game terminated by officials with 2:25 remaining "due to riotous conditions."

USF and Santa Clara will try to settle the conference championship in weekend games at Loyola and Pepperdine. If the WCAC ends in a tie, the Dons and Broncos will have a playoff game at a neutral site.

Four technical fouls against Nevada-Las Vegas, including a double infraction against Rebel sub Harry Shaw, who dropped Santa Clara's Fred Lavaroni with a left to the jaw, prompted partisan hometown fans to litter the court with debris in the late stages of the contest. The Rebel fans were riled earlier in the half when a bookkeeping oversight allowed Santa Clara's Remel Diggs to play with five personal fouls.

USF upped its season record to 20-4 Saturday night by defeating Nevada-Reno 109-93 behind 30-points by guard Phil Smith.

Top-ranked UCLA remained unbeaten with a 23-0 record by notching its 68th straight win with a 73-67 verdict over Oregon State in Corvallis. It was the closest game of the season for the Bruins, who were sparked by All America center Bill Walton with 21 points and 19 rebounds.

UCLA needs only to beat California, Stanford and USC on its home floor to complete its second straight unbeaten regular campaign.

A turnover by scoring star Louis Nelson of Washington allowed California to beat the Huskies 77-72 in Berkeley Saturday night. Cal's Carl Meier was pressuring Nelson when he lost the ball out of bounds on a Washington fastbreak with Cal leading 72-70. Meier topped Cal with 21 points while Nelson bucketed 30.

It was the third straight win for the Bears, who are 4-7 in the Pac-8 and 11-12 overall. Washington dropped to 3-9 and 15-11.

On regional television, Stanford's seven-foot center, Rich Kelley, gained sweet revenge over Mike Dolven, 6-9 pivot of Washington State, in helping the Cards to a 59-44 victory. Kelley topped the Cards with 11 points and held Dolven to only nine. Dolven embarrassed Kelley with 28 points and 14 rebounds in their first meeting this season.

The win left Stanford at 12-10 overall and 5-6 in the Pac-8 while WSU is struggling with a 1-10 conference mark and 5-18 on the season.

In other games Saturday, Southern California edged Oregon at Eugene 56-52, San Jose State shot 57 per cent from the floor in pinning a 63-57 Pacific Coast Athletic Association defeat on Fresno State at Fresno and Pepperdine downed Seattle 85-72.

NBA ROUNDUP

Wilt Stars Vs. Abdul-Jabbar

By U.P. INTERNATIONAL

Chamberlain, who always seems to get psyched up for his confrontations with Abdul-Jabbar, outplayed his younger opponent Sunday by scoring 24 points and corralling 20 rebounds while helping the Los Angeles Lakers snap a four-game losing streak with a 91-82 victory over the Milwaukee Bucks in a nationally-televised National Basketball Association game.

Abdul-Jabbar, nursing a sprained back, scored 21 points and had 21 rebounds but hit on only 10 of 27 shots from the floor and went only one for seven in the last quarter when the Lakers rallied from behind to win. Chamberlain, meanwhile, went to the basket more than he has in recent games and hit on 10 of 14 shots.

The Bucks, who led 71-67 going into the final period, hit on just four of 23 field goal attempts in the last quarter and scored only 11 points.

The Lakers, playing without Jerry West for the eighth straight game, tied the score at 71 with 10:30 left. Jim McMillian, who scored 22 points, then scored on a fast break with 8:40 remaining and hit a jump shot from the corner after a steal by Pat Riley and it was 79-76.

In a four-minute span, the Lakers outpointed the Bucks 143.

Sharman was, of course, pleased with the victory but he said, "That's not the best I've seen us play."

In other games, Philadelphia beat Portland 115-111, Detroit downed Houston 129-112, Phoenix edged Kansas City-Omaha 111-109, Boston defeated Cleveland 105-92 and Chicago nipped Seattle 88-85.

Philadelphia, which has won only eight of 68 games this season, made it four victories in its last six starts by topping Portland. Tom Van Arsdale and Don May sparked the 76ers' triumph with 29 and 24 points. Sidney Wicks led Portland with 30 points.

Bob Lanier scored 42 points and grabbed 21 rebounds as the Pistons rolled to their fourth straight victory. Dave Bing added 32 points to the Detroit attack while Mike Newlin topped Houston with 24 points.

Clem Haskins scored 10 points in the fourth quarter to trigger Phoenix' triumph over Kansas City, which lost its sixth in a row. The game, however, drew a fourth straight sellout crowd of 10,007 at Kansas City.

Dave Cowens scored 22 points and John Havlicek added 20 to spark Boston's victory over Cleveland. The Celtics led by only on point with 8:44 left in the game but outscored the Cavaliers 14-2 in a 4 ½ minute stretch to take command. Lennie Wilkens had 23 points for the Cavs.

Bob Weiss scored 24 points, including the go-ahead basket with 1:21 remaining, to pace the Bulls to their seventh straight triumph. The victory moved the Bulls to within one game of Milwaukee in the Midwest Division. Spencer Haywood scored 29 points for Seattle.

Modell Sets A Proposal On Tampering

CLEVELAND (UPI) — Cleveland Browns' owner Art Modell, saying there is "far too much tampering with coaches in the NFL," told UPI today he is preparing legislation for submission to the league owners to provide costly penalties for clubs found guilty of such tampering.

"The one ingredient that has made pro football great has been competitive balance," Modell said. "The quickest way to destroy that balance is for National Football League teams to raid the staff of other ballclubs.

"I have some very strong feelings about the tampering problems. I believe there is far too much tampering with coaches going on in the NFL today. I am preparing legislation for submission to the NFL owners in Phoenix, Ariz., next month in an effort to stop the tampering."

The penalties provided in Modell's proposed legislation:

Modell's announcement of legislation to cure the problems of tampering within the NFL comes on the heels of a statement by Oakland Raiders' coach John Madden, who has requested that football commissioner Pete Rozelle determine whether another west coast team is guilty of "blatent tampering" with Raider assistant Ray Malavasi.

Jim Hunter of the Oakland A's came closest to pitching a complete game in the 1972 World Series. Rollie Fingers was called on to get the last out in Hunter's 2-1 victory in the second game.

Basketball Benefit: Drake Vs. Vallejo

Marin County Athletic League champion Drake High School will play North Bay League titleholder Vallejo Friday in a basketball game which will benefit the memorial fund for deceased official Hal Nelson.

The game, brainchild of Vallejo coach Fred Faucett, will be played at 7:30 p.m. at Vallejo's gym. Faucett said the admission charge probably would be $1 for adults and 50 cents for students.

Nelson die of a heart attack while officiating a game in Santa Rosa during the non-league season. North Bay Officials Association coordinator Bob Fitzhenry, who until last year coached Drake's varsity, is heading the drive to raise funds for Nelson's widow.

"I've known Hal ever since I started officiating in California in 1959-60," said Faucett. "He was a neighbor of mine, and I used to officiate with him. I thought it would be fitting that something be done for the man."

Faucett said he contacted Fitzhenry, who in turn proposed the idea to Drake coach Pete Hayward, who accepted.

The game will fill a two-week lull between the end of the regular season and the beginning of post-season tournaments for the two teams. Drake, 23-5 overall and 12-2 in the MCAL, is scheduled to open play in the Tournament of Champions in Oakland March 8, while Vallejo, 23-4 on the year and 13-1 in the NBL, is slated to play Concord in the Top of the Bay Classic the same day.

Drake defeated Vallejo in a non-league game Dec. 1, 78-77, in San Anselmo. "I know they'd like another crack at us," said Hayward.

3 A's In Fold; Blue Unsigned

Cameron's 4 Goals Lead Hockey Victory

Kip Cameron scored four goals to lead the Squirts to a 5-4 victory over Santa Rosa, while goalie Scott Anderson missed a shutout when his own teammate accidentally knocked the puck into the goal during the Bantams' 7-1 victory over Eastridge, in Marin Amateur Hockey Club games played yesterday and Saturday.

In other action, the Mites lost to Eastridge, 12-0, and the Midgets fell to Sun Valley, 9-2. The Pee Wees, champions of the western division of the Northern California Amateur Hockey League, were idle.

Happy Marin Tars Bound For Ventura

I-J Sports Editor

It's on to Ventura and the state championships for a happy bunch of College of Marin basketball players.

The Tars earned the right to represent the Camino Norte Conference when they drubbed Skyline College of San Bruno, 85-64, Saturday night in Kentfield, clinching the CNC crown.

The only game remaining on Marin's schedule is at Suisun Wednesday night against Solano College, and the Tars' 12-1 conference record is two full games better than their nearest pursuer, West Valley of Campbell. And unless Marin comes completely apart at the seams, it will crush the Solano cagers, winners of just one conference game all year, and take a 26-3 season record into the State Community College Championships at Ventura. March 8-9-10.

Marin, ranked fourth in the state, will be taking on seventh-ranked Riverside Junior College of the Mission Conference in the tournament's opening game at 3 p.m. in the Ventura College gym.

Following Saturday night's victory, the jubilant players hauled head coach John Panagakis out of the locker room, carried him to the nearby diving pool and flung him in, clothes and all. The players, still in their basketball uniforms, joined Panagakis in the water and some even dived from the three-meter board and the higher platform at the far end of the pool.

There was shouting, there was laughter, there was joy. It was College of Marin's first CNC basketball title in five years of competing in it after being switched from the smaller Golden Valley Conference. The players wanted to make the most of it.

Marin came close last year before losing its final two games of the season, to West Valley and Skyline.

"We were really ready for them this time," said a beaming Neil Traub, 6-foot-9 center who was a member of both Tars' teams. "We weren't going to let it happen again this year. This is the best team Marin ever had."

"We would like to really thank our fans," cut in guard Joe DeMaestri, also a member of both those Tar teams. "They were really great." Forward Joe Casteel, the other Marin starter who played on the 1971-72 team, agreed.

It was Casteel who got Marin started against Skyline, scoring eight of Marin's first 10 points to keep the score tied at 10-all after the first six minutes. Skyline, on a pair of free throws by Jeff Wellemeyer, went ahead at the 14-12 shortly after that, but with DeMaestri, Traub and guard Len Smith each hitting a pair of buckets, the Tars jumped out to a seven-point lead which they were not going to again give up.

Freshman forward Wil Garner, the team's top scorer, led all players with 20 points, 14 of them coming in the second half.

Hooray! Baseball's Peace Treaty Signed

Baseball's great feud of 1973 is over. Peace has been restored in the land and the national (outdoor) pastime will start on schedule. Talk of strikes and lockouts and all those problems of big business is over.

Just when I thought all men in high places in baseball had gone daffy, the announcement came that spring training would start as scheduled, the official day being Thursday. Baseball players throughout the U.S. are gathering up their bats, balls, gloves and shoes and making plans for flights to Florida, California and Arizona.

From the wire stories I've read about the agreement between management and hirelings, peace will last for three years, at which time, I imagine, the two sides will again be at each other's throat. Major stumbling block always is the reserve clause which binds a player indefinitely to the team which signs him.

The settlement reached yesterday covers a so-called Basic Agreement which governs active player-owner relations and the pension-benefit plan and reportedly permits arbitration of salary squabbles for players who have been in the big leagues for at least two consecutive seasons or a total of three years.

The agreement led to quotes such as, "a milestone in baseball," and " . . . give and take on both sides."

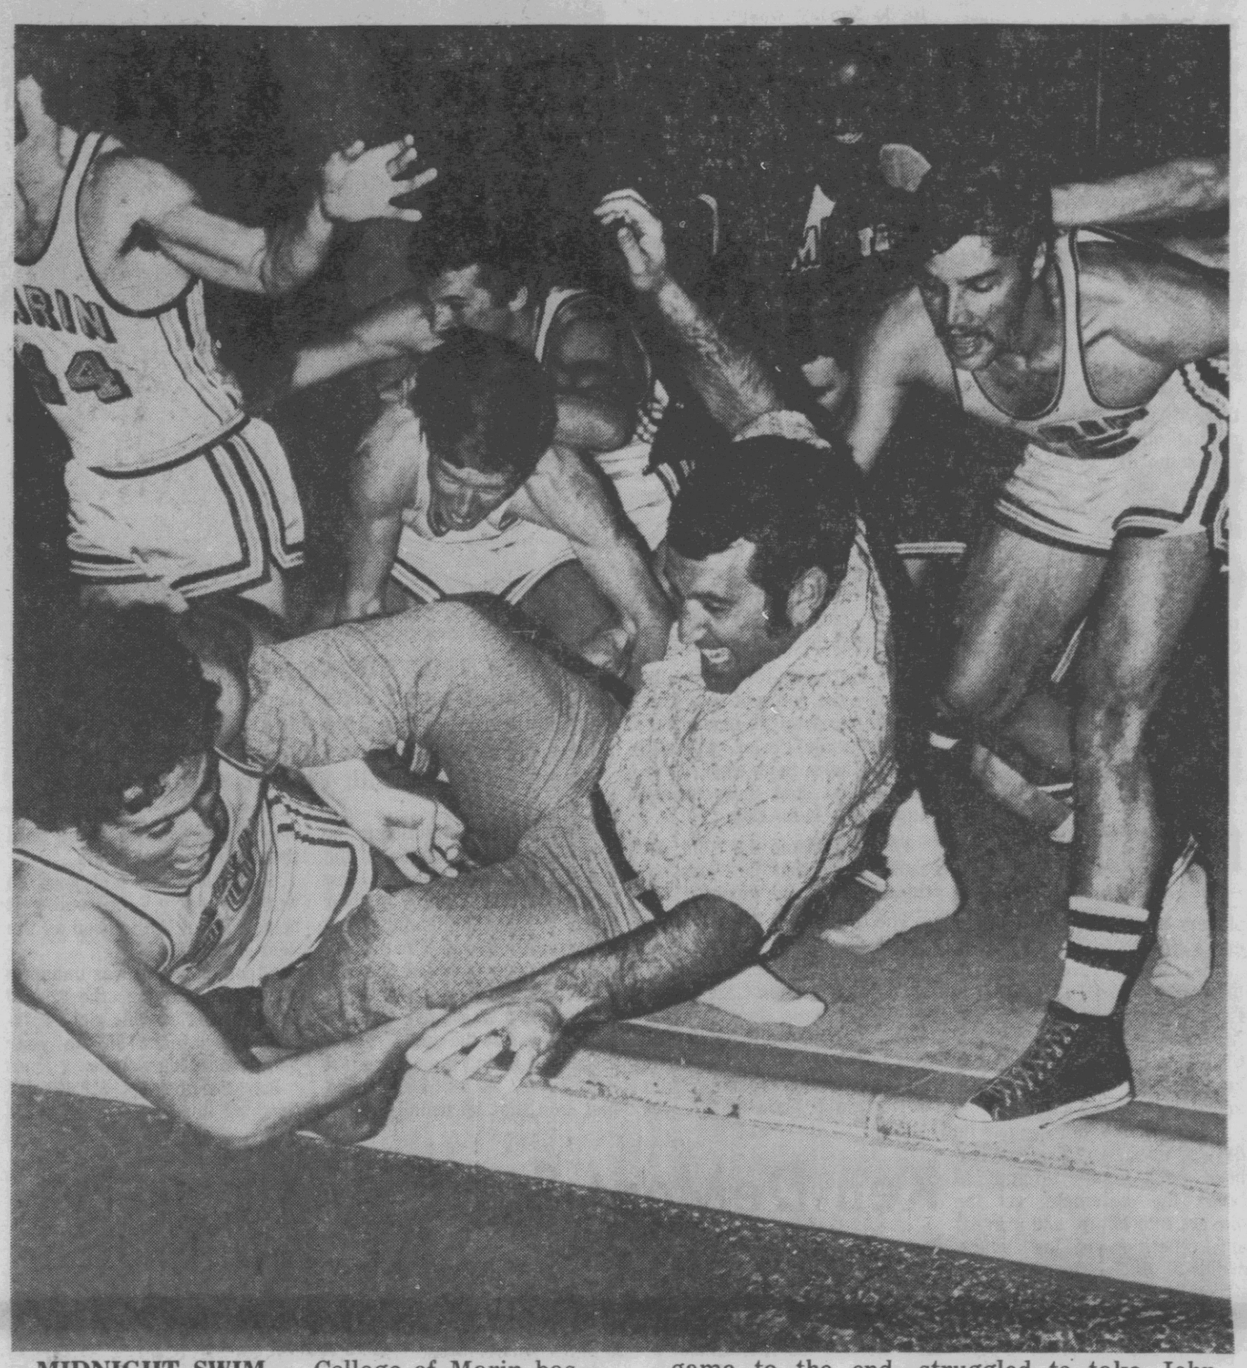
I didn't think it would take the owners and players, through their representative Marvin Miller, this long to call a truce. The last things either side should have wanted were a strike or a lockout by the owners.

After last year's delayed season start, an action which most assuredly caused some fans to leave baseball and turn to such things as opera or ballet, I didn't think either side would be content to "turn off" more fans. Let's face it. Baseball interest is on the downswing and the sport needs all the help it can get to remain a money-making business for the owners. After all, when it gets to the point that owners spend more money than they take in, they will cease to be owners and stick to such things as selling chewing gum or insurance.

But for now, let's all shout it together: PLAY BALL!

IF YOU CAUGHT the final few holes of the Jackie Gleason Inverrary-National Airlines Golf Classic (phew, that's a name!) on television yesterday, you can be excused for shedding a tear for a young San Jose man by the name of Forrest Fezler.

All week long, while he was leading the tournament, Fezler said he would try not to think about that $52,000 first prize. Everything was going fine until he bogied the 15th hole. Then he missed a little five-foot putt on 17, the three-putt green costing him another bogie and the lead to Lee Trevino. Then with one last chance to tie Trevino on 18, Fezler missed another five-footer. After missing the putt, he stood there before the television cameras, his head in his hand, one more young kid who came out of golf's wolfpack to snatch the glory of victory, only to have it slip through his fingers like so much jelly. There's always tomorrow, Forrest.



MIDNIGHT SWIM — College of Marin basketball coach John Panagakis and his double-knits were given an unauthorized drenching in the school's swimming pool Saturday night after his Tars clinched the Camino Norte Conference championship with an 85-64 victory over Skyline College. The coach, game to the end, struggled to take John Crozier (front) with him. Helping push Panagakis in were Jim Forni (44), Steve Pieper (behind Panagakis), Rich Hagler (behind Pieper), Len Smith (background) and Mike Lindquist.

Play Ball! Camps Open

NEW YORK (UPI) — "Hallelujah! Thank the Good Lord that it's over," said Nick Mileti, owner of the Cleveland Indians.

"It was the first thing they said on the news. I was so tickled I almost rammed the car in front of me," said Paul Owens, general manager of the Philadelphia Phillies.

"Needless to say, I am gratified...Now for the next three years, and hopefully much longer, we will be able to concentrate on baseball," said Cedric Tallis, general manager of the Kansas City Royals.

Thanks to a three-year agreement reached by negotiators for the owners and players Sunday, the scheduled March 1 opening of spring training was assured. But that didn't prevent the 24 clubs from welcoming their heroes en masse beginning today at sites throughout Florida and Arizona and one in California.

"Very informal," was the description given by New York Yankee manager Ralph Houk for today's scheduled workout at Fort Lauderdale, Fla. "We'll start around 11, but I won't hold anybody to that time," Houk said shortly after learning of the agreement Sunday. "Me? I'll be there early. About 9:30. I can't wait to get started."

Houk, along with 23 other major league managers and some 600 players, were given the go-ahead when agreement on a new three-year contract was announced following a 90-minute meeting in the midtown New York office of John Gaherin, the chief negotiator for the owners. Details of the agreement were withheld pending ratification by the players and owners.

Marvin Miller, the executive director of the Players Association, said a meeting of his group's executive board, made up of the player reps from the 24 clubs, will be held Wednesday in Miami. The board is expected to urge ratification of the contract by the entire membership.

"The ratification by the players will begin as soon as possible in spring training and we will meet with two clubs at a time to speed it up," said the white-haired Miller, who along with aide Dick Moss and Minnesota Twins pitcher and player rep Jim Perry represented the

By PAUL DWORIN

SAN FRANCISCO — Sonoma State College can clinch its first Far Western Conference basketball championship this weekend after securing at least a tie for the title Saturday night by downing San Francisco State here, 94-88.

The win upped the Cossacks' conference record to 9-2, which gives them a one and a half-game edge over runner-up Chico State College, 7-3. Regardless of what Chico does this weekend against Hayward and San Francisco State colleges, Sonoma can wrap up the title with a home victory over Sacramento State College Friday night.

The Cossacks held a slim 48-47 lead with 16 minutes left in the second half when they went on an offensive spree, outscoring the Gators 21-7 in the next six minutes. Bill Belander and Tom Fitchie put in six points each during this stretch.

That was the biggest lead Sonoma gained, as the Gators clawed their way back into the game, cutting the margin down to six points with a minute to play. They never got closer, though, as the Cossacks matched them basket for basket in the final moments of the game.

"I thought we played a good game, especially in the second half," commented a happy Cossack coach, Bill Trumbo, after the game. "In the second half we slowed up a bit and controlled the tempo of the game, not like in the first half when we tried to run with them a little too much."

The first half was a much closer battle, with neither team able to pull away by more than the five point Sonoma lead, 33-28, in the middle of the half. San Francisco came right back to grab its biggest lead of the half by scoring nine straight unanswered points to take over, 37-33. In all, there were 12 ties and 15 exchanges of leads in the first half.

Steve Tiedeman led the scoring in the first half with 13 points, as both teams were cold with the Cossacks shooting 42 per cent from the field and the Gators hitting a poor 37 per cent.

Tiedeman increased his scoring pace in the second half, popping in 20-foot jumpers and even one 30-footer for a game high total of 28 points. Belander and Ron Johnson added 19 and 18 points for the winners.

In the preliminary game, the Sonoma junior varsity squad completed its most successful season ever with a 71-70 victory over the San Francisco junior varsity. Keith Mason and Ken Thurston led the Cossacks with 16 points each.

Seals Learn Flyers Use Sticks, Fists

OAKLAND (UPI) — The California Golden Seals have learned the Philadelphia Flyers can act with their hockey sticks as well as their fists.

With Doug Favell in goal, the Flyers, most penalized team in the National Hockey League, trounced the Seals 7-0 in a Sunday matinee before 5,330 disappointed fans at the Coliseum-Arena.

Favell turned aside 31 shots in recording his first shutout of the season. For all purposes, the Flyers won the game toward the end of the first period when Don Saleski, Tom Bladon and Gary Dornhoefer all scored within a 48-second span.

The game was a turnaround for the Seals, who played brilliantly in beating the New York Rangers 5-3 Friday night.

Philadelphia played a comparatively mild first two periods, getting whistled for only two penalties. But things erupted in the final period when a fight between Bob Stewart of the Seals and the Fiyers Jim Watson triggered several minor skirmishes.

Referee Lloyd Gilmour assessed one game misconduct against Saleski for joining in the fray and he handed 10-minute misconducts to Stewart and Dave Schultz of the Flyers.

Showing only one victory in their last 15 games, the Seals now go on the road for three games starting Wednesday night against the Minnesota North Stars. Then California plays a weekend set at Pittsburgh and Atlanta.

SONOMA WRESTLER WINS TITLE

SACRAMENTO — Sonoma State College wrestler Ed Buonaccorsi won the 126-pound championship of the Far Western Conference with a 6-1 decision over Paul Zender of Humboldt State College here Saturday night.

Ron Lunsford, 167-pounder, and heavyweight Dennis Hudson took third and fourth places to help lead the Cossacks to their best showing in the conference finals — a fifth place finish behind first-place San Francisco State College.

2 Marin Wrestlers Qualify For Tourney

Ron Losk and Jon Loberg must like Hayward, because they'll be going back there this weekend.

The two wrestlers from Terra Linda High School each finished second in the North Coast Section meet Saturday at Tennyson High School in the East Bay city, thus qualifying for the state meet Friday and Saturday at Hayward State University.

Loberg, a heavyweight, suffered his first defeat of the year in the final match Saturday, losing an 8-5 decision, pinned an opponent at 33 seconds of the second period, and won a 16-6 decision.

Losk, a 194-pounder, dropped a 7-6 decision to Dan Bohan of St. Helena, the same wrestler who defeated him in the Division I finals the weekend before. Prior to his loss, Losk pinned three opponents in 5:15, 5:15 and 4:48.

Mike Roush, a 178-pounder from Redwood High, finished fifth. (The top four qualified for the state meet.) Of the nine Marinites who were eligible to compete in the NCS meet, the only other one who participated was Terra Linda's Reggie Grant, a 136-pounder, who lost two close matches and was eliminated.

HOW TO PLAY

When you look at a hand in a bridge column, you have the advantage of knowing that somebody is supposed to do something bright. If you were playing the same hand at the table, you might think it was a routine hand and therefore miss the point. Nobody rang a bell to wake East up when today's hand was played, and he eventually discovered that the bell had tolled for him.

SHREWD ACTION

West opened the king of spades, and South shrewdly played a low spade from dummy. He feared a six-card spade suit in the West hand and saw no sense in playing the ace of spades from dummy, thus forcing East to ruff.

East was delighted to see his partner's king of spades hold the first trick. He discarded the deuce of diamonds and waited for the next move. Unfortunately, East had already missed his chance.

TAKES ACE

West could see that a spade continuation would do no good. The only chance was to cash the ace of clubs in the hope that East had the king. But West could get only one club trick.

No matter how West continued, South was sure to gain the lead to draw a round of trumps and then ruff his losers in dummy. If West hadn't taken the ace of clubs, South would have discarded both clubs from dummy on high diamonds, and then declarer would have made an extra trick. As it was, South made game and rubber.

EAST'S ACTION

It's easy to see what East should have done if he had been wide awake. East should ruff the first spade trick and return a club. Then the defenders get two club tricks and West takes the setting trick with one of his trumps.

players at the meeting in Gaherin's office.

The owners' group included, besides Gaherin, National League president Chub Feeney, American League president Joe Cronin, attorneys Barry Rona, Lou Hoines and Jim Garner and Harry Allen, an actuary.

Sunday's meeting ended 10 days of intensive talks that had been held in an attempt to break the stalemate, get the players into camp, and prevent any repetition of last year's deadlock that saw a players' strike at the beginning of the season lop 13 days off the 1972 campaign.

Despite the reluctance of both sides to discuss the new contract, the two chief stumbling blocks almost from the start of negotiations were the players' insistence on having outside arbitration in salary disputes and the owners' refusal to budge on changes in the reserve clause. When the owners saw that the players would not relent in their demands they announced spring training camps would not open until an agreement was reached.

Following a meeting in Miller's office Saturday a settlement appeared imminent but both Miller and Gaherin emphasized the agreement was not reached until Sunday.

"There were several loose ends and a major issue still to be settled today," Miller insisted.

"The agreement was reached in this room today," Gaherin added.

Tar Golfers Face De Anza Tomorrow

College of Marin's golf team, which stands 2-1 on the year and 1-1 in the Camino Norte Conference, will meet De Anza College of Cupertino in a conference match tomorrow at 1 p.m. at San Geronimo National Golf Course.

The Tars finished second in the Sonoma State College tournament Friday with 471 strokes, two strokes more than Santa Rosa Junior College, as Mark Churchfield was medalist in the field with a 72.

Missed Putts Spell Win For Lee

Fezler Blows Two Key Shots

By DAVID MOFFIT

All the 23-year-old Fezler had to do Sunday was make four-foot putts on each of the last two holes and $52,000 and his first professional victory would have been his.

Fezler fretted over those putts, and missed them both.

"This is the first time a miss meant a win for me," said the jubilant Trevino, who now has won 14 Professional Golfers Association tournaments in addition to two British Opens.

"I know Forrest was feeling the pressure out there," he added. "But he's young. He was there. He's got a good future. The next time he'll be able to pull it out. When you lose, you lose by making mistakes and you win by not making the same mistakes twice."

Fezler, who shot 67-69-68 the first three rounds, went into Sunday's final round three strokes ahead of Trevino, who had posted three straight 69s.

But the battle-tested Trevino played even par golf in a light rain to wind up at nine-under-par 207 while Fezler, who still had two holes to go when Trevino finished, had those missed putts and a 76 for 280.

Fexler insisted he "did not choke" and that he "was not thinking about the money."

The dejected Fezler wondered aloud whether he could win a tournament this year. "It's tough. I don't know how (Jack) Nicklaus does it every week. He ought to have gray hair instead of blonde."

Nicklaus, who wound up in a tie for sixth place at 283, was never really in contention in the Gleason Classic, although the $8,092 puts him just a few dollars behind Trevino in their battle to overtake leading money winner Bruce Crampton, who withdrew from the Gleason Thursday. Nicklaus, who had a 71 Sunday, was never closer than he was at the end.

Trevino hadn't won since last September, at St. Louis, and had said that he usually didn't start getting on his game until the tour came to Florida.

"It makes me feel good to win this early," he said. "It helps relieve the tension as the year goes by."

Although Fezler was unhappy about not winning, the $29,640 second prize in this richest 72-hole tournament of the year had to salve his wounds.

Bob Murphy got $18,460 for finishing third with a 71 for 281 and Sam Snead and Bruce Devlin each got $11,440 for tying for fourth at 282.

Snead will be 61 in May and Trevino said "It's incredible how a man can strike the ball like that at his age."

Johnny Miller, Jerry Heard and Gibby Gilbert were tied with Nicklaus at 283, Ed Sneed was alone at 284, and first-round co-leader Gay Brewer headed a group of six 285 shooters.

Arnold Palmer, believed finding new golf life at 43 when he won the Hope Desert Classic several weeks ago, never got his game going at Inverrary and finished far back in the field at 292. Defending champion Tom Weiskopf was 10 strokes higher this year than the 278 that he won here with in 1972.

WATCH THE BIRDIE — Flamboyant Lee Trevino grinned after he watched his birdie putt drop on the 15th hole yesterday during the Jackie Gleason Inverrary golf tournament in Lauderhill, Fla. His birdie, the last of the round, was the margin of victory as Trevino won by a stroke over Forrest Fezler. Trevino gained his first victory of the year and took home the $52,000 first prize with his 279. (UPI Telephoto)

Ken DeMont Stars In Marin Swim Meet

Ken DeMont, swimming "the best meet of his life without a doubt" in coach Don Swartz's words, captured four first places and two seconds and led the Marin Aquatic Club to a second-place finish in the Marin A.C. Junior-Senior Class swimming meet Saturday and yesterday at Terra Linda High School.

Ken, younger brother of Olympian Rick DeMont, won the 100-yard backstroke in 59.6 seconds and the 200 individual medley in 2:09.9, and swam on the winning 800 freestyle and 400 medley relay teams. He also finished second in the 200 butterfly and the 400 I.M.

Marin A.C. finished with 202 points, trailing the Pleasant Hill Swim Club's 274, but outdistancing the Pacific Athletic Club of Stockton (51½) and the Arden Hills Swim Club from the Sacramento area (40½). Some 56 clubs participated.

Other winners from Marin A.C. included Keith Strange in the 100 free (50.9), John Redig in the 100 breast (1:07.8), Dan Stewart in the 200 breast (2:28.6), Maura Campion in the girls' 100 back (1:07.7), Julie Waters in the girls' 200 back (2:26.0), and the boys 400 free relay team.

The times of the winning relay teams were 3:31.6 for the 400 free (Keith Strange, Jeff Miller, Scott Hislop and Brian Silcox), 4:02.2 for the 400 medley (DeMont, Stewart, Bob Placak, Miller) and 7:47.7 for the 800 free (Hislop, Mike Keck, Miller, DeMont).

2 Marin Men Win In Car Show

Larrie Mead and Rick Loomer, both of San Rafael, were gold medal trophy winners at the 25th annual National Roadster Show which ended a 10-day run last night at the Oakland Coliseum Arena.

Yacht Intrepid Goes To 3-Man Syndicate

SEATTLE (UPI) — The 12-meter America's cup yacht Intrepid has been purchased by a syndicate of three men and wil be entered in the 1974 competition for the classic goblet.

George Schuchart, Seattle construction and towing company executive, said Saturday that he, Charles Hughes of San Diego and George Jewett of San Francisco had bought the Intrepid from the International Oceanographic Foundation of Miami.

Giants' Fox Waiting For Camp's Start

SAN FRANCISCO (UPI) — Manager Charlie Fox is in Arizona awaiting the opening of spring training today for the San Francisco Giants.

"We're ready to go Tuesday," said Fox after learning of Sunday's agreement between club owners and the players association. "I'm already planning intrasquad games starting perhaps as early as next Tuesday. We've got to work a little harder a little longer."

The Giants announced Saturday that pitcher Les Cain, 25, of the Detroit Tigers organization, would be given a tryout at spring training.

Cain played briefly with Detroit and Phoenix last season. In 1970 with the Tigers he amassed a 12-7 record.

Marin Tars Take 6th In Loop Relays Meet

College of Marin's track and field team finished sixth Saturday in the Camino Norte Conference Relays at Solano College in Suisun City, with second-place finishes in the distance medley relay and the two-mile relay the top performances.

The distance medley team of Dave Volper, Joe Kinn, Frank Elias and Dave Stancliffe ran 10:51.6, while the two-mile team of John Streett, Stancliffe, Elias and Steve DuBose ran 8:25.7.

Bruce Little's heave of 134 feet led the discus relay team, composed also of Larry Alberty and Mike O'Riley, to third place. Tom Malvino high-jumped 6 feet as he, Dave Volper and Greg Biber combined to take third place. Bob Bunnell finished third in the open three-mile run in 15:41.

Team Standings

Youth Soccer Results

The Mill Valley Tams defeated Parola of San Francisco Saturday, 1-0, but the other three Mill Valley youth soccer teams were defeated in San Francisco Flame League play, with United losing to Westlake, 3-0, Seventy-One falling to West-lake, 6-0, and the Apollos beaten by the Olympic Club, 4-0.

Warriors Recapture Poise Versus Bucks

OAKLAND (UPI) — Golden State has regained its poise and coach Al Attles hopes it remains until the playoffs.

With Rick Barry providing the offensive spark and Nate Thurmond and Jim Barnett performing heroically on defense, the Warriors turned back the Milwaukee Bucks 102-93 before 9,970 happy fans at the Coliseum-Arena Saturday night.

It was the first win for the Warriors over the Bucks in five National Basketball Association meetings this season. The victory also was the third straight for Golden State, including Friday night's triumph over the Lakers at Los Angeles.

"These two games were important," said Attles, "not in the standings, but because we played good basketball we'll need in the playoffs.

"The most important thing was our poise after we got behind in the third quarter against Milwaukee. I'd say it was a combination of poise and good defense that was the key to the game."

Milwaukee turned several bad Warrior passes into baskets to gain a 62-59 lead midway through the third quarter.

But the Warriors regained their momentum early in the fourth period as they outscored the Bucks 12-0 to take an 84-76 advantage with 8:02 remaining. Then Barry took over with the score tied 88-88 and scored six of his team's next 10 points to give Golden State an insurmountable 98-90 lead. Barry topped the Warriors with 25 points.

Barnett sparked the Warriors with his hustle and timely drives. But he also limited Bucks' guard Lucius Allen to 17 points while netting 18 himself. Allen was shooting 61 per cent from the floor and average 20.3 points against the Warriors.

Ex-Track Coach Wins $130,000 In Libel Suit

EL PASO, Tex. (UPI) — Former Texas-El Paso track coach Wayne Vandenburg, who sued Newsweek magazine for $2.5 million, was "very pleased" today with a federal court jury decision that awarded him $130,000 in damages.

Vandenburg filed the libel suit against Newsweek a few months after the article, entitled, "The Angry Black Athlete," appeared in a July, 1968, issue.

"The reason for all of it was that the article wasn't factual, contained untruths and painted a picture that wasn't me," he said. "Now, a jury has heard the evidence and evidently felt the same way."

The three-man, three-woman jury heard four days of testimony in U. S. District Judge Ernest Guinn's court last week, most of it from Vandenburg himself in direct and cross-examination testimony, before reaching a verdict in about six hours deliberation Saturday.

INCOME TAX FACTS

Congress Has Closed Loophole On Vacation Home Deductions

Vacation homes, summer homes, secondary residences, community apartments in vacation areas, etc., have been owned by taxpayers and occupied by them at certain times of the year, like during the ski season or during the summer vacation season, and have been rented to others or listed with rental agencies or otherwise held for rent at other times of the year.

For instance, if you had occupied your vacation home for one month out of the year and had rented it for two months out of the year and had it for rent the other nine months of the year, you were deducting as rental expense 11/12ths of all of the interest and taxes and depreciation and maintenance and utilities and insurance, etc., in connection with your vacation home, as rental expenses and having a loss on the ownership and operation of this vacation home and deducting this loss from your income tax return as a loss incurred in the ownership or maintenance of property used for production of income.

You also deducted as an itemized deduction 1/12th of the taxes and interest on the home as being the personal share.

Congress, in its endeavor to close loopholes, apparently did so in the tax reform act of 1969 through the hobby loss rule and the IRS has now issued regulation 1.183-1(d)(3) which implements this hobby loss rule as regards vacation homes and effectively closes this loophole. Under the new regulation, the time that the vacation home was vacant and for rent does not count as business use.

Under the circumstances set forth above, you would have two months of rental use and one month of personal use for a total of three months. Then one-third would be considered personal use and two-thirds would be considered rental use.

However, you cannot exactly allocate your expenses that way because the interest on the house and the taxes on this house are specifically allowable as itemized deductions and you make no allocation for them.

You do allocate your maintenance, insurance, utilities, depreciation, etc., two-thirds to rental use and one-third to personal use, and having determined what two-thirds of these expenses is, you total them.

If the interest and taxes allowed as itemized deductions are less than the total amount of rent received, then the amount of rent received in excess of the itemized deduction for interest and taxes is subject to the deduction for rental expenses for the two-thirds of the maintenance, utilities, depreciation as above, but not more than enough to equal zero income and produce a loss.

If the rental income should by any chance be more than this, then you would have a taxable income.

SUCCESSFUL INVESTING

Hold Suggested On Fannie May

By ROGER E. SPEAR

Q. Do you think I should continue to hold Federal National Mortgage in the low twenties? — P.C.

A. The 18-month freeze on subsidized housing announced in January by the Administration was quickly reflected in FNMA share price. However, the dorp in trading levels may prove to be precipitous since FNMA has enough HUD-subsidized mortgage commitments ahead to sustain its normal financing activity rate through the freeze. Furthermore, if interest rates rise and money supply dries up as anticipated FNMA will probably get a bigger slice of the conventional mortgage market.

As a result of a strong gain in earnings from $1.43 to $2.17 a share in 1972, the dividend rate was increased for the second time in 12 months. Earnings this year should also move ahead, despite higher money costs. The corporation is in a relatively good position in this respect with more than 80 per cent of its debt low-cost long-time debentures. Shares have an above-average risk factor in view of their highly levered position. Nonetheless, I would recommend retention.

Q. My wife and I have $55,000 in savings at 5 per cent. We would like more income on this money but do not want to have the money tied down for a long period. We need maximum safety as we wish to retire in the near future. — P.S.

A. Your capital should be earning more for you. Passbook savings accounts in this area (Northeast) are paying 5¼ per cent from dy of deposit to day of withdrawal, which is a 5.4 per cent effective yield on 1-year deposits. One-year certificate accounts pay 5¾ per cent. A few hours of investigation should turn up banks offering insured accounts with more satisfactory interest rates than you are now receiving.

A second possibility is six-month Treasury bills currently paying approximately 5.8 per cent. Information on how to purchase these government debt obligations may be secured from the Federal Reserve Bank branch office located in your city.

Sagging Market Regains Some Strength At Close

NEW YORK (UPI) — The stock market recovered some of its earlier losses toward the close today, but still finished lower as investors fidgeted over the possibility of a credit squeeze.

Declines maintained a 10 to three ratio over advances.

Analysts said investors were worried over recent rate boosts, possibly signaling a forthcoming credit squeeze. Several federal reserve system banks increased their lending rates to commercial banks to 5 ½ per cent from 5 per cent and a host of banks correspondingly upped their prime rate to corporations to 6 ¼ per cent from 6 per cent.

A number of mining stocks traded lower on the Big Board, ostensibily because the price of gold and silver fell following the U.S. interest rate increases. Among those moving lower were Campbell Redlake, Homestake Mining and Sunshine Mining.

Also on the easier side were broadcast industry stocks, including American Broadcasting Cos., Taft Broadcasting and Storer Broadcasting. Television industry leaders recently announced strong and sweeping rules regulating the advertising of non-prescription medicines, effective Sept. 1.

USF, SANTA CLARA

By U.P. INTERNATIONAL

Meanwhile, third-ranked Long Beach State, angered by its upset at the hands of Los Angeles State the previous night, routed University of California at Santa Barbara 92-65 Saturday night to capture its fourth straight basketball title in the Pacific Coast Athletic Association.

At Las Vegas Sunday Santa Clara jumped back into a deadlock with San Francisco at 10-2 in the WCAC by beating Nevada-Vegas 74-57 in a game terminated by officials with 2:25 remaining "due to riotous conditions."

USF and Santa Clara will try to settle the conference championship in weekend games at Loyola and Pepperdine. If the WCAC ends in a tie, the Dons and Broncos will have a playoff game at a neutral site.

Four technical fouls against Nevada-Las Vegas, including a double infraction against Rebel sub Harry Shaw, who dropped Santa Clara's Fred Lavaroni with a left to the jaw, prompted partisan hometown fans to litter the court with debris in the late stages of the contest. The Rebel fans were riled earlier in the half when a bookkeeping oversight allowed Santa Clara's Remel Diggs to play with five personal fouls.

USF upped its season record to 20-4 Saturday night by defeating Nevada-Reno 109-93 behind 30-points by guard Phil Smith.

Top-ranked UCLA remained unbeaten with a 23-0 record by notching its 68th straight win with a 73-67 verdict over Oregon State in Corvallis. It was the closest game of the season for the Bruins, who were sparked by All America center Bill Walton with 21 points and 19 rebounds.

UCLA needs only to beat California, Stanford and USC on its home floor to complete its second straight unbeaten regular campaign.

A turnover by scoring star Louis Nelson of Washington allowed California to beat the Huskies 77-72 in Berkeley Saturday night. Cal's Carl Meier was pressuring Nelson when he lost the ball out of bounds on a Washington fastbreak with Cal leading 72-70. Meier topped Cal with 21 points while Nelson bucketed 30.

It was the third straight win for the Bears, who are 4-7 in the Pac-8 and 11-12 overall. Washington dropped to 3-9 and 15-11.

On regional television, Stanford's seven-foot center, Rich Kelley, gained sweet revenge over Mike Dolven, 6-9 pivot of Washington State, in helping the Cards to a 59-44 victory. Kelley topped the Cards with 11 points and held Dolven to only nine. Dolven embarrassed Kelley with 28 points and 14 rebounds in their first meeting this season.

The win left Stanford at 12-10 overall and 5-6 in the Pac-8 while WSU is struggling with a 1-10 conference mark and 5-18 on the season.

In other games Saturday, Southern California edged Oregon at Eugene 56-52, San Jose State shot 57 per cent from the floor in pinning a 63-57 Pacific Coast Athletic Association defeat on Fresno State at Fresno and Pepperdine downed Seattle 85-72.

Basketball Benefit: Drake Vs. Vallejo

Marin County Athletic League champion Drake High School will play North Bay League titleholder Vallejo Friday in a basketball game which will benefit the memorial fund for deceased official Hal Nelson.

The game, brainchild of Vallejo coach Fred Faucett, will be played at 7:30 p.m. at Vallejo's gym. Faucett said the admission charge probably would be $1 for adults and 50 cents for students.

Nelson die of a heart attack while officiating a game in Santa Rosa during the non-league season. North Bay Officials Association coordinator Bob Fitzhenry, who until last year coached Drake's varsity, is heading the drive to raise funds for Nelson's widow.

"I've known Hal ever since I started officiating in California in 1959-60," said Faucett. "He was a neighbor of mine, and I used to officiate with him. I thought it would be fitting that something be done for the man."

Faucett said he contacted Fitzhenry, who in turn proposed the idea to Drake coach Pete Hayward, who accepted.

The game will fill a two-week lull between the end of the regular season and the beginning of post-season tournaments for the two teams. Drake, 23-5 overall and 12-2 in the MCAL, is scheduled to open play in the Tournament of Champions in Oakland March 8, while Vallejo, 23-4 on the year and 13-1 in the NBL, is slated to play Concord in the Top of the Bay Classic the same day.

Drake defeated Vallejo in a non-league game Dec. 1, 78-77, in San Anselmo. "I know they'd like another crack at us," said Hayward.

TIME AND TIDE

Department of Commerce, United States Coast Geodetic Survey. Times and heights of tides at San Francisco (Golden Gate):

Cameron's 4 Goals Lead Hockey Victory

Kip Cameron scored four goals to lead the Squirts to a 5-4 victory over Santa Rosa, while goalie Scott Anderson missed a shutout when his own teammate accidentally knocked the puck into the goal during the Bantams' 7-1 victory over Eastridge, in Marin Amateur Hockey Club games played yesterday and Saturday.

In other action, the Mites lost to Eastridge, 12-0, and the Midgets fell to Sun Valley, 9-2. The Pee Wees, champions of the western division of the Northern California Amateur Hockey League, were idle.

NBA ROUNDUP

Wilt Stars Vs. Abdul-Jabbar

By U.P. INTERNATIONAL

Chamberlain, who always seems to get psyched up for his confrontations with Abdul-Jabbar, outplayed his younger opponent Sunday by scoring 24 points and corralling 20 rebounds while helping the Los Angeles Lakers snap a four-game losing streak with a 91-82 victory over the Milwaukee Bucks in a nationally-televised National Basketball Association game.

Abdul-Jabbar, nursing a sprained back, scored 21 points and had 21 rebounds but hit on only 10 of 27 shots from the floor and went only one for seven in the last quarter when the Lakers rallied from behind to win. Chamberlain, meanwhile, went to the basket more than he has in recent games and hit on 10 of 14 shots.

The Bucks, who led 71-67 going into the final period, hit on just four of 23 field goal attempts in the last quarter and scored only 11 points.

The Lakers, playing without Jerry West for the eighth straight game, tied the score at 71 with 10:30 left. Jim McMillian, who scored 22 points, then scored on a fast break with 8:40 remaining and hit a jump shot from the corner after a steal by Pat Riley and it was 79-76.

In a four-minute span, the Lakers outpointed the Bucks 143.

Sharman was, of course, pleased with the victory but he said, "That's not the best I've seen us play."

In other games, Philadelphia beat Portland 115-111, Detroit downed Houston 129-112, Phoenix edged Kansas City-Omaha 111-109, Boston defeated Cleveland 105-92 and Chicago nipped Seattle 88-85.

Philadelphia, which has won only eight of 68 games this season, made it four victories in its last six starts by topping Portland. Tom Van Arsdale and Don May sparked the 76ers' triumph with 29 and 24 points. Sidney Wicks led Portland with 30 points.

Bob Lanier scored 42 points and grabbed 21 rebounds as the Pistons rolled to their fourth straight victory. Dave Bing added 32 points to the Detroit attack while Mike Newlin topped Houston with 24 points.

Clem Haskins scored 10 points in the fourth quarter to trigger Phoenix' triumph over Kansas City, which lost its sixth in a row. The game, however, drew a fourth straight sellout crowd of 10,007 at Kansas City.

Dave Cowens scored 22 points and John Havlicek added 20 to spark Boston's victory over Cleveland. The Celtics led by only on point with 8:44 left in the game but outscored the Cavaliers 14-2 in a 4 ½ minute stretch to take command. Lennie Wilkens had 23 points for the Cavs.

Bob Weiss scored 24 points, including the go-ahead basket with 1:21 remaining, to pace the Bulls to their seventh straight triumph. The victory moved the Bulls to within one game of Milwaukee in the Midwest Division. Spencer Haywood scored 29 points for Seattle.

San Rafael Woman Wins In Bowling

Bea Hoffmann of San Rafael rolled three three-game series totaling 1,737 pins to win the all-events scratch title in the 13th annual Marin County Women's Bowling Association Handicap Tournament which concluded Saturday and yesterday at Greenbrae Lanes.

The all-events total is the sum of series bowled in the other events. Mrs. Hoffmann recorded a 582 in the team event, a 554 in the doubles and a 601 in the singles for 1,737, nine pins better than Penny Tauscher.

Mrs. Hoffmann's bowling helped the Sensuous Fours to the team title with a 2,531 handicap series. Other members were Donna Short, Dolores Ray and Elaine Boyle.

The all-events handicap title went to Koko Robinette with 1,937. Bonnie Dargontina and Lois Schwab captured the doubles with 1,257, while Sharon Sadler won the singles with 696.

Top finishers:

All Events Handicap — Koko Robinette, 1,937; Myrna Sjoblom, 1,895; Josi Beal, 1,889.
Team — Sensuous Fours (Donna Short, Dolores Ray, Elaine Boyle, Bea Hoffmann), 2,531; Wurz Insurance, 2,478; Merry Mixers, 2,451.
Doubles — Bonnie Dargontina-Lois Schwab, 1,257; Kathy Harvey-Anne Lehman, 1,256; Lynn Murray-Erlene Grant, 1,246.

Hunter Close

Jim Hunter of the Oakland A's came closest to pitching a complete game in the 1972 World Series. Rollie Fingers was called on to get the last out in Hunter's 2-1 victory in the second game.

Modell Sets A Proposal On Tampering

CLEVELAND (UPI) — Cleveland Browns' owner Art Modell, saying there is "far too much tampering with coaches in the NFL," told UPI today he is preparing legislation for submission to the league owners to provide costly penalties for clubs found guilty of such tampering.

"The one ingredient that has made pro football great has been competitive balance," Modell said. "The quickest way to destroy that balance is for National Football League teams to raid the staff of other ballclubs.

"I have some very strong feelings about the tampering problems. I believe there is far too much tampering with coaches going on in the NFL today. I am preparing legislation for submission to the NFL owners in Phoenix, Ariz., next month in an effort to stop the tampering."

The penalties provided in Modell's proposed legislation:

Modell's announcement of legislation to cure the problems of tampering within the NFL comes on the heels of a statement by Oakland Raiders' coach John Madden, who has requested that football commissioner Pete Rozelle determine whether another west coast team is guilty of "blatent tampering" with Raider assistant Ray Malavasi.

2. RALPH CRAMDEN was the loveable fat man created by waht TV star? You'll remember how he ruled the roost of a New York flat with his wife Alice and went bowling with Ed Norton, in "The Honeymooners." In real life, he's 57 today, a Brooklyn boy who made good. He and his second wife, Genevieve Halford, live on a Florida estate.

3. BUFFALO BILL was the name given to whom by a 19th century dime novelist? A former Pony Express rider and Indian fighter, this plainsman was discovered by a writer named Ned Buntline, who made him the hero of fictionalized adventures. In 1883 he organized a "Wild West Show," featuring sharpshooter Annie Oakley and Indian Chief Sitting Bull, which thrilled audiences in the United States and Europe. He lived to the age of 70.

4. PETE ALEXANDER is what major league baseball fans called this Nebraskan. Born in 1887 on a farm, he played with minor teams in the Midwest until spotted by the Philadelphia Phillies, who signed him at age 23 as a pitcher. Twenty years later he had won 373, lost 208, matching Christy Mathewson's all-time National League record. Know the real name of this Hall of Famer?

WINNING BRIDGE
By ALFRED SHEINWOLD

When you look at a hand in a bridge column, you have the advantage of knowing that somebody is supposed to do something bright. If you were playing the same hand at the table, you might think it was a routine hand and therefore miss the point. Nobody rang a bell to wake East up when today's hand was played, and he eventually discovered that the bell had tolled for him.

Opening lead — ♠ K

SHREWD ACTION

West opened the king of spades, and South shrewdly played a low spade from dummy. He feared a six-card spade suit in the West hand and saw no sense in playing the ace of spades from dummy, thus forcing East to ruff.

East was delighted to see his partner's king of spades hold the first trick. He discarded the deuce of diamonds and waited for the next move. Unfortunately, East had already missed his chance.

TAKES ACE

West could see that a spade continuation would do no good. The only chance was to cash the ace of clubs in the hope that East had the king. But West could get only one club trick.

No matter how West continued, South was sure to gain the lead to draw a round of trumps and then ruff his losers in dummy. If West hadn't taken the ace of clubs, South would have discarded both clubs from dummy on high diamonds, and then declarer would have made an extra trick. As it was, South made game and rubber.

EAST'S ACTION

It's easy to see what East should have done if he had been wide awake. East should ruff the first spade trick and return a club. Then the defenders get two club tricks and West takes the setting trick with one of his trumps.

DAILY QUESTION

Partner opens with one heart, and the next player passes.

You hold:
♠ - None
♡ - 7
♦ - J 10 9 7 4 2
♣ - Q J 9 4 3 2.
What do you say?
ANSWER: Pass.

You're not likely to make a fortune with this hand even if you discover a fit in one of the minor suits. If you start to bid, however, you might lose a fortune. The risk is greater than your chance to gain.

Tricia's Husband Likes The Army

WASHINGTON (UPI) — President Nixon's son-in-law, Edward Finch Cox, says Army life is "great. It keeps you in shape." But he was more reserved about the food. "It's adequate but not delectable," he said.

Cox, a lieutenant now undergoing reserve basic training at Ft. Benning, Ga., spoke to reporters at the White House after worship services Sunday. He was visiting his wife Tricia.

INCOME TAX FACTS

By PETER J. WIKEL, C.P.A.

Congress Has Closed Loophole On Vacation Home Deductions

Vacation homes, summer homes, secondary residences, community apartments in vacation areas, etc., have been owned by taxpayers and occupied by them at certain times of the year, like during the ski season or during the summer vacation season, and have been rented to others or listed with rental agencies or otherwise held for rent at other times of the year.

For instance, if you had occupied your vacation home for one month out of the year and had rented it for two months out of the year and had it for rent the other nine months of the year, you were deducting as rental expense 11/12ths of all of the interest and taxes and depreciation and maintenance and utilities and insurance, etc., in connection with your vacation home, as rental expenses and having a loss on the ownership and operation of this vacation home and deducting this loss from your income tax return as a loss incurred in the ownership or maintenance of property used for production of income.

You also deducted as an itemized deduction 1/12th of the taxes and interest on the home as being the personal share.

Congress, in its endeavor to close loopholes, apparently did so in the tax reform act of 1969 through the hobby loss rule and the IRS has now issued regulation 1.183-1(d)(3) which implements this hobby loss rule as regards vacation homes and effectively closes this loophole. Under the new regulation, the time that the vacation home was vacant and for rent does not count as business use.

Under the circumstances set forth above, you would have two months of rental use and one month of personal use for a total of three months. Then one-third would be considered personal use and two-thirds would be considered rental use.

However, you cannot exactly allocate your expenses that way because the interest on the house and the taxes on this house are specifically allowable as itemized deductions and you make no allocation for them.

You do allocate your maintenance, insurance, utilities, depreciation, etc., two-thirds to rental use and one-third to personal use, and having determined what two-thirds of these expenses is, you total them.

If the interest and taxes allowed as itemized deductions are less than the total amount of rent received, then the amount of rent received in excess of the itemized deduction for interest and taxes is subject to the deduction for rental expenses for the two-thirds of the maintenance, utilities, depreciation as above, but not more than enough to equal zero income and produce a loss.

If the rental income should by any chance be more than this, then you would have a taxable income.

SUCCESSFUL INVESTING

Hold Suggested On Fannie May

By ROGER E. SPEAR

Q. Do you think I should continue to hold Federal National Mortgage in the low twenties? — P.C.

A. The 18-month freeze on subsidized housing announced in January by the Administration was quickly reflected in FNMA share price. However, the dorp in trading levels may prove to be precipitous since FNMA has enough HUD-subsidized mortgage commitments ahead to sustain its normal financing activity rate through the freeze. Furthermore, if interest rates rise and money supply dries up as anticipated FNMA will probably get a bigger slice of the conventional mortgage market.

As a result of a strong gain in earnings from $1.43 to $2.17 a share in 1972, the dividend rate was increased for the second time in 12 months. Earnings this year should also move ahead, despite higher money costs. The corporation is in a relatively good position in this respect with more than 80 per cent of its debt low-cost long-time debentures. Shares have an above-average risk factor in view of their highly levered position. Nonetheless, I would recommend retention.

Q. My wife and I have $55,000 in savings at 5 per cent. We would like more income on this money but do not want to have the money tied down for a long period. We need maximum safety as we wish to retire in the near future. — P.S.

A. Your capital should be earning more for you. Passbook savings accounts in this area (Northeast) are paying 5¼ per cent from dy of deposit to day of withdrawal, which is a 5.4 per cent effective yield on 1-year deposits. One-year certificate accounts pay 5¾ per cent. A few hours of investigation should turn up banks offering insured accounts with more satisfactory interest rates than you are now receiving.

A second possibility is six-month Treasury bills currently paying approximately 5.8 per cent. Information on how to purchase these government debt obligations may be secured from the Federal Reserve Bank branch office located in your city.

Sagging Market Regains Some Strength At Close

NEW YORK (UPI) — The stock market recovered some of its earlier losses toward the close today, but still finished lower as investors fidgeted over the possibility of a credit squeeze.

Declines maintained a 10 to three ratio over advances.

Analysts said investors were worried over recent rate boosts, possibly signaling a forthcoming credit squeeze. Several federal reserve system banks increased their lending rates to commercial banks to 5 ½ per cent from 5 per cent and a host of banks correspondingly upped their prime rate to corporations to 6 ¼ per cent from 6 per cent.

A number of mining stocks traded lower on the Big Board, ostensibily because the price of gold and silver fell following the U.S. interest rate increases. Among those moving lower were Campbell Redlake, Homestake Mining and Sunshine Mining.

Also on the easier side were broadcast industry stocks, including American Broadcasting Cos., Taft Broadcasting and Storer Broadcasting. Television industry leaders recently announced strong and sweeping rules regulating the advertising of non-prescription medicines, effective Sept. 1.

New Middle East Restaurant Slated At Mark Twain Square

To be called "Opa!," it will be operated by Iris Ergas of Mill Valley, former school teacher in Los Angeles. Her husband, David Ergas, works for an airline company. The Ergas' have traveled extensively in the Middle East and at one time operated a restaurant in New York.

"Opa!" is the Greek equivalent of the Spanish "Ole!" Mrs. Ergas explained. She will have Greek, Israeli, and Turkish food, both lunch and dinner, withvarious types of folk dancing on week nights and international entertainment on Saturday nights. "Eventually, we may have belly dancing during lunch."

Albert Realty Inc. of San Rafael, exclusive leasing agent for Mark Twain Square, negotiated the lease for the new restaurant.

Leswing Communications Inc. bought the 3.3-acre property at Adrian and La Pasada Ways last year and is redeveloping the old shopping center (including the Cala Market building) into an attractive commercial center. Other new tenants who will open at Mark Twain Square include the Quik Stop Market, a bank, and professional offices.

NOVATO THEATER will reopen on Wednesday (Feb. 28) with a veteran theater manager from Santa Rosa in charge.

New owner is Keith K. Hansen, who operates Redwood Drive-In near Santa Rosa and has been negotiator and general manager of Sebastiani Theater in Sonoma for the past seven years. Previously, Hansen also managed the State Theater in Petaluma for 10 years and the Roxy Theater in Santa Rosa for 10 years.

Hansen said he has no major changes in mind for the moment but will do some remodeling and refurbishing later on. "The main thing is to re-open the theater, let people know we're heere, and get acquainted with them," said Hansen.

The theater was last owned by Bernard B. Carroll of Rohnert Park, who closed the regular run on Jan. 10 and reopened briefly this month for a couple of special features before closing for good.

PAULINE'S SPORTSWEAR at 1213 Grant Avenue in Novato changed hands today, but the same name and services will continue under new owner Viola V. Van Gronigen of Novato.

She bought the store from Frances Simpson, who moved to Sacramento after operating the store for about two years.

The shop features women's sportswear including suits, jackets, blouses and shorts. "Every item sells for $4," said Mrs. Van Gronigen. "It's fantastic."

She has about 15 years of experience in the women's apparel field, including 10 years as a buyer in Hanford. She moved to Novato 14 years ago and was working part-time at Pauline's for the past eight months.

A NEW SHELL service station is planned at 1835 and 1837 Fourth Street, San Rafael, where Rudy's Liquors and Triple S Tire Center are located.

Plans presented to the San Rafael Planning Commission call for Shell to take over everything from the corner up to but not International Pancake House.

Raymond Scutti of San Rafael, who owns Rudy's Liquors, said he plans to close the shop in about two months and sell his liquor license.

Triple S Tire Center is owned by Donald Lamp and Hal Sager, who operate a chain of tire shops, including one on Jacoby Street in San Rafael and several in Sonoma County.

THE PORT, a collection of specialty shops at 393 Miller Avenue in Mill Valley, has four more new shops just opened. The new stores and their owners are:

THE LIGHTHOUSE, specializing in custom-made lamps of wood, stained glass and other materials. Partners are Nelson Perez of San Rafael and James Parker of Mill Valley.

Parker Perez

"Individuality is the key to the business," said Perez. "No two lamps are alike, unless the customer wants it that way."

WHIPS AND JINGLES, run by Denny Haubursin of Mill Valley, turns out western shirts custom made to order. Mrs. Haubursin has been making shirts as a hobby for two years. She plans to add western style jackets to her line of products.

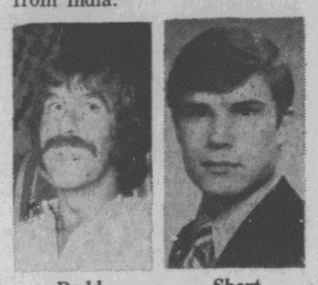
Haubursin Parent

CABLE TABLES, owned by Hoyt Parent and Michael McLeran of San Rafael, sells distinctive tables made from large cable spools imported from Europe.

They strip off the sides from the spools and make table tops ranging from three feet to 10 feet in diameter, with or without bases.

STAR HERBS, which specializes in herbs, spices and teas, is marking its first anniversary at The Port. Owners are Bob Menzis and Budge Fleming of Mill Valley. They also conduct classes on the science of herbology.

FRIENDS, owned by William Dodd of Greenbrae, carries imported items from Africa, Asia and India. Dodd said he concentrates on the African imports but also handles other things such as paintings and pottery from India.



Dodd Short

JAMES F. SHORT has been elected to the board of directors and vice president of Professional Capital Agencies Inc., a San Rafael insurance brokerage firm at 121 Paul Drive.

Short worked for Holiday Magic Inc. and its affiliate, Alexander Taylor Inc., before joining Professional Capital Agencies in September of 1971.

REALTORS BREAKFAST — F. J. (Jim) Picchi, co-owner of Mission Realty in Novato, will speak on "Why Invest In Real Estate" at tomorrow's breakfast of the Marin County Board of Realtors. The meeting starts at 8 a.m. at the Corte Madera Lions Club.

Picchi is an instructor accredited by the National Institute of Real Estate Boards and is scheduled to teach a course in real estate finance at the College of Marin in April.

GOODYEAR TIRE & Rubber Co. plans to build an auto accessory and appliance store in Novato at the corner of Highway 101 and Vallejo Avenue, across the street from Grand Auto Store.

Plans call for a one-story structure similar to the Goodyear Tire store on Las Gallinas Avenue in Terra Linda but conforming to Novato requirements.

"We will carry a complete line of Goodyear tires and auto accessories plus major appliances of Westinghouse, General Electric and Zenith," said Ray Engel of San Leandro, assistant district manager for Goodyear. He hopes to have the new shop open this summer.

NORMAN D. ROCKWOOD, one of the principals in a new food service company in San Francisco called Food Dimensions Inc., is a former Marin resident who attended San Rafael schools. He is the son of the late Lee Rockwood, who ran King Cotton and the Griddle restaurants for years. Lee Rockwood died in 1959.

Norman Rockwood is Southern California regional vice president of Food Dimensions Inc. Other Marin principals in the firm are Philip L. Jones, Robert Feddersen, and Robert W. Romer.

'Drifters' Trace Flow Of Pollutants

By JOHN M. LEIGHTY

SANTA CRUZ (UPI) — Gary B. Griggs drops 360 bright, disc-shaped drifters along a 50-mile stretch of ocean each month in a project to help keep the blue-green waters of Monterey Bay from being choked by pollutants.

Each drifter, which looks like a red "frizbee with a tail," indicates which way currents flow from pipes that pour 40 million gallons of sewage a day into the Pacific.

Griggs, a young assistant professor of earth sciences at UC Santa Cruz, says his modern "note in the bottle" technique has shown that most of the drifters, and therefore the sewage, gets swept inside the bay.

"The solution to pollution has been dilution, which is pretty poor," said Griggs, who started his study in November 1971, a time when area residents were getting over the shock of seeing tidy swimming beaches posted for high bacterial counts.

Pacific Grove and Seaside to the south were posted several times, but "hyperchlorination has kept them under control" recently, said Walter Wong, director of environmental health for Monterey County.

Sewage discharge from the 10 outfalls that stretch along the bay has not only caused a health hazard for people, but also to the fragile marine life of an important part of the ocean environment — the intertidal zone, that section that lies between the highest high tides and the lowest low tides.

Griggs says his study shows that the bay does not "flush" itself regularly as previously thought. With a growing population and the present primary treatment of sewage at some of the outfalls, the health aspect could become acute in the future.

His drifters are found by persons along the shore, bobbing in the water and sometimes pulled up in fishing nets. Each contains a coded card which the finder fills out and returns to Griggs. His returns average 30 per cent, a good percentage, considering some have been found as far north as Eureka and as far south as Cambria, below the Hearst Castle.

Most of them, however, are found in the bay. Of 84 picked up from a drop at the Santa Cruz outfall, 78 either washed directly on shore or back into the bay. Of 91 picked up from a Moss Landing drop, 89 remained in the bay.

He said these and similar findings "don't say much about the bay flushing itself."

Areas that should be abundant in small marine organisms such as limpets, crabs, snails, starfish and barnacles have been found to be sterile around several outfalls.

At Pleasure Point, a surfing spot near Capitola just south of Santa Cruz, cases of hepatitis were reported.

Raynor Talley, Santa Cruz County's director of environmental health said Pleasure Point was almost closed last year, but chlorination was increased to meet state standards on bacteria count.

"We have posted warning signs, but surfers go there anyway," he said. "The pipe itself tends to enhance the waves."

The East Cliff Sanitation District's outfall is only a short pipe that discharges into the surf zone. Talley said tests are made only of bacterial counts, not viral, and that state health officials have "never been able to prove" the hepatitis cases resulted from the water.

Monterey Bay is very much biologically alive with fauna, flora and sea life and coastal cities and towns are mobilizing in an effort to make sure it doesn't become a bowl of pollutants.

Wong said his environmental health agency monitors and makes surveillance of Monterey Bay's beaches and rivers, taking samples along the sandy shoreline twice a week. Once a month water samples are taken offshore.

"The public has demanded action," said Wong. Since the first beaches were posted in 1969, he said, some interim measures have been taken to alleviate health problems.

A bond issue was passed in 1970 by the tri-city residents and improvements have been made in secondary treatment, particularly in Monterey.

"The south bay ought to eliminate outfalls," said Wong. "Long range steps are now needed because of increased growth of the area and other environmetal factors."

A long range study of the bay already has been launched by the Association of Monterey Bay Area Governments (AMBAG). The study has a 30-year time period and will include finding better physical processes for sewage reatment, new sites for outfalls, reclamation of sewage and better secondary treatment.

Ending next month is a two-year $90,000 AMBAG financed study of the processes and life of the bay itself — its currents, bottom formation, plankton, and so forth.

"We have come up with a representative current model of the bay — also a biological model to control quality," said Leslie Doolittle, director of AMBAG.

He said industrial wastes are limited and not much of a problem but that the sewage outfalls have had some pretty direct effects on marine life.

"Some outfalls discharge directly onto beach and rocks," said Doolittle. "There's been a very visible die-off of marine life around these outfalls."

Rocks at Point Pinos have turned brown from the high level of chlorination, which also kills organisms, said Doolittle.

"This may affect a relatively small area, but a large proportion of the marine environment," he said.

Pacific Grove discharges into the surf zone, he said, and Fort Ord has secondary treatment but no outfall and discharges right onto the beach surf.

"The bay is still rich in marine biology of all kinds — flora and fauna. Divers report visibility at 40-50 feet. It's very much alive," said Doolittle. "There's been an easily observed effect around the outfalls. To abate these problems has been the object of the studies."

For Pleasure Point, the recommendation has been to pipe sewage to Santa Cruz' treatment plan and outfall and to eventually move the outfall four miles further north up the bay.

An impact statement requested by the Sierra Club has been filed by the Environmental Protection Agency. Its preliminary conclusion was that it would be logical to consolidate the districts.

John Pearse, a biologist from the University of California at Santa Cruz who has been studying the intertidal zone life as part of the AMBAG project, said there were "a lot less fish and no plants and animals" in the vicinity of the East Cliff outfall at Pleasure Point.

Pearse and biology professor William T. Doyle started cataloguing ocean life in the area during October 1971's low tide and have been making a season record of what is presently there.

"It will be especially interesting to see if these patterns of species-abundance change after discharge from the East Cliff sewage plant is terminated. It will be equally interesting to see if the species-abundant pattern at the Santa Cruz site changes when the sewage discharge there is increased," the biologists said in a recent report to AMBAG.

Doolittle said that engineering data shows the bay is flushed every 18-30 days, but "the pattern shifts." "Pockets exist at each end of the bay that cause problems. Future discharges must be kept out of both pockets," he said.

Rod Homgren of Carmel, chapter conservation chairman for the Sierra Club, said ecologists "don't like the idea of outfalls. They're not sufficient or a long-term way of dealing with sewage problems."

He said very little research has previously been done on the outfalls or the marine life of the area.

Regaioal planning was much to be preferred over a state controlled sewage program, Homgren said. He said various kinds of sewage disposal systems could be tried.

One experiment, which will be conducted in King City, involves the "ponding" of secondarily treated water, which can then be used for other purposes, he said.

With9the full-scale assault on making Monterey Bay the pristine place where weekend sailors and sunbathers can play, contamination could soon become a thing of the past.

There are a lot of questions to be answered. Griggs, who drops the drifters, believes some of the planned solutions could be off target.

He said, for instance, his data showed that hooking the four-million gallon a day output of the East Cliff outfall to Santa Cruz and moving the pipe four miles up the coast wouldn't help matters.

"The sewage is all going back into the bay anyway," said Griggs. "So it's just a five million dollar pipeline to put it back in the same place."

More than a year of results show the bay is not part of the open ocean, said Griggs. "It doesn't have the same circulation — things stay in there for a while."

Reusing water on land and the agricultural use of treated wastes could be the answer, Griggs said.

"The least we can do is get better treatment and longer offshore outfalls so that we do get into a zone where there's enough water movement coming by to dilute this stuff before it gets back on the beaches," said Griggs.

"It's still going to affect the biology of the area, there's no question about that."

HOW TO KEEP WELL

By DR. THEODORE R. VAN DELLEN

Tumors Of The Hand Are Rarely Dangerous, But Are Bothersome

Various tumors, growth, birthmarks, warts, nevi, and cysts can be found on the human hand. A few are dangerous, but the majority are bothersome for cosmetic reasons or because they "get in the way." The glomus tumor is, perhaps, the most painful, even though it seldom grows larger than a grain of rice. It originates from nervous and vascular tissue and usually develops under the fingernail or near the fingertip.

Not only does a glomus tumor hurt, it is extremely tender to the touch and sensitive to the cold. It is not always seen, but when visible, is a soft pink or purple, well-defined, slightly elongated mass less than one-half inch in diameter.

FOR REASONS unknown, these lesions are partial to middle-aged women. Since they are not always visible, the physician localizes the lesion by feeling with the finger or using a steel pin. When pressed over the lesion, the point of the pin leads to excruciating pain. Surgical removal is the only remedy.

Recently a friend of mine qointed out a swelling on his wrist. It was a ganglion, probably the most common tumor on the hand or wrist. Ganglia do not hurt and are not tender to the touch. These nonmalignant cysts usually grow spontaneously from redundant connective tissue of a joint capsule or tendon sheath.

COMPLETE SURGICAL removal is necessary for cure. Fifty years ago, they were ruptured by hitting them with the large family Bible. Temporary improvement followed. Removing the contents and replacing it with a corticosteroid solution also makes the ganglion disappear, but not always permanently.

Not long ago, I read of a 71-year-old woman who had a huge tumor removed from the index finger of her left hand. She had it since childhood. Her general practitioner had known about it for years, but never could persuade her to have it removed. When it began increasing in size, she finally agreed. By this time, it was four inches in diameter and had replaced the entire finger, except for the tip. Surgery involved removal of the entire digit. Fortunately, it was not malignant.

Questions on medical topics will be answered by mail if stamped, self-addressed envelope accompanies request to the Independent-Journal.

CHRONIC ECZEMA

C. writes: My sister has large patches of eczema on the face, back of the ears, and on the legs, arms, elbows, and knees. Nothing seems to relieve it and she can't afford a specialist. What would you suggest?

REPLY

Eczema has many causes and variations. Ointments and medications, especially those containing corticosteroids, help temporarily. However, a permanent cure is more likely to occur if the cause is found and eliminated. If your sister cannot afford a dermatologist, she should go to a university clinic, county hospital, or health department.

ARTHRITIC HEEL

K.N. writes: I have arthritis of the knees, neck, and ankles. My right heel is so painful that walking is no fun. I weigh 200 pounds. What causes this heel condition and what can be done about it?

REPLY

Arthritis is the most logical explanation, inasmuch as you have arthritis elsewhere. You need to lose weight and obtain treatment before the joint surfaces in your heel are damaged beyond repair. Other causes of pain in the heel are bursitis, spur formation, and gout.

ULCER DISCOMFORT

P.H. writes: According to the doctor, my duodenal ulcer healed. But when I eat fresh fruit and fried food, I have the same trouble as before. This seems strange to me if the ulcer is healed. Could it have broken open again?

REPLY

Perhaps, and the only way to find out is to mention this to your physician. He may suggest another x-ray of the stomach. The gallbladder should be x-rayed if the stomach is normal. And we might add that having had an ulcer does not make one immune to indigestion or to an intolerance to certain foods.

'THICK' BLOOD

A reader writes: Does a person with high blood pressure have thick blood?

REPLY

Occasionally, if by "thick" you mean an increased number of red blood cells and hemoglobin. But "thick" or concentrated blood is not responsible for the increased tension.

HEART MURMURS

M.M. writes: Can a heart murmur cause a heart attack?

REPLY

Murmurs are abnormal heart sounds. The cause of these swishing sounds may lead to heart attack.

HEADACHES

N.S. writes: I have severe head pains that start at the base of the skull. After a doctor examined me, he said I was in good physical condition, but suffering from an emotional syndrome. His only suggestion was to relax. What is an emotional syndrome and how can I learn to relax?

REPLY

Your physician believes tension is responsible for pain in the back of your neck. I can't tell you how to relax. You must take stock of your activities and correct all situations that are upsetting or creating internal emotional tension. If there are no conscious causes, you have the following choices: (1) See a psychiatrist, who will probe into your past to find the causative experiences or (2) get another opinion on the neck pain. I recommend the latter, because distress in this area often comes from a variety of muscular and body conditions as well as from nose and throat infections.

SPLIT PERSONALITY

G. writes: Does split personality run in families?

REPLY

Yes, but we don't know if this mental condition is hereditary.

TB OF BONE

R.R. writes: Does tuberculosis ever involve the bones? If so, what are the symptoms?

REPLY

Yes, pain, tenderness, and swelling often occur, over the bones involved. TB of the spine may exist for a long time without producing symptoms. The vertebrae collapse leading to "hunchback," a condition we rarely see today.

BABIES DON'T WAIT

A reader writes: Is it true that babies never are born on nights when quarter or half moons are on the horizon?

REPLY

Babies are born every day and night of the year, regardless of the moon, stars, or space ships.

FULL TO BED

Mrs. M. writes: Is it harmful to go to bed on a full stomach?

REPLY

No, but it may be a bit uncomfortable.

TWO PLUS

J. A. V. writes: What does two plus mean in a test for blood in the stools?

REPLY

Chemical tests for blood in the stools are graded from one to four plus. A two plus is not enough for concern. This test is more meaningful if it is done after the individual has been on a meat-free diet for a few days. Meat contains blood that could produce a two plus reaction.

KIDNEY INFECTION

Mrs. L. writes: What would cause nephritis in a boy of 4 years?

REPLY

The cause is not known, but in many instances, nephritis (Bright's disease) follows a streptococcal infection elsewhere in the body. The most common of these are strep throat, scarlet fever, and impetigo.

MOUTH DEFECT

REPLY

Not necessarily. The lip and the hard palate are involved in approximately 50 per cent of the cases.

In 1919, Congress established the Grand Canyon Park in Arizona.

In 1935, Germany began operation of its air force — the Luftwaffe — under Reichsmarshal Hermann Goering, who became a powerful Nazi leader during World War II.

A thought for the day: American poet Ralph Waldo Emerson said, "The reward of a thing well done is to have done it."

Three Hurt In Accident Said 'Fair'

Three persons were reported in fair condition today at Marin General Hospital as a result of injuries suffered yesterday in an accident on Sir Francis Drake Boulevard, according to the California Highway Patrol.

William Douglas Lemon, 26, of San Bruno suffered head injuries and chest bruises; Dennis Pfennig, 23, of 4 Florence Avenue Avenue, San Anselmo, cuts on his head and leg and Lynn Pfennig, 54, of 126 Center Drive, Woodacre, broken lower ribs.

According to patrolmen, Lemon was driving a car and horse trailer eastbound on Sir Francis Drake Boulevard when a car passed his and cut in close8to avoid an oncoming car at 5:15 p.m. yesterday. Lemon's car hit the right bank and then crossed the road into some trees and brush.

The other two were passengers in his car.

The Face Of Congress Is About Same

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Congressional reformers once again have performed plastic surgery on the aging face of the seniority system, but many of the old wrinkles remain.

For years liberals in Congress have fought to abolish the system that selects powerful committee chairman purely on the basis of elective longevity.

Significant changes have been made in the way the system works, most recently in the current session. And some reformers unblinkingly have declared that the unwritten custom has been "abolished."

In truth, however, the traditional system of turning over the reins of congressional power to Congress' most experienced — and in some cases, oldest—members continues as it always has.

Two years ago, House Democrats instituted a rules change requiring that members vote on the selection of a chairman if requested by at least 10 members.

Few, however, were willing openly to challenge a chairman. In fact, it was only used once in an unsuccessful challenge against former Rep. John L. McMillan, D-S. C., who headed the District of Columbia Committee.

House Republicans, at that time, agreed to require secret votes by their entire membership to choose their top-ranking committee leaders. And, predictably, the senior-ranking Republican on each committee was selected.

Last month, House Democrats agreed to follow the GOP lead and called for a secret ballot on the selection of each committee chairman. One by one through 21 successive votes, the senior committee leaders were chosen by an overwhelming vote of confidence.

Rep. Richard Ichord, D-Mo., chairman of the Internal Security Committee, had the most opposition with a 108-49 vote, but that represented House opposition to the committee itself rather than to Ichord personally.

Again, on the GOP side, ranking minority leaders all were approved easily.

Senate Republicans also approved similar reforms last month, emulating changes made two years ago by their Democratic colleagues. Here again the ranking GOP members of each committee automatically were given power.

The chairman sets the committee's agenda, designates subcommittee chairmen, refers bills to his subcommittees, decides when the committee meets and whether to hold hearings, approves the list of witnesses, hires staff, decides what to investigate, manages legislation on the floor, decides when the committee is to vote on bills and opens and closes committee debate.

Ranking Republicans hire minority staffing on each committee and are in line for the chairmanship should the GOP win a majority in the Senate or House.

Yet even with the virtual retention of the custom of rewarding those who have served the longest with the most power, liberal reform groups such as Common Cause and Americans for Democratic Action were all but ecstatic over this year's reforms.

By subjecting committee leaders of both parties to a periodic vote of confidence, they argued, chairmen will be held accountable for their performance as well as to the general will of their party.

Reformers also applauded the Democrats' "subcommittee bill of rights" in the House, which in part allows a subcommittee chairman to be challenged by a majority vote of the Democrats on the full committee, the new rules further guarantee that freshman members must be named to at least one major standing committee.

Despite numerous assertions about "the evils" of the seniority system, most members agree that no one has proposed a better way of selecting committee chairmen.

Indeed, its proponents argue the seniority custom is one of Congress' major strengths, ensuring that the personal power and responsibilities of the men who run its committees will not fall into inexperienced hands.

Senate Democratic Leader Mike Mansfield advised new members at the beginning of the session that "in general, the Senate has been well served ... by the chairmen of its various committees."

Sen. Edward M. Kennedy, D-Mass., is among those who believe that with time the seniority system will put liberals such as himself into the seats of power.

Meanwhile, there may have been a collective sigh of impatience from some freshmen when they saw how long it took Rep. Ray J. Madden, D-Ind., after 15 terms in the House, to become chairman of the Rules Committee. Madden is 80.

Map To Come Before Council

The San Rafael City Council will consider a tentative map for Peacock Gap Unit 5 when it meets at 8 p.m. today in city hall.

Consideration of the map has been postponed for months amid talks between American Savings and Loan Association and homeowners aimed at reaching agreement on the 170-lot single-family subdivision on a 72-acre bowl-shaped parcel at McNear and Peacock drives.

The council also will consider a list of fees or increases in fees for various city services, hear a report from the citizens advisory committee and discuss upgrading the city library to meet earthquake standards.

Candidate's Coffee To Be Wednesday

The Independent-Journal erroneously reported Friday that a coffee for Eileen Bach-Y-Rita, a candidate for the Mill Valley School District board, is scheduled for tomorrow.

The event at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Jasper Strandgaard of 125 Reed Boulevard, Strawberry, will be at 8 p.m. Wednesday.

Hearing Set On Property Concealing

A preliminary hearing for 21-year-old Patricia Ann Fusilieria on a felony charge of concealing stolen property has been scheduled for Friday in Marin Municipal Court.

Judge Peter Allen Smith set the hearing for the San Rafael resident after she pleaded innocent.

Acting on a tip, San Rafael police went to her home at 14 Pleasant Lane Jan. 9 and found her and three companions sitting amid a quantity of guns.

Officers said that three shotguns, three rifles and a pistol in the home had been reported stolen from a neighbor's residence the day before.

Coats, jewelry and other items reported stolen from two other San Rafael homes also were found, police said.

Two Officals Must Move

I-J Special Report

SAN FRANCISCO — Two San Francisco school officials living in Marin have been told to move into the city or forfeit their jobs.

The officials, among four given such orders, are Ralph Kauer of San Anselmo, assistant superintendent for budget planning, and Martin Dean of Novato, assistant superintendent for special education. Each receives an annual salary of $30,000.

The order is said to have arisen from a meeting of the board of education Thursday at which school legal adviser Irving Breyer interpreted the city charter to compel high-ranking school officials to reside in the city.

Membership Leader Picked

Tina Martin of Novato has been appointed chairman of the 1973 membership campaign for Marin Aid to Retarded Children, Dr. Joseph Spinelli, president of the group, announced.

The society during March will seek members to aid in continuing programs of mental retardation research, prevention, education and service, according to Dr. Spinelli.

The group offers direct services to many of the approximately 3,900 retarded persons in the county and also provides services for their families.

'Drifters' Trace Flow Of Pollutants

By JOHN M. LEIGHTY

SANTA CRUZ (UPI) — Gary B. Griggs drops 360 bright, disc-shaped drifters along a 50-mile stretch of ocean each month in a project to help keep the blue-green waters of Monterey Bay from being choked by pollutants.

Each drifter, which looks like a red "frizbee with a tail," indicates which way currents flow from pipes that pour 40 million gallons of sewage a day into the Pacific.

Griggs, a young assistant professor of earth sciences at UC Santa Cruz, says his modern "note in the bottle" technique has shown that most of the drifters, and therefore the sewage, gets swept inside the bay.

'The solution to pollution has been dilution, which is pretty poor," said Griggs, who started his study in November 1971, a time when area residents were getting over the shock of seeing tidy swimming beaches posted for high bacterial counts.

Pacific Grove and Seaside to the south were posted several times, but "hyperchlorination has kept them under control" recently, said Walter Wong, director of environmental health for Monterey County.

Sewage discharge from the 10 outfalls that stretch along the bay has not only caused a health hazard for people, but also to the fragile marine life of an important part of the ocean environment — the intertidal zone, that section that lies between the highest high tides and the lowest low tides.

Griggs says his study shows that the bay does not "flush" itself regularly as previously thought. With a growing population and the present primary treatment of sewage at some of the outfalls, the health aspect could become acute in the future.

"We're looking at exact spots they're discharging now and at exact spots they're proposing to discharge," said Griggs.

His drifters are found by persons along the shore, bobbing in the water and sometimes pulled up in fishing nets. Each contains a coded card which the finder fills out and returns to Griggs. His returns average 30 per cent, a good percentage, considering some have been found as far north as Eureka and as far south as Cambria, below the Hearst Castle.

Most of them, however, are found in the bay. Of 84 picked up from a drop at the Santa Cruz outfall, 78 either washed directly on shore or back into the bay. Of 91 picked up from a Moss Landing drop, 89 remained in the bay.

He said these and similar findings "don't say much about the bay flushing itself."

Areas that should be abundant in small marine organisms such as limpets, crabs, snails, starfish and barnacles have been found to be sterile around several outfalls.

At Pleasure Point, a surfing spot near Capitola just south of Santa Cruz, cases of hepatitis were reported.

Raynor Talley, Santa Cruz County's director of environmental health said Pleasure Point was almost closed last year, but chlorination was increased to meet state standards on bacteria count.

"We have posted warning signs, but surfers go there anyway," he said. "The pipe itself tends to enhance the waves."

The East Cliff Sanitation District's outfall is only a short pipe that discharges into the surf zone. Talley said tests are made only of bacterial counts, not viral, and that state health officials have "never been able to prove" the hepatitis cases resulted from the water.

Monterey Bay is very much biologically alive with fauna, flora and sea life and coastal cities and towns are mobilizing in an effort to make sure it doesn't become a bowl of pollutants.

Wong said his environmental health agency monitors and makes surveillance of Monterey Bay's beaches and rivers, taking samples along the sandy shoreline twice a week. Once a month water samples are taken offshore.

"The public has demanded action," said Wong. Since the first beaches were posted in 1969, he said, some interim measures have been taken to alleviate health problems.

For instance, a tri-city regional sewage district was formed incorporating Seaside, Pacific Grove and Monterey. The Salinas Valley is presently considering combining sewage plants.

A bond issue was passed in 1970 by the tri-city residents and improvements have been made in secondary treatment, particularly in Monterey.

"The south bay ought to eliminate outfalls," said Wong. "Long range steps are now needed because of increased growth of the area and other environmetal factors."

A long range study of the bay already has been launched by the Association of Monterey Bay Area Governments (AMBAG). The study has a 30-year time period and will include finding better physical processes for sewage reatment, new sites for outfalls, reclamation of sewage and better secondary treatment.

Ending next month is a two-year $90,000 AMBAG financed study of the processes and life of the bay itself — its currents, bottom formation, plankton, and so forth.

"We have come up with a representative current model of the bay — also a biological model to control quality," said Leslie Doolittle, director of AMBAG.

He said industrial wastes are limited and not much of a problem but that the sewage outfalls have had some pretty direct effects on marine life.

"Some outfalls discharge directly onto beach and rocks," said Doolittle. "There's been a very visible die-off of marine life around these outfalls."

Rocks at Point Pinos have turned brown from the high level of chlorination, which also kills organisms, said Doolittle.

"This may affect a relatively small area, but a large proportion of the marine environment," he said.

Pacific Grove discharges into the surf zone, he said, and Fort Ord has secondary treatment but no outfall and discharges right onto the beach surf.

"The bay is still rich in marine biology of all kinds — flora and fauna. Divers report visibility at 40-50 feet. It's very much alive," said Doolittle. "There's been an easily observed effect around the outfalls. To abate these problems has been the object of the studies."

For Pleasure Point, the recommendation has been to pipe sewage to Santa Cruz' treatment plan and outfall and to eventually move the outfall four miles further north up the bay.

An impact statement requested by the Sierra Club has been filed by the Environmental Protection Agency. Its preliminary conclusion was that it would be logical to consolidate the districts.

John Pearse, a biologist from the University of California at Santa Cruz who has been studying the intertidal zone life as part of the AMBAG project, said there were "a lot less fish and no plants and animals" in the vicinity of the East Cliff outfall at Pleasure Point.

Pearse and biology professor William T. Doyle started cataloguing ocean life in the area during October 1971's low tide and have been making a season record of what is presently there.

"It will be especially interesting to see if these patterns of species-abundance change after discharge from the East Cliff sewage plant is terminated. It will be equally interesting to see if the species-abundant pattern at the Santa Cruz site changes when the sewage discharge there is increased," the biologists said in a recent report to AMBAG.

Doolittle said that engineering data shows the bay is flushed every 18-30 days, but "the pattern shifts." "Pockets exist at each end of the bay that cause problems. Future discharges must be kept out of both pockets," he said.

Rod Homgren of Carmel, chapter conservation chairman for the Sierra Club, said ecologists "don't like the idea of outfalls. They're not sufficient or a long-term way of dealing with sewage problems."

He said very little research has previously been done on the outfalls or the marine life of the area.

Regaioal planning was much to be preferred over a state controlled sewage program, Homgren said. He said various kinds of sewage disposal systems could be tried.

One experiment, which will be conducted in King City, involves the "ponding" of secondarily treated water, which can then be used for other purposes, he said.

With9the full-scale assault on making Monterey Bay the pristine place where weekend sailors and sunbathers can play, contamination could soon become a thing of the past.

There are a lot of questions to be answered. Griggs, who drops the drifters, believes some of the planned solutions could be off target.

He said, for instance, his data showed that hooking the four-million gallon a day output of the East Cliff outfall to Santa Cruz and moving the pipe four miles up the coast wouldn't help matters.

"The sewage is all going back into the bay anyway," said Griggs. "So it's just a five million dollar pipeline to put it back in the same place."

More than a year of results show the bay is not part of the open ocean, said Griggs. "It doesn't have the same circulation — things stay in there for a while."

Reusing water on land and the agricultural use of treated wastes could be the answer, Griggs said.

"The least we can do is get better treatment and longer offshore outfalls so that we do get into a zone where there's enough water movement coming by to dilute this stuff before it gets back on the beaches," said Griggs.

"It's still going to affect the biology of the area, there's no question about that."

HOW TO KEEP WELL

By DR. THEODORE R. VAN DELLEN

Tumors Of The Hand Are Rarely Dangerous, But Are Bothersome

Various tumors, growth, birthmarks, warts, nevi, and cysts can be found on the human hand. A few are dangerous, but the majority are bothersome for cosmetic reasons or because they "get in the way." The glomus tumor is, perhaps, the most painful, even though it seldom grows larger than a grain of rice. It originates from nervous and vascular tissue and usually develops under the fingernail or near the fingertip.

Not only does a glomus tumor hurt, it is extremely tender to the touch and sensitive to the cold. It is not always seen, but when visible, is a soft pink or purple, well-defined, slightly elongated mass less than one-half inch in diameter.

FOR REASONS unknown, these lesions are partial to middle-aged women. Since they are not always visible, the physician localizes the lesion by feeling with the finger or using a steel pin. When pressed over the lesion, the point of the pin leads to excruciating pain. Surgical removal is the only remedy.

Recently a friend of mine qointed out a swelling on his wrist. It was a ganglion, probably the most common tumor on the hand or wrist. Ganglia do not hurt and are not tender to the touch. These nonmalignant cysts usually grow spontaneously from redundant connective tissue of a joint capsule or tendon sheath.

COMPLETE SURGICAL removal is necessary for cure. Fifty years ago, they were ruptured by hitting them with the large family Bible. Temporary improvement followed. Removing the contents and replacing it with a corticosteroid solution also makes the ganglion disappear, but not always permanently.

Not long ago, I read of a 71-year-old woman who had a huge tumor removed from the index finger of her left hand. She had it since childhood. Her general practitioner had known about it for years, but never could persuade her to have it removed. When it began increasing in size, she finally agreed. By this time, it was four inches in diameter and had replaced the entire finger, except for the tip. Surgery involved removal of the entire digit. Fortunately, it was not malignant.

Questions on medical topics will be answered by mail if stamped, self-addressed envelope accompanies request to the Independent-Journal.

CHRONIC ECZEMA

C. writes: My sister has large patches of eczema on the face, back of the ears, and on the legs, arms, elbows, and knees. Nothing seems to relieve it and she can't afford a specialist. What would you suggest?

REPLY

Eczema has many causes and variations. Ointments and medications, especially those containing corticosteroids, help temporarily. However, a permanent cure is more likely to occur if the cause is found and eliminated. If your sister cannot afford a dermatologist, she should go to a university clinic, county hospital, or health department.

ARTHRITIC HEEL

K.N. writes: I have arthritis of the knees, neck, and ankles. My right heel is so painful that walking is no fun. I weigh 200 pounds. What causes this heel condition and what can be done about it?

REPLY

Arthritis is the most logical explanation, inasmuch as you have arthritis elsewhere. You need to lose weight and obtain treatment before the joint surfaces in your heel are damaged beyond repair. Other causes of pain in the heel are bursitis, spur formation, and gout.

ULCER DISCOMFORT

P.H. writes: According to the doctor, my duodenal ulcer healed. But when I eat fresh fruit and fried food, I have the same trouble as before. This seems strange to me if the ulcer is healed. Could it have broken open again?

REPLY

Perhaps, and the only way to find out is to mention this to your physician. He may suggest another x-ray of the stomach. The gallbladder should be x-rayed if the stomach is normal. And we might add that having had an ulcer does not make one immune to indigestion or to an intolerance to certain foods.

'THICK' BLOOD

REPLY

Occasionally, if by "thick" you mean an increased number of red blood cells and hemoglobin. But "thick" or concentrated blood is not responsible for the increased tension.

HEART MURMURS

M.M. writes: Can a heart murmur cause a heart attack?

REPLY

Murmurs are abnormal heart sounds. The cause of these swishing sounds may lead to heart attack.

HEADACHES

N.S. writes: I have severe head pains that start at the base of the skull. After a doctor examined me, he said I was in good physical condition, but suffering from an emotional syndrome. His only suggestion was to relax. What is an emotional syndrome and how can I learn to relax?

REPLY

Your physician believes tension is responsible for pain in the back of your neck. I can't tell you how to relax. You must take stock of your activities and correct all situations that are upsetting or creating internal emotional tension. If there are no conscious causes, you have the following choices: (1) See a psychiatrist, who will probe into your past to find the causative experiences or (2) get another opinion on the neck pain. I recommend the latter, because distress in this area often comes from a variety of muscular and body conditions as well as from nose and throat infections.

SPLIT PERSONALITY

G. writes: Does split personality run in families?

REPLY

Yes, but we don't know if this mental condition is hereditary.

TB OF BONE

R.R. writes: Does tuberculosis ever involve the bones? If so, what are the symptoms?

REPLY

Yes, pain, tenderness, and swelling often occur, over the bones involved. TB of the spine may exist for a long time without producing symptoms. The vertebrae collapse leading to "hunchback," a condition we rarely see today.

BABIES DON'T WAIT

A reader writes: Is it true that babies never are born on nights when quarter or half moons are on the horizon?

REPLY

Babies are born every day and night of the year, regardless of the moon, stars, or space ships.

FULL TO BED

Mrs. M. writes: Is it harmful to go to bed on a full stomach?

REPLY

No, but it may be a bit uncomfortable.

TWO PLUS

J. A. V. writes: What does two plus mean in a test for blood in the stools?

REPLY

Chemical tests for blood in the stools are graded from one to four plus. A two plus is not enough for concern. This test is more meaningful if it is done after the individual has been on a meat-free diet for a few days. Meat contains blood that could produce a two plus reaction.

KIDNEY INFECTION

Mrs. L. writes: What would cause nephritis in a boy of 4 years?

REPLY

The cause is not known, but in many instances, nephritis (Bright's disease) follows a streptococcal infection elsewhere in the body. The most common of these are strep throat, scarlet fever, and impetigo.

MOUTH DEFECT

REPLY

Not necessarily. The lip and the hard palate are involved in approximately 50 per cent of the cases.

Three Hurt In Accident Said 'Fair'

Three persons were reported in fair condition today at Marin General Hospital as a result of injuries suffered yesterday in an accident on Sir Francis Drake Boulevard, according to the California Highway Patrol.

William Douglas Lemon, 26, of San Bruno suffered head injuries and chest bruises; Dennis Pfennig, 23, of 4 Florence Avenue Avenue, San Anselmo, cuts on his head and leg and Lynn Pfennig, 54, of 126 Center Drive, Woodacre, broken lower ribs.

According to patrolmen, Lemon was driving a car and horse trailer eastbound on Sir Francis Drake Boulevard when a car passed his and cut in close8to avoid an oncoming car at 5:15 p.m. yesterday. Lemon's car hit the right bank and then crossed the road into some trees and brush.

The other two were passengers in his car.

The Face Of Congress Is About Same

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Congressional reformers once again have performed plastic surgery on the aging face of the seniority system, but many of the old wrinkles remain.

For years liberals in Congress have fought to abolish the system that selects powerful committee chairman purely on the basis of elective longevity.

Significant changes have been made in the way the system works, most recently in the current session. And some reformers unblinkingly have declared that the unwritten custom has been "abolished."

In truth, however, the traditional system of turning over the reins of congressional power to Congress' most experienced — and in some cases, oldest—members continues as it always has.

Two years ago, House Democrats instituted a rules change requiring that members vote on the selection of a chairman if requested by at least 10 members.

Few, however, were willing openly to challenge a chairman. In fact, it was only used once in an unsuccessful challenge against former Rep. John L. McMillan, D-S. C., who headed the District of Columbia Committee.

House Republicans, at that time, agreed to require secret votes by their entire membership to choose their top-ranking committee leaders. And, predictably, the senior-ranking Republican on each committee was selected.

Last month, House Democrats agreed to follow the GOP lead and called for a secret ballot on the selection of each committee chairman. One by one through 21 successive votes, the senior committee leaders were chosen by an overwhelming vote of confidence.

Rep. Richard Ichord, D-Mo., chairman of the Internal Security Committee, had the most opposition with a 108-49 vote, but that represented House opposition to the committee itself rather than to Ichord personally.

Again, on the GOP side, ranking minority leaders all were approved easily.

Senate Republicans also approved similar reforms last month, emulating changes made two years ago by their Democratic colleagues. Here again the ranking GOP members of each committee automatically were given power.

And the trappings of prestige and power still are considerable.

The chairman sets the committee's agenda, designates subcommittee chairmen, refers bills to his subcommittees, decides when the committee meets and whether to hold hearings, approves the list of witnesses, hires staff, decides what to investigate, manages legislation on the floor, decides when the committee is to vote on bills and opens and closes committee debate.

Ranking Republicans hire minority staffing on each committee and are in line for the chairmanship should the GOP win a majority in the Senate or House.

Yet even with the virtual retention of the custom of rewarding those who have served the longest with the most power, liberal reform groups such as Common Cause and Americans for Democratic Action were all but ecstatic over this year's reforms.

By subjecting committee leaders of both parties to a periodic vote of confidence, they argued, chairmen will be held accountable for their performance as well as to the general will of their party.

Reformers also applauded the Democrats' "subcommittee bill of rights" in the House, which in part allows a subcommittee chairman to be challenged by a majority vote of the Democrats on the full committee, the new rules further guarantee that freshman members must be named to at least one major standing committee.

Despite numerous assertions about "the evils" of the seniority system, most members agree that no one has proposed a better way of selecting committee chairmen.

Indeed, its proponents argue the seniority custom is one of Congress' major strengths, ensuring that the personal power and responsibilities of the men who run its committees will not fall into inexperienced hands.

Senate Democratic Leader Mike Mansfield advised new members at the beginning of the session that "in general, the Senate has been well served ... by the chairmen of its various committees."

Sen. Edward M. Kennedy, D-Mass., is among those who believe that with time the seniority system will put liberals such as himself into the seats of power.

"Look at their ages," Kennedy once told a reporter as he scanned a list of committee chairmen. "They're all the same generation."

Meanwhile, there may have been a collective sigh of impatience from some freshmen when they saw how long it took Rep. Ray J. Madden, D-Ind., after 15 terms in the House, to become chairman of the Rules Committee. Madden is 80.

Map To Come Before Council

The San Rafael City Council will consider a tentative map for Peacock Gap Unit 5 when it meets at 8 p.m. today in city hall.

Consideration of the map has been postponed for months amid talks between American Savings and Loan Association and homeowners aimed at reaching agreement on the 170-lot single-family subdivision on a 72-acre bowl-shaped parcel at McNear and Peacock drives.

Homeowners have opposed the project's landscaping and architectural configuration as well as density.

The council also will consider a list of fees or increases in fees for various city services, hear a report from the citizens advisory committee and discuss upgrading the city library to meet earthquake standards.

Hearing Set On Property Concealing

A preliminary hearing for 21-year-old Patricia Ann Fusilieria on a felony charge of concealing stolen property has been scheduled for Friday in Marin Municipal Court.

Judge Peter Allen Smith set the hearing for the San Rafael resident after she pleaded innocent.

Acting on a tip, San Rafael police went to her home at 14 Pleasant Lane Jan. 9 and found her and three companions sitting amid a quantity of guns.

Officers said that three shotguns, three rifles and a pistol in the home had been reported stolen from a neighbor's residence the day before.

Coats, jewelry and other items reported stolen from two other San Rafael homes also were found, police said.

Two Officals Must Move

I-J Special Report

SAN FRANCISCO — Two San Francisco school officials living in Marin have been told to move into the city or forfeit their jobs.

The officials, among four given such orders, are Ralph Kauer of San Anselmo, assistant superintendent for budget planning, and Martin Dean of Novato, assistant superintendent for special education. Each receives an annual salary of $30,000.

The order is said to have arisen from a meeting of the board of education Thursday at which school legal adviser Irving Breyer interpreted the city charter to compel high-ranking school officials to reside in the city.

Membership Leader Picked

Tina Martin of Novato has been appointed chairman of the 1973 membership campaign for Marin Aid to Retarded Children, Dr. Joseph Spinelli, president of the group, announced.

The society during March will seek members to aid in continuing programs of mental retardation research, prevention, education and service, according to Dr. Spinelli.

The group offers direct services to many of the approximately 3,900 retarded persons in the county and also provides services for their families.
